Mussolini and Kemal
Doyle Came Back
A New Jersey Ghost
Interesting Marriage

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MUSSOLINI INTERESTS Europe, and causes excitement in France, proposing an alliance with Germany.

France understands that the suggestion calls for a military alliance, or, at least, an agreement that Germany will remain neutral in case of an Italian-French war.

Mussolini ought to know what such an alliance really means when war really starts.

In 1914, Italy had an alliance with Germany and the Kaiser was foolish enough to think it would stand up. It did not.

When Kemal Pasha, boss of Turkey, makes war, HE MAKES WAR. You remember that Mussolini threatened him, and Kemal replied:

"If you send Italian soldiers against me, the difficulty will be to find room to bury the number that I shall kill."

That sounds like old days when Mohammed himself was leader, and later when western Europe whispered in awe the name of "The Grand Turk."

The spirit of Conan Doyle has obliged by attending a seance of Spiritualists. He came a long way from London, forgetting, perhaps, to allow for the eastward movement of the earth. He landed in the Bronx in upper New York city, and remarked: "I am Conan Doyle, and I am glad to be here." Then he asked for pencil and paper and wrote a telephone number.

More important messages will come later, more appropriately located.

West Long Branch, N. J., thinks it has a ghost. It was first seen last Sunday night by a party of young people in an automobile. They threw stones at the white figure, and swear that it stood 10 feet high.

Twice previously the ghost had rushed and scattered small groups of watchers.

On Wednesday, of the 3000, only half a dozen women saw the spook.

Two thousand, nine hundred and ninety-four, including the police, saw nothing. That's about the average for ghosts, in real tests.

It is announced that Princess Juliana, only child of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, and destined to be queen in her turn, will marry Prince Sigvard, son of the Swedish crown prince, and grandson of the Duke of Connaught.

How quickly human conditions and feelings change. Prince Sigvard is the descendant of Bernadotte, one of Napoleon's marshals, who was the first Swedish king of his line. And Bernadotte was the son of a little French lawyer, and, as Mr. Ripley tells you, Bernadotte had tattooed on his arm, the slogan of the revolution, "Death to Kings."

The administration has decided not to let the nation know what secret negotiations preceded the treaty it is asked to ratify. The normal majority of rubber stamp senators will sign with eyes shut, if they must.

The others take that part of the Constitution no more seriously than they do the Eighteenth Amendment.

If the Senate does sign with its eyes shut and its brain uninformed, it will indicate that, like the British House of Lords, our Senate is becoming more or less of a vermiform appendix, unnecessary and sometimes dangerous.

Miss Martha L. Connole, woman lawyer, replying to Mrs. Thomas A. Edison's statement that woman should remain in the home and out of business asks:

"The home, where is that?"

Woman has been kicked out of the home, according to Miss Connole, and finds it hard to succeed in business because "chivalry has fallen into the ash-can."

"When you see a woman working," says Lawyer Connole, "some man has fallen down on the job of providing for her support."

Schopenhauer said all women were in league to compel every man to support some one woman all her life, and marriage was part of that conspiracy.

That, he said, was why women never forgive the woman whose loose life breaks up the plan.

Business seems to be interfering with it, as immorality once did.

FITZGERALD WILLING TO SWITCH

Would Run for Either Senator or Governor to Balance the Party Ticket

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is willing to switch from the gubernatorial to the senatorial contest if a conference of Democratic leaders convince him that such action would be best in the interests of party harmony and success.

Speaking from his summer home today in Wareham, the ex-mayor said the reaction from his suggestion for a conference has been acclaimed throughout the state. It has already been demonstrated, he added, that Boston Democrats cannot go on "hogging" the ticket.

GOES TO LEXINGTON

The larger the number of conferees, he said, the better for the conference. He would like to see the Democratic members of the Legislature present as well as other representative party workers.

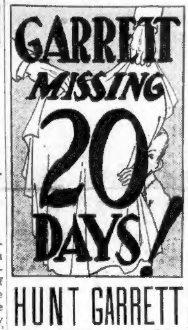
He revealed that a series of lesser get-togethers are taking place and expects to see some headway made this afternoon at the ninth congressional district outing at Mohawk Inn in Lexington, which he will attend.

"NO HANDPICKING,

Commenting on the attitude of Senator Walsh against an attempt to handpick candidates, Fitzgerald said no one has any idea of dictating such a course. All that has been suggested he said was to have Senator Walsh sit in and discuss the situation within the party.

"That we fully expect him to do," Fitzgerald declared. "I have no personal feeling against any of the candidates. In fact, I have a kindly feeling for all of them. But we have got to realize that there are many considerations."

He said that a conference between himself and Joseph B. Ely, prominent western Democrat, would probably be arranged.



HUNT GARRETT IN NANTASKET

Five members of the police flying squadron sought Oliver B. Garrett at Nantasket today, following the receipt of information that the fugitive former liquor raider was seen there this morning.

At Weymouth and in other sections, the search, now in its 20th day, gained considerable impetus from the increase to $5000 of the reward offered by the Boston American for information exclusively given to this paper which results in his capture.

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley issued the following statement in connection with the reward:

"The action of the Boston American in increasing the Garrett reward from $1000 to $5000 shows a very commendable spirit on the part of the paper. It is a direct answer to Commissioner

MRS. BANKHEAD-LEE TO SEEK ANNULMENT

Los Angeles, July 12 (AP)—The Examiner says today Mrs. Eugenia Bankhead-Hoyt-Butt-Lee, much-married daughter of U. S. Rep. William B. Bankhead of Alabama, will institute annulment proceedings soon against Howard Lee, aviator, whom she married at Reno, Nev., July 1.

CLERGYMAN IS SWINDLED OUT OF $35,000

Warner Hints 'High Pressure' That Sold Minister Worthless Stocks

A Boston clergyman under whose vestments grew the fleece of a woolly lamb and who was expertly shorn of $35,000 by a coterie of high-pressure stock salesmen, today is nursing a faint hope that Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner will be able to get back at least a part of his life's savings.

The attorney-general's office refused to give out the name of the clergyman until Monday, at which time it was stated it will be made public, together with the name of the firm which victimized him. This is said to be a Boston concern.

SUSPICIONS AROUSED

The minister is on the verge of a nervous collapse as a result of the swindle, his entire savings and those of his wife having been swept away.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Louis Sawyer has been assigned to the case and arrests are expected to follow the investigation he is conducting.

The minister and his family, al-

BOBBY JONES TAKES EARLY LEAD IN OPEN

Defending Champion Does the First Nine of Third Round in 33

Interlachen Country Club, July 12—Bobby Jones' famous "Calamity Jane" putter was mainly responsible for the 33 the defending champion shot going to the turn this morning to take the lead away among the early starters in the U. S. open championship.

Bobby had no less than six one-putt greens going to the turn. He was short going to the first, but came down with one putt, and single putts on the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh greens made him four under 4s. After two-putting on the eighth, he was lucky to get a par at the long ninth, where he was trapped with his second and needed four to get home.

Tommy Armour came through with an outward round of 35, to

State Gives License to Broker Jailed in Stock Case

Stock swindlers reap an annual harvest of one and one-half billions of dollars throughout the United States. Massachusetts investors, chiefly in the Boston district, yield upwards of fifty million dollars of that huge loot.

The Boston Evening American is revealing day by day how the fradulent stock promoters operate.

Aided by federal, state and county officials and the Boston Better Business Bureau, the Evening American is waging a campaign to drive the swindlers out of Massachusetts. Complaints and information against fraudulent schemes will be received at the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, 5 Winthrop sq.

Victims of fraud will be assisted in proceeding against the swindlers. The victims' names will not be published without their consent.

The "inside story" of how the sharpers operate, written by "Ex-Swindler," who handled $35,000,000 of victims' money in a criminal career of fifteen years, is also running daily in the Evening American as a further means of enlightening the public.

MAYOR CURLEY IN SEA RESCUE

Mayor Curley participated in a rescue at sea during yesterday's storm, it was learned today. The mayor was the guest of City Treasurer Timothy Dolan on the latter's yacht Maicaway. When four miles off Magnolia an open motor boat with four men aboard was sighted, drifting in the heavy wind and rain.

The drifting boat was taken to Magnolia, the destination of Dolan's party. Sea water had short-circuited the ignition of the motor boat from which the men had been fishing.

3 HOLD UP PAYMASTER IN DOCK OFFICE

Jump Into a Waiting Car Reported Stolen in Norton and Make Their Escape

Marcus Levins, paymaster for the Jarka Corporation, stevedores, with five other men, was held up and robbed of a $7000 payroll by three bandits on Mystic Docks, Charlestown, today.

The holdup took place in a small office on Pier 47 at 11 o'clock in the interval between paying off two gangs of longshoremen.

The gunmen escaped in a sedan containing two other men waiting outside the office. The car bore stolen registration plates.

The Jarka Corporation, whose headquarters are at 177 Milk st., immediately ordered Levins back to the bank for more money with which to pay the remaining 240 men.

STATE POLICE ON TRAIL.

State police, under instructions from Capt. Thomas Bligh and Capt. Charles Beaupre, also entered the hunt, and an attempt was being made to trace the registration plates, stolen from Winifred S. Treantafil of 93 Hill st., Norton.

The robbery was one of the boldest committed in this city in years, occurring at a time when the docks were literally swarming with longshoremen working on the steamships Toledo, Harburg and Jane Christensen.

The usual hour for paying off on Saturday is 11:15 a. m., but today Levins arrived at the office early, and started dispersing money from a bag in which it was carried.

There are two rooms comprising the dock office of the company and the paymaster paid off in the inner.

ONE GANG WAS PAID

One gang had been paid under the supervision of Timekeeper Paul Nolan and had returned to work, with the exception of three men who stopped for a drink of water just outside the front door.

FEDERAL COMMISSION OPENS INVESTIGATION OF SHIPPING BOARD

BIG SHAKEUP LOOMS AS OUTCOME

Study of Proposed Sale of Two Steamship Lines First Undertaking

Washington, July 12 (US)—President Hoover yesterday directed a special commission to make an exhaustive survey of the Shipping Board with a view to reorganizing the sales policy and general administration.

The members of the commission are Edward N. Hurley, Chicago wartime chairman of the Shipping Board; H. G. Dalton, Cleveland, who made a survey of the merchant fleet for former President Coolidge; George S. Jackson, Baltimore, exporter and associate of President Hoover in the food administration, Clarence M. Wooley, New York, of the American Radiator Co., and Ira A. Campbell, New York.

The commission is to immediately begin a study of the proposed sale of the American Diamond and the American France Lines to Paul W. Chapman, Inc., New York, purchaser of the United States and American Merchant Lines.

The two transatlantic lines were offered for sale several months ago. The United States Lines submitted a high bid. The present operators submitted a low bid but contend that they should be awarded the lines under a clause in the shipping act which provides that when the government-owned fleets are sold the operators should be given preference.

This, however, is only incidental to the broad scope of the inquiry, it was stated at the White House. The whole system of government operation will be delved into and recommendations made for the disposition of the great number of ships either in active operation or tied up and out of commission.

The board will function without legal status. It was appointed by the President and the members are serving without compensation. It will report direct to the President.

front office telephoning: James Mahoney, first-aid man for the company, stood in the doorway between the two offices, and Levins sat a desk on which rested the money bag in the inner office.

According to officials of the company, the bag at that time contained $3000 in $10 bills, $1500 in fives, $700 in ones and the remainder in change.

A sedan containing five men swung leisurely up to the office door and three of the occupants leaped out with guns in their hands.

COVERED WITH GUNS

One covered the stevedores at the drinking fountain, while the others stepped into the outer office, small room about eight by ten.

A gun was thrust into the ribs of Shea at the telephone, while another bandit seized Mahoney by one arm, pushing the muzzle of his weapon against the first aid man's stomach with his other hand.

"Stick 'em up, you ——," he commanded, "we've got you. Where's the dough?"

As his hands went up Mahoney nodded in the direction of the inner office and said:

"Right in there, brother."

Ordering Mahoney in ahead of him the bandit stepped into the inner room, lifted the bag from the desk where Levins sat helpless, and stepped out.

LEAPS INTO CAR

Then with his two companions at his heels he leaped into the waiting car followed by the others, and it shot away.

As the machine whirled up the ramp and disappeared into Chelsea st., the registration number was taken and turned over to the police. The plates were believed to have been stolen some weeks ago.

Owing to the rapidity with which the holdup was staged and the excitement engendered, only sketchy descriptions were obtained of the bandits. All were swarthy and wore caps, it was said.

Police believe the stickup was carefully planned, after the bandits had familiarized themselves with Levins' routine. The paymaster lives at 176 Bowdoin st., Dorchester.

Cow Chews Wire in Twine and Stops Mimic Warfare

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A cow which chewed a telephone wire today had disrupted a "war" being fought at Fort George E. Meade, Maryland.

Reserve students laid the wire from the fort to various field posts, for carrying on the war game between two "armies."

The telephone system would not work for the battlers. They found the yellow covered wire had been severed by cow-teeth.

New wire was strung on tree tops out of reach of cows.

Tip on Garrett Takes Police to Nantasket

Hultman's request for aid and assistance from the press and public and is very gratifying."

SEARCH AT NANTASKET

Sergt. Justin McCarthy led the flying squadron members in the search at Nantasket and other inspectors were sent to the horse races at the Weymouth fair grounds following a tip that Garrett attended the races there yesterday and saw two of his horses run, while police were present watching for him.

According to the story, Garrett late last night told his friend that he had out-smarted the police at the race track and that he was in a disguise which he would repeat again today.

The two horses in which Garrett was interested yesterday were Earl Direct and Tom Thumb. Both placed second in their respective races.

Today Garrett's entries are Ariel Douglas, entered in the name of Dudley Mulhenin, and Ann Cata, entered by Maurice Fitzgerald.

Just how many officers were fooled, if Garrett did appear at the race track yesterday, was not revealed by the police, but among the number were Special Officers Joseph McBrine and Joseph Decker of District Attorney Foley's office.

A dozen or more trails have been followed to blind ends by the Boston police and officers from the district attorney's office in the search for Garrett. These extend from Provincetown to Canada, where Garrett has relatives.

ALL CLUES FOLLOWED

Every clue, no matter how insignificant, is being run out by Boston police, as a result of the special order of Commissioner Hultman directing that no stone be left unturned to apprehend Garrett.

A willing ally from civilian life has joined police in their search for Garrett. He is Oscar Long, one of the bondsmen for the missing ex-officer. Long has secured from the clerk of the Suffolk County Court a copy of the recognizances on file in the clerk's office in connection with the Garrett disappearance.

A citizen, armed with these recognizances, can arrest Garrett on sight, with the same powers as a police officer.

HAS GOOD CLUE

Long, who is one of the three men who must pay Garrett's bail bond unless he is apprehended, announced that he "had a good line" on the hideout of Garrett and expected to "get him."

Another of the bondsmen, Leopold Manfredonia, secured copies of the recognizance immediately after Garrett disappeared, nearly three weeks ago.

In the interests of justice and to increase the interest of the public in the search for Garrett, the Boston Evening American today increased to $5000 the reward the paper is offering for exclusive information leading to the apprehension of Garrett.

In a letter received by Police Commissioner Hultman yesterday, an anonymous writer declared that if the reward for Garrett's apprehension was made sufficiently attractive, the missing man could be produced. The Boston Evening American's $5000 reward is the answer to this demand.

The special offer of Commissioner Hultman regarding the Garrett capture will be read at every roll call in every police station in Boston until further notice, that the matter may be kept fresh in the minds of every member of the force.

GOES GUNNING FOR MATE

In her lap she cradled a revolver.

"No mystery," she said, keeping her eye on a house across the street.

"I'm just waiting to kill my husband, John Madden. I went to weed the patch he was cutting and took a couple of shots at him awhile ago, but he ran away. I'm waiting for him to come home."

She explained that he had forced her to take a job cooking.

WITNESS TAKES BACK MOONEY TESTIMONY

McDonald Says He Wants to Undo Wrong in Sending Labor Man to Jail

Baltimore, July 12 (AP)—John McDonald, principal prosecution witness against Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings, serving life sentences for the preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco in 1916, said today he had perjured himself at the trial and now desires to "undo the wrong."

Sought in connection with efforts of the Mooney Defense League to obtain pardons for the two men, McDonald was taken into custody here after being recognized by a neighbor.

After his arrest he issued a statement through an attorney in which he said:

"I never saw Mooney until taken to the Hall of Justice in San Francisco and was told by an officer that this is Mooney (pointing him out to me). My testimony in the various cases was untrue and false. I desire to undo the wrong done by me in sending Mooney to prison regardless of personal consequences. The authorities got me to testify that I identified Mooney, but this is an absolute falsehood."

Five years after the conviction of Mooney and Billings, MacDonald made an affidavit at Trenton, N. J., in which he said he was not positive of his identification of either.

In refusing to grant the latest pardon petition a few days ago, Gov. C. C. Young of California indicated his decision might be reversed if McDonald were produced to repeat his repudiation before the Governor and the Supreme Court.

Mooney League Cheers McDonald's Statement

San Francisco, July 12 (AP)—The Mooney Defense League announced today it would ask Frank P. Walsh, New York attorney, to induce John McDonald to return here and submit to questioning regarding the statement he made in Baltimore confessing his testimony against Thomas W. Mooney had been false.

News of McDonald's statement brought cheers at a meeting of the San Francisco Labor Council last night.

In Los Angeles, Governor C. C. Young said:

"If it is McDonald who is in jail in Baltimore, and he is sincere in his wish to come to California and tell his story to the proper authorities, I shall expect to see those involved questioned and the truth obtained."

ROW IS ON OVER LINGLE PROBER

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—A tempest of type broke today over the head of Charles F. Rathbun, members of the Tribune's legal firm, who is directing the inquiry into the Jake Lingle murder.

Publication yesterday by the Daily News of a letter hinting that better results would be obtained in the investigation if it were in charge of someone without connection with any newspaper, brought denials by the reputed signers that they had signed the letter.

The letter urges the appointment of another prosecutor to whom "we will present the information which we think is readily procurable."

Another Gangster Slain in Detroit

MARY COMRINSKEY, 18, disappeared from the home of her uncle in South Boston Thursday and a gangster is being hunted as her abductor.

HUNT KIDNAPER OF GIRL, 18

A bootlegger and gangster believed to be the owner of a green roadster, is being sought today in connection with the disappearance of Mary Comrinskey, 18, who lives with her uncle, Matthew, of 112 Gold st., South Boston.

Today the frantic uncle begged the Boston Evening American to aid the Boston police in search for the girl he fears has met with a dire fate—possibly with death.

The girl, who came here three weeks ago from her home in Worcester, to seek employment, was last seen in the green roadster Thursday evening, as it rounded a corner near her uncle's home.

The uncle thought the girl had gone for a brief ride with some acquaintance, but it was the last time the girl was seen by any member of the family.

The uncle made inquiries in the neighborhood which led him to believe the girl had been abducted by the driver of the machine, who is a notorious character.

The girl is described as being five feet four inches tall, weighing 123 pounds, with dark hair and blue eyes. She wore a green hat, black satin coat, brown stockings and cream-colored shoes.

MANIAC KILLS 2, DIES IN FLAMES

Warsaw, Poland, July 12 (AP)—Three deaths and considerable property damage were counted in Antoniewicze, Dziena district, today as toll of a maniac's persecution complex.

The maniac, Joseph Gronowski, killed his mother and brother and then locked himself in his house with a large stock of hand grenades. Soldiers and the local fire brigade could not dislodge him and several soldiers were wounded by the grenades.

Finally one of the missiles set fire to a neighboring house. The flames spread to Gronowski's home and set it and adjacent houses afire, Gronowski perishing in the flames. Eight houses were destroyed.

107 Dead From Heat in Mid West States

Chicago, July 12 (INS)—Weather forecasters promised no relief today from the record-breaking heat wave which has stifled the Middle West for the last four days, killing 107 persons.

Shifting winds brought rising temperatures to Chicago today and a record mark of 95 degrees was predicted before sundown.

Gets a Year for 30-Cent Holdup

Chicopee, July 12 (AP)—A holdup with a cap pistol that yielded 30 cents cash and a wrist watch of small value will cost a year's liberty to Leonidas Coddere, 20, and Eugene Brien, 18, unless Superior court, to which they appealed today from the District court jail sentence should be more lenient. The holdup occurred on the night of July 3 and Harold Lavalley was the victim.

$7,000 Holdup Delayed Payoff of These Stevedores

PAY TIME WAS DELAYED a few hours for this group of longshoremen by the holdup and robbery of a $7000 payroll at the Mystic docks. The holdup took place between pay time for the different stevedore crews. The group above were part of the crew, next in line for pay, when the bandit trio held up the paymasters and made their escape in an auto. (Staff photo.)

FOES OF NAVAL TREATY GAIN IN BATTLE

Washington, July 12—The Senate ended a week's debate on the London naval treaty with ratification no nearer today than when President Hoover issued his call for the special session.

There is a stronger possibility actually preventing ratification by delaying a vote till fall or even to the coming of the new senate next March.

Debate will not be resumed until Monday.

An impasse, over secret state department documents relating to negotiation of the treaty, only made the task of ratification more difficult. This dispute, in which the President refused to turn the documents over to the Senate, provoked a proposed reservation, behind which all foes of the treaty rallied.

TEXT OF RESERVATION

The reservation, drafted by Senator Norris (R.) of Nebraska, proposed:

"That in ratifying this treaty, the Senate does so with the distinct and explicit understanding that there are no secret files, documents, understandings or agreements which in any way, directly or indirectly, modify, change, add to or take away from any of the stipulations, agreements or statements in the said treaty; and that the Senate ratifies said treaty with the distinct understanding that there is no agreement, secret or otherwise, expressed or implied, between any of the parties to said treaty as to any construction that shall hereafter be given to any statement or provisions contained therein."

TURNS TWO VOTES

The President's arbitrary attitude about the documents already has turned Democratic votes against the treaty and more are threatening.

Key Pittman of Nevada and Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma declared that unless they get every scrap of the secret correspondence they will oppose the pact. Both had been counted upon by proponents of the treaty.

The Oklahoman proposed that the Senate debate the treaty through next week, then adjourn until fall before it is taken up for a vote. Senator Black of Alabama joined in this demand.

Some Republican chieftains, including Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, leader of the "young guard," announced his willingness to accept the reservation.

CAN DELAY ACTION.

The treaty's opponents, led by Norris, Johnson, (R.) of California, Hale (R.) of Maine, and Robinson (R.) of Indiana, declared the reservation would have to be accepted or there would be no ratification. They can delay ratification of the treaty because their group is necessary to help the administration each day in maintaining a quorum.

Bad feeling has been engendered by debate. Senator Hale chided the American delegation to London for having "surrendered" to British and Japanese, a direct criticism of Senators Reed (R.) of Pennsylvania and Robinson (R.) of Arkansas, who helped negotiate the treaty.

Reed replied that the American delegates were patriotic citizens who had protected their nation's best interests.

Johnson retorted that Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, the late Henry Cabot Lodge and the late Oscar W. Underwood had represented the United States at the 1922 conference, only to have the treaty of that year universally condemned afterward.

PROBE ILLINOIS VOTE FUNDS

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—The Senate campaign funds committee now is ready to open the door on expenditures of candidates in Illinois senatorial primary last April.

The committee, headed by Senator Herald P. Nye of North Dakota, begins Monday a public inquiry in its desire to learn whether the Republican nomination of Ruth Hanna McCormick cost any more than the $252,500 she reported spending herself. A great many witnesses have been subpoenaed, more than a score for the opening day.

The expenditure of $252,500 set forth by Mrs. McCormick in winning the senatorial nomination was wholly from her own fortune. She said she had not accepted any contribution from any person or organization. She said she had kept her accounts meticulously "with a view toward presenting her report to the Senate."

Court Holds Doctor in Nashua Kidnaping

Nashua, N. H., July 12 (AP)—Dr. George Burton, address unknown, arrested in Pawlet, Vt., July 2, charged with kidnaping five-year-old Elizabeth May Pitt from Nashua Protestant Orphanage, last December, was held in $1500 for Superior court when arraigned here today.

Alice Neilson Hugged Investigator, He Says

New York, July 12—Complaints brought by the former Alice Neilson against Harry Starr, investigator who superintended a raid on her husband's apartment, were dismissed yesterday in court.

Alice Neilson

Starr was charged with divulging information concerning the case to the newspapers, and over-charging the former opera star. Both charges were dismissed.

Starr was hired by Mrs. Stoddard to shadow her husband, Dr. R. Leroy Stoddard, noted society plastic surgeon. After conducting the raid on the apartment, Starr testified that Mrs. Stoddard hugged him and told him that she could never repay him for his services. He recently won a judgment against her for $600.

Mme. Lupescu May Wed an American

Vienna, July 12—Rumors that Mme. Magda Lupescu, for whom King Carol deserted his wife and son and threw away his claim to the Rumanian throne, is to marry an American in the near future, rumors persist in this city.

Mme. Lupescu

Relatives of the former companion to Carol during his exile, declared yesterday that they had heard of her engagement to an American. They denied reports that Mme. Lupescu had followed King Carol to Rumania in violation of her agreement with him not to return there.

Viola Gentry Takes to Air After Injuries

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 12—Viola Gentry, plucky woman aviator, has donned her flying togs once again.

Viola Gentry

Viola, who sustained almost fatal injuries over a year ago when her plane "cracked up," hopped off yesterday as a passenger just to get the "feel of it again."

After her crash she was taken to the Nassau County Hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and fractures of both shoulders. The backers of her endurance flight deserted her in her time of need and an anonymous benefactress came to her aid.

Although her injuries have not healed sufficiently to allow her to pilot a plane she has made several hops as a passenger.

Evelyn Laye's Divorce Reveals Stage Triangle

London, July 12—Described by the press of Great Britain as the "ideal romance" and followed for some time in the English newspapers as such the romance of Evelyn Laye, "most beautiful woman on the stage of Europe," has foundered on the rocks.

Evelyn Laye

Sonnie Hale, actor from a celebrated family of actresses and actors, has been divorced by Miss Laye in a decree handed down in London. Miss Laye is appearing in New York.

Miss Laye named Jessie Matthews, another English star, appearing also in New York. Miss Matthews admitted in divorcing her husband her misconduct. Hale and Miss Matthews are to wed. When Miss Laye was given this news she stated:

"The less said about that matter the better."

"St. Louis" in Two States Has 1,289,341

St. Louis, July 12 (AP)—The 1930 population of the St. Louis official metropolitan zone was announced today as 1,289,341, an increase of 20.3 per cent since 1920, when the population was 1,071,410. The zone comprises St. Louis city, most of St. Louis County, St. Charles, Mo., and large portions of St. Clair and Madison Counties, Illinois.

The city proper, with a population of 818,252, gained only 5.8 per cent.

DIES ON FARM FROM SPINE AILMENT

World War Veterans Mourn Loss of Preacher Winner of French War Cross

Sturdy hearts are heavy throughout Boston and New England today as the result of the death on a lonely little farm at Enfield, N. H., yesterday of the Rev. Lyman Rollins—in peace times a quiet, unobtrusive man of God, but during the World War the two-fisted, fearless crusader who was the "Beloved Fighting Chaplain" of the 101st Infantry of the 26th Division.

The World War gave America its Sergt. Yorkes and its Col. Whittlesey, but ask any doughboy who fought with the 26th in the slime and blood of France who the outstanding hero of the fighting Yankee Division was, and the answer, in almost every instance, will be "Chaplain Rollins, of course."

Beloved alike by Protestant, Catholic, Jew and infidel, Chaplain Rollins did a lot of things in France that were not called for in the army regulations and which endeared him to the doughboys.

GASSED IN WAR

He died on his farm, yesterday, as heroic a victim of the World War as though he had succumbed on the field of battle to any of the three wounds he suffered while ministering to the dying under shell fire.

Terribly gassed in a heroic effort which won for him the French Croix de Guerre, the chaplain never regained his health. His tortured lungs forced him finally to retire from the ministry, after peace was declared, but he bravely fought for his life alone on his farm, fighting against odds that finally proved too much for him.

The "Fighting Chaplain" was obsessed with the idea, in France, that the place to be of real comfort to the doughboys was in the midst of battle when they were dying or facing death. Against the advice, and in some cases against the orders, of his superiors, he insisted on accompanying raiding parties and attacks across No Man's Land.

Early on Memorial Day, 1918, the chaplain accompanied a raiding party that made its way through the mud and barbed wire of No Man's Land to the German trenches in the Rupt-de-Mad sector.

The Germans unloosed a dense cloud of gas and the American raiding party became hopelessly confused. Then the German artillery opened a box barrage and the Americans were faced with almost certain death. The chaplain, realizing the peril, tore his gas mask from his face that he could peer through the clouds of gas, although he knew this eventually meant his death. He led his "boys" back to the American lines in safety. Yesterday, he paid for this with his life.

Young, aggressive, an eloquent speaker, the "Fighting Chaplain" early won the devotion of those he came in contact with. He preached the gospel of democracy. Never was he more at home than when he could talk straight from the shoulder to "practical" men.

People first began to talk about the young minister when in May, 1915, after a successful career at St. Stephen's Church, Lynn, he became rector of the old St. Michaels parish of Marblehead. Many young men made up his congregations. To them, especially, he was a "regular fellow."

The Rev. Mr. Rollins is survived by two brothers, H. L. Rollins and W. M. Rollins of Concord, N. H. Funeral services will take place at St. Paul's Church, Lebanon, N. H., tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, the body lying in state in the church from 12 o'clock until 2. The remains will then be taken to Concord, N. H., where a military funeral will take place Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Concord.

ONE IF BY LAND and two if by sea, where in the deuce can Oliver B? That sea and land reference seems to be true enough to believe, for through the 20 days that have gone since Oliver B. Garrett, Boston's former liquor czar, took French-leave instead of appearing for trial, he has been much "found." The hunt is on and in the drawing above Staff Artist Charles Schmidt gives you a close-up of just a few of the scores of places where "Ollie" has been "found." Everybody seems to be looking for the ex-rum raider, judging from reports that come to the Boston American office and to police.

How Chaplain Got Gassed to Save His Comrades

Blinding gas and a terrific box barrage—and a detail of "Yanks" of the 101st caught in "No Man's Land" near midnight of May 30, 12 years ago.

They had been on a raiding party and were returning to their own lines when the German opened his barrage and laid down his gas attack that swept about the little group caught in the shell-torn terrain.

They donned their masks—they had to don masks to live. The "eyes" of the masks steamed and they could see little. In a few minutes they were lost amid the wire entanglements—"in the wire."

Shells fell among them, taking toll. They could not get out of the wire. Yet there was an opening in that wire—for they had passed through it going out. Now, in their masks, with the gas all about them and the shells punishing them they could not find it.

Finally one member of the detail—disregarding the gas—removed his mask and breathed the fumes but with vision thus improved found the opening in the wire. Through it he led his comrades to safety.

Rev. Lyman Rollins, chaplain of the 101st,—the man who took off his mask—died yesterday as a result of being gassed.

Wrecked by Blast

HEATER BLAST WRECKS HOME

Damage estimated at $10,000 was done to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Collins at 103 Common st., Watertown, several neighbors were thrown from their beds and scores of windows were blown out when a hot water tank in the Collins home blew through the roof of the house and landed in a yard 150 feet away early today.

Patrolman William Carnes of Watertown was knocked to the ground by the force of the explosion as he was patrolling Common st., while Daniel McAuliffe, who lives in Robbins rd., was thrown out of his bed.

After Carnes got to his feet he rushed into the house and with the aid of Patrolman Thomas Cullen and Sergt. Igoe of Watertown police, who rushed to the scene on hearing the explosion, succeeded in rescuing Mr. and Mrs. Collins from their bedroom on the second floor.

VANNUTELLI IS LAID TO REST

Vatican City, July 12 (AP)—The funeral of Vincenzo Cardinal Vannutelli was held today in the Church of St. Ignatius.

Cardinal Granito Pignatelli Di Belmonte, new dean of the Sacred College, imparted the Papal benediction.

Those present included the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See, representatives of the Italian Army and Navy, members of the Senate, former Minister Grandi representing the government, Deputy Garelli for the Fascist party, and the Count of Santelia in behalf of the King.

The body was placed in the Verano Cemetery, near the Church of St. Laurence, outside the walls of Rome, where Pope Pius IX is buried.

ELKS DUE TO QUIT HOTEL NEXT WEEK

Operators of Essex Said to Have Offered $100,000 Cash for Lease

John McCarthy and G. H. McGilvary, owners and operators of the Hotel Essex, were today considered the likely successors to the Boston Lodge of Elks in the operation of the Elks Hotel on Tremont st.

Official announcement of the transfer of the hotel to McCarthy and McGilvary is expected to be made early next week after officers of Boston Lodge return from the National Convention in Atlanta, Ga.

Since the liquor raid which resulted in a padlock for one of the floors of the hotel and the loss of the charter of the Boston Lodge of Elks, it has been generally known in hotel circles that the Tremont st. property was on the market.

$3,500,000 DEAL

It was learned that the Essex Hotel operators are ready to post $100,000 in cash for the lease and to assume an option to purchase the property at a price conservatively estimated at $3,500,000.

When ex-Gov. Channing Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank, was questioned today he said he could not make a statement concerning the sale at present. He admitted, however, that the First National Bank holds a large block of second mortgage bonds issued on the Elks Hotel.

IMMEDIATE TRANSFER

Officers of Boston Lodge of Elks are expected home early Monday and it is considered likely that the papers will be passed Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Boston Elks have been told they must sell the hotel, transfer the lodge rooms and remain out of the hotel business if they hope to regain their charter.

If the Essex Hotel operators come into control of the Elks Hotel, their first official act will be to change the name of the hostelry, it was learned.

Fisher, Hub's Guest, Sees Better Times

New York, July 12 (INS)—England would be better off by continuing to have free trade than by adopting a protective policy, the Right Hon. Herbert A. L. Fisher, Warden of New College, Oxford University, said here today. Warden Fisher is en route to Boston to be the chief guest at the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary celebration.

Unemployment in England is bad, he said, but will improve from now on, in his opinion. Fisher is accompanied by his brother, Vice-Admiral Sir William Fisher, who commanded the battleship St. Vincent in the battle of Jutland in the World War.

GAS UP; PRICE WAR ENDS

San Francisco, July 12 (AP)—With the Standard and Shell Oil Companies announcing a return to wholesale quotations existing before Pacific Coast dealers began slashing prices, the way was left open for an end to the gasoline war.

Standard's announcement, made last night, said wholesale prices which prevailed June 12 would be restored and their retailers would sell at 20 cents a gallon, and would refuse to sell to any dealer "found guilty" of price cutting. The Shell Company immediately followed Standard's move. Officials of other companies intimated they would follow suit.

Fight for Dogs Links Women Far Apart

Haverhill, July 12—Between Youngstown, O., and Haverhill and between life and death the bond of mutual affection for a dog reached today to make easier the last years for Mrs. Gertrude Swasey, 75, former circus bareback rider.

Mrs. Swasey has received a check for $500—and $500 is a fortune for Mrs. Swasey—from a Youngstown woman who read in the American Weekly, the magazine section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, of the trouble Mrs. Swasey had had with local animal society agents over her pets.

STOOD BY HER PETS

On complaint of neighbors in Washington ave., agents took several dogs from the aged woman's home, which for years has been an Eutopia for dogs and cats. For years Mrs. Swasey worked in cafe kitchens to earn money for a bit of food for herself and a goodly amount of food for her pets.

When the agents stepped in she fought for her dogs and she fought for her cats and she still has two of the former and six of the latter.

WITH $500 CHECK

The Youngstown woman, who wishes to remain anonymous, sent the check with a letter by a third person after having the story in The American Weekly investigated. The letter, in part follows:

"The way you stuck to your dog has opened my heart, for I think a dog is the best friend one can have. I have a tramp dog, picked up on the street six years ago, and I do not know what I would do without him. My husband passed away nearly three months ago and the dog has been my most faithful friend. I enclose check for $500 in memory of my husband, who dearly loved a dog. You can put it in the bank and use it as you see fit."

HUSTON GIVEN DECISION IN G. O. P. ROW

Will Resign, but Not Until He Pleases; May Stay for Elections

Washington, July 12 (US)—Claudius H. Huston was named today as the victor in the G. O. P. fight to remove him as chairman of the Republican national committee.

That he will resign is still held a foregone conclusion. But Huston will tender his resignation when he decides to step aside as committee chairman, regardless of pressure from the opposition element.

Huston's declaration that he would have nothing to say regarding his resignation until after the special session of the Senate adjourns, created a buzz of gossip in party circles.

DOMINATES MEETING

While some interpreted it to mean he would resign as soon as the session is over, others declared it might mean that Huston really intends to remain as chairman until after the fall elections.

Huston emerged from the meeting of the committee officers with a new respect for his militant leadership. There had been broad rumors that he would be "put on the spot" at that meeting and his resignation demanded.

Instead, Huston dominated the meeting, and it adjourned with Huston still in the saddle and with plans for the fall campaign pretty well formulated.

ABILITY ADMITTED

As a result the hue and cry against Huston has largely subsided. Those who have insisted that the chairman resign still declare he will resign, but they were predicting no exact date.

Even Huston's enemies admit he is a leader who knows his politics. His friends in the committee, and they are by no means few, declared that if harmony could be restored, Huston is the man to fill the chairmanship during the fall elections and get results.

LODGES MARCH THROUGH CITY

The Battle of the Boyne, that historic event on July 12, 1690, when the hosts of William of Orange defeated the army of James II, of England, was fittingly observed by Orangemen of Metropolitan Boston today.

The two organizations of Orangemen, the Loyal Orange Institution and the International Orange Association gathered in Copley sq. and then marched to entrain to their separate picnic grounds.

The members of the Institution, 500 strong, and led by two men carrying an open Bible, marched to South station to entrain for Mayflower grove at Bryantville.

The McGregor International Review, a fife and drum crops composed entirely of girls, which marched with the Institution members, attracted much attention along the line of march.

The two orange organizations that have been separated for the past 35 years, are expected to be reunited within the next year according to Thomas Lacey of Medford, marshal of the Institution parade.

CARROLL FACES MORE TROUBLE

New York, July 12 (INS)—Lee Shubert, rival producer, today injected himself into the troubled affairs of Earl Carroll, by obtaining an order from Supreme Court directing Carroll to show cause why one of the scenes in the "Vanities" should not be discontinued.

The scene is the under-water ballet, which Shubert declares he purchased from the Folies Bergere in Paris with sole rights to use in this country.

In the meantime the efforts of police to have scenes in the Carroll show changed or eliminated entirely were continued until Tuesday afternoon.

28 Romances on Rocks

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

London, July 12—What secrets lie behind the broken engagements of 28 of England's social leaders?

This is a question that daily keeps Mayfair gossips busy, the figures proving that for the first six months of 1930, there has been at least one broken engagement a week to talk about.

The engagement of Lady Audrey Chetwynd-Talbot, beautiful 20-year-old sister of the Earl of Shrewsbury, and E. H. Tattersall lasted just six weeks.

Then the Earl of Aylesford and Miss Amber Orr Wilson, who had actually obtained their marriage license, mutually agreed to part, owing to incompatibility of temperament, and tore up the document 24 hours after they had secured it.

TROUSSEAU ALL BOUGHT

Lady Rosemary Bootle-Wilbraham, sister of the dramatist-peer, the late Earl of Lathom, broke off her engagement to James Watt at the last moment. Her trousseau had been purchased, her wedding gown ordered, and the gowns of her attendants designed.

A prominent lawyer, whose safe contains the secrets of half of England's nobility, said last night he is in favor of the relaxing of the old feeling that an engagement is as binding as a wedding. He considers this modern way of dealing with the situation as productive of greater happiness for all. This, in spite of less work for his profession. Pointing out an instance to prove his point, the barrister said:

ONE BRIDE CHEATED

"There was an heiress who married at the beginning of the century. Her fiance was a fortune-hunter, and the night before the wedding he insisted on a large sum of money being placed to his credit before going through with the ceremony.

"The bride was in tears, and in spite of her family's advice, she advanced the rogue the money. The marriage was unsuccessful, and he managed to cheat their children out of their share of the mother's estate after she died.

Plans State Education Week

All Y. W. C. A.'s Will Take Part in Program From October 19 to 25

By NANCY BREWSTER

A State-wide education week will be conducted in Massachusetts this fall, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Associations of the Commonwealth. It is scheduled for October 19 to 25 inclusive.

Discussion of the necessary preliminaries leading up to the actual week itself was held at the Boston "Y" with Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, chairman of the publicity department of the Hub Association, presiding. Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin acted as secretary. A comprehensive program is now in the process of formation, details of which will be disclosed at a general committee meeting September 10, when Miss Elizabeth Webber, Boston; Miss Frances Moore, Worcester; Miss Mary Cross, New Bedford and Mrs. Christine D. Hall, Cambridge, will present the ideas.

Miss Webber, director of publicity on the Boston staff, addressed the round-table meeting yesterday, on "Why We Are Here," and it was voted unanimously to adopt such a program for the "Y" education week.

All the Y. W. C. A.'s in the State are to co-operate in the plans and are going forward with local details.

Y. W. C. A. Delegates Attend Conference at Lake George

The Boston Y. W. C. A. is well represented by delegates at the Silver Bay Conference, Lake George. They are to remain until next Wednesday and included in the party are Miss Lucile Rouse, general education department; Miss Elizabeth Yerrinton, board of directors; Miss Alice M. Ethier, educational council; Miss Georgia L. Ely, international institute; Miss Minnie Sayre, same department, and Miss Mary Hopkins, young girls' residence.

An annual conference, it affords discussion of those pertinent concerns with which and by which we live, learn and are happy.

Women's Republican Club to Entertain Guests of State

Distinguished guests of the state who are to attend the July 15 observance of the Massachusetts Tercentenary Celebration will be honored at luncheon by the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts. Following the luncheon they are to be taken on a trip through the Arnold Arboretum, then on to the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson.

After a brief inspection of the lovely gardens there, the guests will be conducted through the gardens of Mrs. George S. Gardner, Jr., where they will be entertained at tea. Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Tercentenary Commission, is in charge of the afternoon's arrangements.

Insurance Official Gives Parents Tips on Vacation Days

If summer months prove trying ones for parents and if youngsters exercise temper tantrums and general disobedience, it is because mother and father fail to adopt a more philosophical attitude toward their children.

Added to lackened discipline and less sleep and the lack of organized routine as exists during school activities, the warm weather months take their full toll of junior's response to parental control. This is the opinion of Dr. Lee K. Frankel, second vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

He says:

"If parents would only realize that the child is making a transition when he leaves school for vacations they would know they must have something to engage their minds. Unexpected traits of bullying will crop up in older children and the younger ones may adopt a stubborn spirit because of this. The result is one continuous wrangle in the home, until parents dread to see summer come around. The situation calls for tact plus a philosophical attitude on the part of grown-ups."

Don't give too much attention to certain transitional mannerisms that develop in children, he urges parents.

His advice includes that young children get sufficient sleep in the summer, they are kept sufficiently interested and not allowed to combine their current mode of manners with the heat.

Mrs. Roy C. Baker Art Chairman of State Federation

It has come to me that Mrs. Roy C. Baker of Wollaston is the new chairman of art for the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Baker is out of town, hence her confirmation of the appointment could not be ascertained, but I feel certain that she has the job. Her past activities and interests in art for the Federation when she served on Mrs. Henry M. Chamberlain's committee the last few years have glorified her in the minds of the thousands of Bay State clubwomen. The choice is a happy one.

Half Dresses Make Beach Ensemble

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

SCHIAPARELLI, the Paris designer, who sponsors black and white and other pied combinations, has now devised a new means to obtain the dramatic effect of striking color contrast. In a beach costume, a half dress of one color is combined with another. They wrap around the figure, the ties of one passing through slits in the other and both ties knotting at the same side.

THE BEACH costume pictured is delightfully feminine, of celanese, the sleeveless V neck shirt in white has a closely stitched belt attaching it to the box pleated black skirt. White shorts are worn under this. Topping it all is a short-sleeved bolero in chartreuse green; a white rubberized satin aviatrix cap, and a white satin bag, coin-spotted in black, together with wooden beach clogs, sporting gaily decorated heels, and black and white stripes. A parasol of many hues completes this feminine costume.

YOU MAY have wondered whether the vogue for manners and modes feminine would be able to make any headway on the carefree beach. An indication that even beachwear is going feminine is a new wooden clog that boasts a high heel. A shaped sole that follows the natural lines of the foot adds comfort to the smartness of the painted sandal. It is held in place by means of colorful straps over the toe and the instep.

EVEN BEACH accessories, heretofore complements to a boyish beach costume, have now become ladylike—witness the frilled beach umbrella and pillow. The pillow caters to vanity with zipper pockets for a vanity case. In bright-colored linen, the two pieces are gaily appropriate for the sunny sand. The linen parasol is equipped with handle for carrying it about. The oblong pillow is light.

WHAT COULD be more appropriate for the modern mermaid's accoutrements of beauty than a beach bag in the shape of a fish? A zipper opens the fish's back to reveal a compartment for bathing suit and cap. The mouth of the fish also opens to stow away money, vanity, and perhaps cigarettes. Scales are embroidered and fins and tail are of fringe.

STATE PLANS TO PUT MORE TEETH IN STOCK SWINDLE LAW

PROBE OF HUB RACKETEER FIRM IS ON

Backers of the New State St. House Are Said to Have Shady Records Elsewhere

consider suggestions toward putting more teeth in the so-called "blue sky" law.

Investigators for Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, who declares that "at least $50,000,000 has been taken annually from Massachusetts investors by swindlers," and the securities division, opened an official inquiry into the activities of a recently-organized State st. brokerage house, said to be manned by veteran stock "racketeers" with shady records in New York, Chicago and Montreal.

At the same time the Boston American Bureau learned that Fred J. Lane, who in 1925 was found guilty and sentenced to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of operating a "bucket shop," is again a licensed Boston broker engaged in selling stocks and securities.

CHANCE TO REDEEM

When the Lane information was presented to the securities commission, the officials admitted that he had been granted a new license months ago. After obtaining the license, Lane began business in an office at 131 State st.

Bureau officials explained that Lane had convinced the members of the Public Utilities Commission that his future conduct as a stock salesman would be above reproach and that he was entitled to a chance to redeem his name.

Lane, who had been the head of F. J. Lane & Company, was arraigned in Superior Court on August 27, 1925, with two associates, on charges of conspiracy and operating a bucket shop. Subsequently Lane was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction. The cases against his two associates were nolle-prossed.

On November 21, 1925, Lane's brokerage registration was revoked by the Public Utilities Department.

Prior to his return to Boston, about six months ago, Lane had been connected for the better part of two years with stock selling enterprises in New York city and Canada.

The brokerage house under investigation by the office of Atty.-Gen. Warner and Chief Inspector Silas Waite of the securities division was recently opened by a rapid-fire operator, who already had run afoul of the authorities of other New England cities.

This man gathered around him a staff of "salesmen," many of whom had been associated with promoters of notorious reputation.

TELEPHONE CANVASS

Obtaining the names of habitual investors from the publishers of tipster sheets, this broker started his salesmen on the usual preliminary telephone canvass.

It is known that he first spread confidence by dealing only in sturdy and legitimate industrial and utilities securities. It is his subsequent advice to his clients that interests the authorities.

The broker now has been ordered to submit to the securities division the names of all his clients, together with the names of the stocks and securities he has been trading.

Commenting on this investigation and the complaints pouring into the Boston Evening American, one official of the securities division admitted that suspected promoters, temporarily halted because of the depression that followed the fall of stocks last October, were again busy in Boston and throughout the State.

WANT LAW BOLSTERED

This new threat to gullible investors has encouraged the members of the Public Utilities Commission in the hope that Tuesday's public hearing will be fruitful of suggestions to the Legislature that will provide the securities division with additional power in the investigation and licensing of stock brokers and salesmen.

Director Hull has invited all citizens or organizations with ideas for amending the present act to be present at the meeting, which is scheduled to open at 10:30 a. m. in the Public Utilities Commission's rooms in the State House.

In the meantime, Kenneth B. Backman, manager of the Boston Better Business Bureau, is busy today putting the final touch on a 130-page report on the recent activity of stock racketeers which he will present to Atty.-Gen. Warner next week.

On receipt of the report, Atty.-Gen. Warner, together with the district attorneys of counties in which fraudulent promotion has been uncovered, will begin immediate prosecution.

Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley, who is sifting evidence of fraud in the Boston district, issued a statement urging all investors who may be doubtful of stock they have purchased or have been solicited to purchase, to take advantage of the assistance of the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau in investigating the stock.

"I heartily endorse the Boston Evening American's campaign. It should do tremendous good," Dist.-Atty. Foley said.

"As a rule the authorities are only informed of stock swindles after the victims have parted with their money and the crooks have gone to pluck from new fields. Complaints and information taken to the Boston Evening American and relayed to this office will receive immediate attention.

QUICK PROSECUTION

"If we can get the information quickly enough, the public will find that the juries in Suffolk County have little sympathy for fraudulent stock promoters.

"But I would like to warn all prospective stock buyers to investigate before they invest and to trade only through established brokers of high repute."

On Monday the Boston Evening American will publish the developments in the investigation into the activities of several brokers now under fire. On Monday the first of the stories of luckless investors in recent stock promotion plans will also be published.

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. Write to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, giving all the circumstances. Such information will be held confidential.

Brave Ocean in Tiny Boat

IN THIS LITTLE SCHOONER, only 37 feet long, Prof. Henry Blanco of Iowa State University, with his wife and daughter, sailed from Salem today on a vacation voyage to Spain, his native land. He will navigate by night and his wife by day.

3 SAIL IN 37-FT. BOAT FOR SPAIN

Salem, July 12—A learned husband, a serious-faced wife and their eager daughter of nine years, challenged the Atlantic today and sailed from here for Spain in a 37-foot schooner.

They were Prof. and Mrs. Henry Blanco of Iowa City, Iowa, with Evalu, the daughter.

Blanco, teacher of Spanish at the University of Iowa is on a year's leave of absence, some part of which he hopes to spend at Santander, Spanish summer resort.

More than 3500 miles of treacherous Atlantic tossed ahead of the little family when the two-masted craft pulled away from the foot of Glendale st., at 8:11 a. m., and a half hour later disappeared beyond Baker's island.

The little girl was the last figure seen. She stood on the after-deck, waving goodby to the slim crowd that gathered for the send-off.

The crowd was slim for lack of ado about the plans of the professor. In his own words, "It's my vacation trip, interesting only to myself."

The professor plans to navigate at night while his wife will take the helm during his sleeping hours.

The traditional 7's that make for luck on the sea, have surrounded the professor all his life, he explained. He sailed the seven seas seven years ago, ending a period of seven years and has taught the language of his forebears for another seven years.

The "Evalu," as the craft is named, was bought by him a month ago and was put into condition under the personal supervision of Prof. Blanco.

QUINCY GREETS OLD RESIDENTS FOR FETE

More Than 1000 Returning Home for Old Home and the Tercentenary Celebration

With the roar of 150 speed boat motors leaping into the first race in Quincy Bay at 11 o'clock, Quincy's brilliant Old Home Week and tercentenary ovservance program opened today.

Three major events will feature an entire week of celebrating. These include the spectacular historical pageant "Chickatabot," in which the entire city council plays parts, the community patriotic mass meeting tomorrow afternoon in Merrymount park and the great industrial exposition that demonstrates the progress of Quincy for the past 305 years. This fine exhibition of the city's industries might well be called, "From fur trading to commercial leadership around Quincy Bay."

Charles F. Adams, secretary of the navy, honor guest of the city, U. S. Senator David I. Walsh, orator for the great community patriotic mass meeting tomorrow afternoon, and Congressman Charles A. Eaton, with state and city officials, will take part in the program, which centers in Merrymount Park.

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath and the members of the City Council, and reception chairman, Col. Warren Sweetser, will escort the city's distinguished guests to the lower field in Merrymount for the community gathering tomorrow afternoon that lends the keynote to the whole week of jollification.

Fake Oil and Mining Stock Easy to Sell

before buying MY stock, of reporting previous buys to the authorities as a swindle.

Mining and oil stock buyers are the easiest people in the field to swindle. They believe anything. They are the gamblers whose instinct to play high, wide and handsome takes its outlet in stocks instead of on the horses, the turn of dice, or the flip of a card.

PROMISE OF GAIN

In their hearts is the primary guarantee of racketeer success—the hope of something for nothing, that makes them willing to buy even a promise, if that promise is sufficiently dazzling.

Gold mine stock of the racketeer type is sold always on the story of fabulous wealth. IF gold is found. Oil stock of this same type is always based on the story of a flood of gold IF oil is struck. The appeal is irresistible to the type who buy that type of stock—IF the sales argument is properly put.

A prominent physician in an eastern city was a stockholder in a mining company that had little more than its beautifully engraved stock certificates. I had been told that this doctor had money—and friends with money. My job was to "re-load" him, sell him more of the same worthless paper that he had already bought.

I visited him at his home.

TELLS OF "STRIKE"

I told him, in strictest confidence, that the company was ready to ship ore. I told him that the "strike" had been made. I told him that the ore was nearly all gold.

I told him that the president of the company had sent me to him because he was one of the early stockholders, the men who had helped carry on when things did not look so bright, and that the president wanted him to share in the vast profits that were now assured. I told him that he was one of a favored few of the old standbys of the company who were being let in on the ground floor before news of the gold strike became general and the stock soared to dizzy heights.

He swallowed the bait, hook, line and sinker. But he said he had no money. He was well known and had a fine practice. He had credit. I asked him if he would sign a note.

He did. I got the cash in a minute at his bank.

On the way home it occurred to me that I might have taken him for a bigger note.

WAKES HIM AT 2 A. M.

I waited until midnight. Then until two in the morning.

I got him out of bed, long distance.

"Doctor," I told him, my voice bursting with enthusiasm, "Doctor this is your friend Murphy—hooray!"

He didn't know what it was all about but he hoorayed back at me several times. Finally I told him that the ore was on the way to the smelter. As a personal favor to him I told him I had located $15,000 more stock for him because he had been such a great sport.

He told me he could not get the money before morning, but he would do it and wire it on to me the first thing after banking time. He did. I got the fifteen thousand dollars and the doctor got more wall paper.

I invented the racket of originally circularizing my sucker list with the flat statement that I had a pure gamble for them. I told them that being a gamble, I did not expect them to pay for all their stock at once. I told them they could get the stock delivered for 10 per cent of its price, then, if we struck oil, they would pay the other 90 per cent—for then they would have a "proven" proposition. If we did not strike oil they would pay nothing but that original 10 per cent.

That first come-one letter brought a flood of checks, money orders and cash. A follow-up order brought in more. Then, when I had about all I could get, I STRUCK OIL!

What a clean-up!

All I had to do was collect nine times as much as each sucker had sent in at first. Then I just moved my office.

The oil strike?

Oh, sure, we struck oil. A shallow well began to yield about 3 barrels a day—almost enough to pay the wages of the pump tender.

NETTED $600,000

That was the South American Oil Corporation. All together the cost of mailing out the literature, buying that three barrel well so the story of having struck oil would not be in violation of the postal laws, was approximately $60,000. The gross return on the deal—to the promoters was $1,500,000. Expenses of the "operators" in the Buenos Aires office and elsewhere cut into that a lot, but it netted about $100,000 each to the six of us in the venture. And it took only four months.

Honest as well as crooked oil ventures have an element of chance. There is no way on earth of telling when even a producing well may go dry. And the crooked oil promotion—well a hundred to one is liberal odds on any buyer getting his or her money back.

RULES FOR GUIDANCE

Again let me plead with the readers of this series:

DON'T be RUSHED into ANYTHING!

DON'T buy ANY security you do not know all about!

Above all, DON'T buy ANYTHING from a broker personally unknown to you!

DON'T let a PROMISE of something for nothing, or even much for little, topple over what good judgment tells you is a legitimate return on your money.

A savings bank is a safe place for a poor man's money.

Monday I'm going to tell you about the laws that are supposed to protect the trimmed from the trimmer and keep the trimmers on the run.

Those laws don't protect.

Monday I will tell you WHY.

Fear British Consul Victim of Drug Ring

Marseilles, France, July 12 (AP)—Police are investigating the theory of possible mysterious vengeance of drug-runners to explain the disappearance of Arthur Reginald Lee, British Vice-Consul and acting Consul General here. He vanished without a trace last Saturday night.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Among Boston's unsung heroes, who go about quietly doing good to their fellow men without ostentation or special praise, day in and day out, let me call the attention of your readers to Dr. Louis Ashulter, lifeguard at the L st. baths.

This young fellow is a medical student who takes a position during the summer months to help defray tuition expenses. Daily, he is called upon to bring into play his medical knowledge, by treating bathers who have cut themselves on the clamshells strewn along the beach. Time and again he has resuscitated half-drowned bathers that he has clutched from a watery grave and has administered expert first aid treatment.

Officer James McPhee, who is on duty at the bathhouse, tells me that since Dr. Louis, as he is known to the frequenters of the beach, has assumed his position, that no person has had to go to the hospital for treatment. Thereby, he not only does good work, but saves the city money.

Lauds Plan of Young Mellon to Be Printer

Editor Boston American:

The news in your paper stating that young Paul W. Mellon, son of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, heir to millions of dollars, drops the lure of money and will become a printer is refreshing.

He has thereby knocked the curse of leisure. This is much to his credit. It is against those young scions of wealthy families who assume that there is virtue in laziness.

They are dubs who see virtue in laziness.

They are, in a way, misfits in life. They produce nothing, they become, often, trouble makers, some dissipated or otherwise encumbrances, because they are not producers. This is the long and short of it. No one should depend entirely upon money to pave their way in life. They should depend upon themselves, upon their own wits and upon their ability to make their own results with no slavish reliance upon wealth which they can control.

Brockton Man Has Real Mark to Shoot At

Editor Boston American:

While expressing my delight about that pole sitter, Ralph D'Agostino, of Brockton, entering upon his 27th day in this trying position, he will be obliged to go some to excel this pole sitting by Daniel the Stylite of Constantinople, famous disciple of St. Simeon Stylites.

Daniel endured the ordeal for 33 years, long sunbeaten years in the climate along the shores of the Bosphorous.

Ralph! come down from your perch! You can't beat Daniel of Constantinople or St. Simeon Stylites who spent 30 years without coming down. Wulflacius a monk hugged his pilar about 585 but he afterwards destroyed it, because of lack of sympathizers.

Thanks American for Byrd Broadcast

Editor Boston American:

Thank God for the radio, the Boston American and all that took part in the wonderful broadcast of the Byrd reception on Boston Common. I heard Mayor Curley speak, the bands playing and the singing just as though I were sitting on the Common instead of being far up in New Hampshire.

Boston is my home but I am up here now with my sick husband, hit by a hit-and-run motorist that made his getaway. Words can't express my appreciation and thanks to the Boston American.

Ryan Comes to the Defense of India

Editor Boston American:

It is quite true as Harry D. Barton Hart points out, that India is split apart with sectarian strife—and the caste system, etc., therefore not ripe for localism. I hope that Mr. Hart will grant that I am not out to fight India's battle. The liberation of India has got to come from within.

In quoting Political Science I proved in my epistle that Mahatma Gandhi was so right that it hurts. The arrest of Gandhi will cause the Indians to close ranks and liberate themselves. I repeat again that India's apostle captures his policy from Thomas Jefferson, the Father of Local "Self Government" in America and throughout the world. India will be governed by the people who live in India.

Democracy and religion entwined in the same womb are one and inseparable. Thank you Mr. Hart.

Pleads With City to Give Children Even Break

Editor Boston American:

Why must children be the goat?

Forbidden by law to use the firecrackers which it seems store keepers are not forbidden to take their money for, forbidden to play on the streets and it seems that this even includes their own front-door space, the lawful prey of every meddlesome child hater who prefers to pick on someone smaller than they are, is it strange that Boston children find life growing daily less and less happy?

The writer is not defending juvenile crime, he is not pleading for defiance of any law, but he is asking the lords that be over the City Council to have a heart and decree something that will provide a little less opportunity for child haters to vent their spite on children.

If the persons who tell of the misdoings of children and who usually mix up the innocent with the guilty and charge the whole group with what the few may be doing were to be faced with the inevitable penalty of proving the guilt of the innocent ones whom they accuse—that would be something like simple justice.

It is generally known among normal human beings that children are children, and a normal human being despises the injustice of charging an innocent child with misdoings of the guilty any more than he would the so-charging of an adult—but the child hater is sub-normal—it can't rise to justice where children are concerned.

And the child-hater fairly gloats over the laws which have any possibility of being turned to his or her use—any little thing that can be used to give the child his first arrest and judging by the court—anything that they can use to make the child carry a memory of heartache that they can employ and smugly pose as upholders of Law and Order.

Turkish Women to Study Here

Editor Boston American:

The Turkish Government is thinking of sending two young women to Boston to be educated, according to a returned missionary who is now on a furlough in this state.

The first woman to be sent outside of Turkey by the government was Zehra Tahsin Hanoum, who has spent three years in Switzerland, taking a course in physical education. Now the physical education of Boston looms up before the Turkish government. No wonder, it has a world wide reputation. Missionaries in that country are its pioneers at Robert College, Constantinople.

He Says Stop Guessing at the Cause of Fires

Editor Boston American:

It is really remarkable how many people guess about the origin of fires, as if they really knew the causes of them. They feel that they must say something along this line and then resort to guessing.

No one should state the origin of a fire until they absolutely know it. I am glad to notice that Chicago's great fire did not start from that cow incident. But there was no other way to account for it, so they alighted upon this incident, drove a nail into it and fixed it for ever. Now someone has taken the nail out of it and a different version is being spread.

More fires in Boston are caused by arson than one often dares to reckon up. There are more mysteries about how fires started than about anything else. Let us keep up the mystery, but give up guessing until we know facts.

Lauds Editorial on New Drug Commission

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial commenting on the newly appointed drug commission is timely. I hope that you will refer to this matter constantly in your paper. It is necessary to have public interest in it. The more publicity you can give towards exposing this curse upon humanity, the more the work of the commission will be made effective.

For many years, the writer has dealt with dope fiends, at close range. Some of the most pathetic scenes with these afflicted ones has not led me to condemn, but to pity them. They belong to a class of sufferers that need help much more than railing at them.

There recently died in New York city one of the most noted men in a special art from this disease. It is a disease not a symptom of a disease. Let us give more time and thought to it. Give it all the publicity possible while rendering aid to these victims.

FAMILY SEE DAD SHOOT TWO

Turner, Me., July 12—In the presence of his wife and seven children, Charles Gauthier, a Gauthierville farmer today shot and wounded, probably fatally, his boyhood chum, Henry Niskanen, 47, and the latter's son Carl, 20.

The shooting took place at the Gauthier home and was surrounded by considerable mystery.

Gauthier, after whose grandfather the town was named, used two shotguns, and deputy sheriffs, rushing to the home in response to an appeal from Mrs. Gauthier, found Niskanen and his son lying side by side on the lawn outside the house.

The elder victim was shot through the stomach and his son received the full charge at close range in the chest.

Gauthier, who was arrested in bed, said he "wanted to get them out of the way."

Infantile Paralysis Total for July Is 71

Los Angeles, July 12 (AP)—Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, today announced five new cases of infantile paralysis here, bringing the total this month to 71, with six deaths. Fifty-eight cases and five deaths were reported in June.

PROBE OF BIDS ON SPEEDWAY THREATENS

Delay in Contract Award Reveals Rival Bidders in Same Family

Aroused by the delay of the State Department of Public Works in awarding the contract for the construction of a five-mile stretch of roadway in the middle section of the proposed high-speed traffic highway from Shrewsbury to Southboro, members of the Governor's Council have threatened to demand a thorough investigation.

Preliminary investigation has revealed that the two low bidders—Carlo Bianchi & Co. of Framingham and Framingham Roads Corp. of Framingham—are substantially the same firm. On bids in excess of $1,000,000 they varied little more than $300. The Bianchi company submitted a bid of $1,005,044, while the Framingham Roads Corp. submitted figures of $1,005,378.

Investigation by federal road building authorities disclosed that the president and treasurer of the Framingham Roads Corp., Ermelina E. Sullivan, is the daughter of Carlo Bianchi, head of the Carlo Bianchi & Co., while Helen C. Mulcahy, clerk and member of the board, and Teresa A. Wise, third member of the board, are stenographers in the law office of Frederick H. Hilton, who drew up the papers of incorporation.

The federal authorities, who distribute government aid funds in such road building projects, refused to sanction the public works department's preliminary award of the contract to Carlo Bianchi & Co. because of some difficulty in which the firm was involved with the State of Maine.

Meanwhile, members of the governor's council, eager to have work begun on the project as soon as possible so that some immediate relief may be provided for the unemployed, began to seek the reason for the delay and the gradual exposure of the details resulted.

CLERIC LOSES $35,000

most prostrated over the loss of the money, are equally worried over the publicity that will come to them in case the men who swindled them are arrested and the case is taken into court.

The minister, who heads one of the oldest and most dignified congregations in New England, first invested $10,000 with the stock salesmen. The clergyman's suspicions were aroused, however, and he finally went to the stock salesmen and told them he regarded the investment as unsound and asked that his money be returned.

The smooth-tongued gentlemen at once agreed, but only on condition that the clergyman invest the $10,000 and an additional $25,000 in another company in which the promoters were interested and which they painted as a gilt-edged, bona fide investment that would bring in handsome returns and make the minister and his family independent for their lives.

The minister investigated the second proposition in a manner that he regarded as thorough. He finally invested the $35,000, which he raised by disposing of practically all his other holdings.

"COMPANY" FAILS

A few weeks later the blow fell. The minister was informed that the company in which he had invested had gone into the hands of a receiver. The clergyman confided, in his anguish, to a member of his flock, who advised him to see the attorney-general.

The attorney-general's office at once uncovered facts which warranted a thorough investigation, and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Sawyer was ordered to probe the matter to the bottom.

It is known that a total of more than $100,000 is involved in the transaction, although none of the other persons who invested in the company have as yet filed a complaint.

Meanwhile, the clergyman, who is all but ruined unless some of his money is recovered, is performing his clerical duties in the hope that the State may find some means of taking the stock promoters and the officials of the defunct company into court.

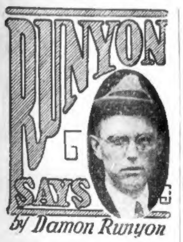
Gallant Fox Heavy Favorite in Classic Stakes



RUNYON SAYS

by Damon Runyon

New York, July 12 (US)—Some of the greatest fighters I ever saw were members of the lightweight division. One of them I sometimes think was absolutely the greatest fighter I ever saw in any division. Still, I have spells of thinking this or that fighter the greatest I ever saw.

As a matter of fact, there were about five fighters who held—and still hold—my unbounded admiration as first-class fighting men. I could easily vote for any one of them as the greatest. The lightweight I have in mind was Joe Gans.

He was a sepia-tinted scion of the City of Baltimore, where he had been an oyster shucker. The late "Tad" called him "The Old Master," giving rise to a title in sport that was subsequently applied to other figures of the game.

Gans was a wispy looking fellow, with a plaintive pucker between his eyes, as if he were ready to burst into tears on slight provocation. He boxed from the flat of his feet. His left hand was faster than a black cat's paw, and his right was a corker. Gans was a remarkable boxer, both on offense and defense. He was one of the greatest ring thinkers that ever lived.

He died of tuberculosis superinduced by making weight. The old lightweight deadline of 133 pounds wasn't comfortable for him. When he made it, he made it with a tremendous effort, and the effort finally sapped his strength.

Joe Gans Was a Super-Lightweight

You could scarcely speak of Mandell and Singer, who are contesting for Gans' old title next Thursday night, in the same breath with "the old master."

But then, Gans was a super-lightweight. Next to him in all-around ability I would place Benny Leonard, but many old-timers think George Lavigne, "the Saginaw Kid," belongs in that spot.

I have heard other veterans rate Jack McAuliffe above any lightweight that ever lived. But Jack was long before my time, and long before the time of most of the active ringworms of today.

He retired, still champion, and undefeated. After him, Benny Leonard retired, still holder of the title. Jack McAuliffe is hale and hearty today at the age of 64, and has no regretts. His last active year was 1892, though he afterward boxed a couple of exhibitions.

Battling Nelson, who whipped Gans for the title, wasn't very fancy, and I never cared much for his particular style, but there is no denying that he was a desperate fighting blade at his best.

Nelson could keep flailing away 'till the cows came home, apparently impervious to punishment, and absolutely tireless.

I don't hear the name of the little "Michigan Assassin" mentioned in the discussion of great lightweights, yet I thought Ad Wolgast was a cocking fighter for a couple of years.

Frank Erne Was Scientific Boxer

Another title holder who must have been a great fighter was Frank Erne. He was a highly scientific boxer, and he once beat Gans in 12 rounds. Later Gans took the title from him by a one-round knockout at Fort Erie.

There were some lightweights who never held the title yet who were close to greatness as fighters. Jimmy Britt of California, was one of these. He claimed the lightweight title for a time when it looked as if Gans wouldn't attempt the weight, but his claim was never authentic.

Dal Hawkins was undoubtedly one of the greatest left hookers that ever crawled through the ropes. No man has yet excelled him in the use of that particular punch.

George Elbows McFadden was a lightweight good enough to lick Gans, and Martin Flaherty, who still runs a training camp near Lowell, Mass., was a real good fighter.

Benny Leonard had a lot of tough competition when he was boss of the division just a few years back. Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia southpaw, headed the contention, but besides Lew there was Richie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, who came within the ace of taking Benny's title by a knockout.

Joe Welling, Rocky Kansas, Johnny Dundee, Joe Mandot, Irish Patsy Cline and Joe Benjamin were some of the boys contemporaneous with Benneh. They were tough young men, if anybody drives up and asks you. They could all make the lightweight limit without trouble, and they were always looking for battle.

In my opinion, a fighter's competition is the measure of his greatness, and Leonard, like Gans and Wolgast, had plenty of real competition during the greater part of his lightweight career.

JONES TAKES EARLY LEAD IN OPEN

he four strokes back of the Atlantan at the end of the 45th hole, while Johnny Farrell with a 37 was two strokes back of Armour.

Charlie Lacy, who was tied with Bobby at the end of the first 36 holes, blew wide open this morning, using up 42 strokes to reach the turn.

Jones' card:
Out .... 4 4 3 4 3 3 3 4 5—33
In 4 4 4 3
Armour:
Out .... 5 4 2 5 3 3 4 4 5—35
Farrell:
Out .... 5 4 3 5 3 3 4 5 5—37
Lacey:
Out .... 3 5 2 5 4 5 4 5 7—42

Jones started with par 4's on the first two holes, his par the first being achieved in spite of an iron that didn't quite get home, following a long, accurate tee shot. Bobby chipped dead with his third to par the hole.

He pulled his drive off the line and into the rought at the second. The ball was well down in the hollow, off the farway, but Jones seemed to give it scant attention as he stepped quickly up to the shot and hit it full to the pin, 10 feet away. Then he just missed the putt for a birdie.

Jones got another par at the 180-yard third, where he was hole high from the tee and down in two putts for his 3. His first putt ran a bit past the cup and he had to down a trick 2-footer, coming back.

Went Two Under Par at Seventh

Bobby became 2 under par, going to the seventh birdie at fourth and sixth. At the former, he smote two long wood shots booming down the fairway, yet was short of the green. This left him a mashie-niblick pitch, which he hit six feet from the pin, and he calmly holed the putt to clip a stroke off par.

The fifth saw him miss the green with his tee shot but he chipped 25 feet to with 3 feet of the pin and held the putt for a par.

At the sixth, he lashed out a tremendous drive of 300 years, and his approach was a thing of beauty. It cut in off the right corner of the green and rolled to with three feet of the flag. When he sank the putt a festive, sweltering gallery of 5000 went mad. Bobby, for the first time during the tournament, was playing typical Jones golf.

Meantime, another birdie was giving wing out of Bobby Jones' cage of tricks. This came at the seventh, where another great tee shot left him a pitch of less than 50 yards. The ball, however, caught a roll of the fairway and finished in the short rough. This only served to inspire the man to miracles, for he dug down after the ball with a heavy iron and pitched so close to the flag that, for a moment, many that he was going to hole out. Then he tapped the ball in for a 3.

Having acquired consecutive birdies, Bobby went into a slump and all he could do at the eighth was par. He placed his drive beautifully to the left of the traps, 120 yards from the pin. His iron was well hit and it stopped 12 fet away, giving him a putt for another birdie, which he almost got, the ball hanging on the brink of the cup.

Another par off Jones' putter at the tenth, where he boomed one down the fairway 285 yards and pitched home with his approach for a 4. Of the 10 holes played Bobby had been in the rough once and then only because his well-hit drive failed to hold the fairway.

John Hancock Nine Wins 10th Straight

John Hancock Insurance Company won its 10th straight game in the Insurance League by shutting out Fireman's Fund, 6 to 0, at Healy playground.

Don Wilson of the Hancocks allowed only two hits and struck out seven. Bayne had a perfect night at bat with three hits in as many trips to the plate.

In the other game Boston Insurance Company trounced Field & Cowles, 7 to 1. Reis held the losers to three hits, while the winners hammered out 11, including a triple and two singles by Crosby and two doubles by Gallagher.

Fate Smiles on Bobby Jones at Difficult Ninth Hole

By GENE SARAZEN

Former National Open and Professional Champion

Written Exclusively for Universal Service, Inc.

Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, Minn., July 12 (US)—If Bobby Jones wins this scorching battle of Interlachen he can look back to the ninth hole of the second round and thank the kindly fates that enabled him to transform a seven into a four.

Bobby may come through and make his third big victory of the year, but I doubt it now. Jones isn't happy. And he isn't out in front. It seems to me that the stage is set for another of those interesting playoffs that we have been having frequently in regent years.

I wouldn't be surprised if Jones and Horton Smith entangled in a playoff after having tied at 291. I believe this will be the winning score in spite of the sensational low marks that were recorded on the first two rounds of this hottest of all national opens.

Smith played marvellous golf today and it seemed to me that he struck the fancy of the crowd. At the end he had almost as large a gallery as Jones. Horton's 70 put him two shots out in front of Bobby. This may not be enough for Horton to win with, but I do think it will at least tie for him.

Smith went to the turn in 33, against Bobby's 34. This placed him on even terms, the Atlantan having led the Missourian a stroke after their first round.

On the incoming hole Smith clearly outplayed Jones. At times his golf fairly sparkled. He completed the last nine in 37 or one over par. This is hot golf, for that last nine was very tough today.

But to get back to Bobby's great break at the ninth hole. After a fine drive, Bobby played an iron across the lake and topped it. The ball flew low, hit the water and skipped to the other side.

Taking advantage of this break, Jones played his next dead to the pin and holed out for a birdie four. When he had been penalized he would have been entitled to no less than a six or seven.

The scoring for the first two rounds has been low. Smith can break 290 if he gets a 74 and a 73. He may succeed in doing this but I'm afraid that the deadly pressure of those last two rounds today will make this a tough task.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Horton Smith, by his brilliant 70 in the second round of the open, showed Jones and the rest of the troupe of golf greats that they must fight today if they are to hope for the open crown.

The two rounds today will tell the story. Horton Smith is a youngster, but his courage and poise can enable him to hold his two-stroke advantage over Jones to the finish. Bobby of Atlanta ought to do well today, however.

And Walter Hagen, who should not choke up under pressure, is only five strokes back of Smith. The finals will produce some of the most determined battling ever shown in a U. S. open tournament.

Jack Healy showed that he is a real competitor by his sensational finish yesterday against Bill Donnelly and Gerard Moore at Winchester. Although Healy's putt for the birdie which won the match stood out in the minds of most of the gallery, it was the 10-footer he stopped on the 18th that was the tough one to get, for the pressure was on full force.

Although tournaments at the Winchester Country Club are always run with the utmost efficiency, C. Harry Bowler turned in his banner event this week. From start to finish, the four-ball invitation functioned perfectly, without the slightest sign of a slip.

When it comes to playing golf in the semi-darkness, Charlie Crowley and Joe Hern of Wollaston are in a class by themselves, due to their almost daily training at their home course. They finished in the dark at Winchester during the consolation event and were two under fours for the last five holes.

Eddie Murphy has aparently recovered from the slump he has been in most of this season. Eddie has now wisely decided to stick to one form and perfect that, instead of shifting every time he connects with a poor shot.

Chick Connolly wil lead his New England professional golfers' organization out to Sandy Burr on Monday for a 36-hole amateur-pro tournament.

The first annual Engineers Club Golf Association tournament will be held at Sandy Burr next Friday. Together with a members and guest golf tournament, Jimmie Travers has arranged a series of athletic events. It will be an all-day affair.

Although C. Searles Reed and Heine Reeves, two former Harvard baseball stars, put together a better ball of 73 in the semifinals at Winchester, they were eliminated.

Harry Crowley has opened his Tom Thumb course at Bayside and the play is heavy every evening, for there are numerous golfers summering at Hull.

It will be to the advantage of the contenders for State amateur honors to acquaint themselves thoroughly with Salem before the qualifying rounds next Wednesday.

Although the thermometer registered 100 at Interlachen during the first day of the United States open championship, Willie MacFarlane, who should know, admitted that it was hotter at Worcester the day he beat Bobby Jones for the title.

Jack Healy has greatly improved his game during the past year. He is working on a short game and, if he is successful, he will take his place with the best in the game.

By the way, Jack Healy received noticed from Harvard that he had successfully passed his entrance examinations, and would be admitted with the incoming freshman class. The golfers have their eyes on Healy, but that will be about the limits of the claims, for Eddie Farrell will nail the Lowell boy for his track team. Healy is a fine shot putter and weight man.

Fuller-Lynch End Training Today

Sammy Fuller, Italian idol of the North End, and Billy Lynch of Providence, lightweight champion of Rhode Island, are to finish training today for their 10-round battle at Marks Stadium, Tiverton, R. I., on Monday night.

Hundreds of local boxing enthusiasts will make the 50-mile trip to Tiverton to watch a bout which has attracted more interest in southern New England than any bout in recent times.

Lloyd's Gives 5 to 1 Against Jones

London, July 12 (US)—The people who backed Bobby Jones to win both British amateur and open golf crowns at the prevailing odds won so much money from Lloyd's and a private syndicate of English brokers that the losers are now trying to recoup by giving odds of 4 and 5 to 1 that the Atlantan cannot corral both American titles.

It was reported from New York today that Lloyd's had accepted a wager of $2300 at odds of 100 to 1 against Bobby's taking all four titles, but Lloyd's reported no official record of such a transaction. The odds suggested were fantastic—Jones is too great a player ever to call for odds above 5 to 1.

Much American money supporting Jones is on tap in London even at those short odds, but any considerable wagers are either made privately or the pool is so large that the sum would not bear announcement, brokers fearing their interests would be hurt.

COURT TOURNEY DRAW TODAY

The draw for the 38th annual Longwood Bowl singles tournament, which commences on Monday at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, will be made at the clubhouse today at two o'clock.

Entries closed yesterday afternoon. The entries for the doubles and women's tourney will not close until Monday afternoon, for these tourneys do not get under way until Tuesday.

Only 64 entries will be accepted for the Bowl singles tournament. Making a draw and selecting the seeded players in the singles will prove quite a task for Irving C. Wright, chairman, and his committee.

For all the top-flight players are on the Continent and, though there are a number of good players coming to Longwood next week, they are not as well known nor as consistent in their performances as Bowl entries in past years.

150 Outboard Motorboats Race in Quincy Bay Today

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The big water splash of the week will come today when more than 150 types of outboard motor craft skip around Quincy bay at the opening of Quincy's Tercentenary celebration.

There will be at least 80 nationally known outboard speed drivers in the craft in the Quincy Bay regatta, some of the drivers coming from points as distant as Palm Beach and Milwaukee.

The course to be run will be rectangular, two and a half miles, and stretching along the Wollaston boulevard from Atlantic to Merrymount.

Starting at 11 a. m., the races will feature, among other famous drivers, J. E. Wilkinson of Boston, winner of the Albany Marathon; Lowell Preston of Penn Yan, New York, and the New York State champion; Nelson McKenzie of Wakefield, Division 1 amateur champion; Marshall Eldridge of Boston, holder of the world competition in Classes B, C and D, and Ross Maddocks of Cambridge, holder of the Class I speed record.

A total of $2000 in cash prizes and several State tercentennial trophies will be awarded.

Eddie Morris Heads Committee in Charge

The committee in charge includes Commodore Eddie Morris of the Massachusetts Bay Association; Douglas Yule, chairman of the speedboat race committee, and Judges Frank Wigglesworth, Fred Bowditch, Morton Cleale, Chester Mellish, James N. Sullivan, S. E. Lawrence and L. M. Crowther.

The races will finish at 4 o'clock and will be followed by a dinner at the Wollaston club, with a band concert from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. on the Wollaston boulevard.

Red and green fire will be in evidence from Moonhead along the shores of Squantum, Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston, Merrymount, Hough's Neck and Weymouth, preceded by the aerial bombs from the bay.

PRINCETON AND CORNELL WIN

Stamford Bridge, London, July 12 (AP)—The combined track and field team of Cornell and Princeton Universities defeated Oxford and Cambridge in their annual international track and field meet here today.

The Americans won by a score of seven first places to five in a close and interesting contest. It was American superiority in the dashes, hurdles, shotput and pole vault that carried the day.

Oxford and Cambridge were strong in the longer runs and the jumps, scoring clean sweeps of first and second places in the mile and half-mile, winning the two-mile event and also taking the running high and running broad jumps.

Cornell and Princeton achieved victory with a well-balanced lineup that took seven seconds as well as seven firsts in the 12 events, but the meet was much more thrilling and hard-fought than that of last year in the United States.

SUMMARIES STAMFORD BRIDGE

220-Yard Low Hurdles—Won by C. E. Scarlett, Princeton; second, M. N. Tisdall, Cambridge; third, J. W. Lincoln, Princeton; fourth, R. K. Brown, Cambridge. Time 24 7-10 seconds. (Equals English record set by Lord David Burghley in 1927.)

Two-Mile Run—Won by C. W. Benson, Cambridge; second, E. B. Pattison, Cornell; third, S. B. Levering, Cornell; fourth, J. R. Croggon, Cambridge. Time, 9 minutes, 42 seconds.

Running Broad Jump—Won by R. W. Bevans, Cambridge; second, R. C. Williams, Cornell; third, C. W. Sommerill, Princeton; fourth, W. T. Sartain, Cambridge. Distance, 23 feet, 1 3-4 inches.

Praises Expose of Boxing Racket

"Jack Conway's articles pertaining to the boxing racket are to the point and of the rip-roaring variety.

"There is an abundance of truth is every word he mentions.

"Fouls here, fouls there, and you win in Boston, I win in New York. You win in Philadelphia, I win in Chicago, etc., among the boxers is of the sickening variety, and no wonder the public is getting disgusted with the whole thing.

"Promoters, managers and fighters ought to be on the level, as there is more money in the boxing game for them in a year than they can garner by real labor in ten years—and they shouldn't kill the goose that lays golden eggs.

Opposed to the new superhorse, which has won the Woods Memorial stake, the Preakness, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes and the Dwyer Stakes in the last 60 days, will be a field of 10 other 3 year olds.

The other 10 are Gallant Knight, second choice in the betting; Ned O., three crack fillies, Snowflake, Dustemall and Alcibiades, without much doubt the three best of their age and sex in the country; High Foot, Flaming, Dark Entry, Cesare and Maya.

The stake is $60,000 in added money, with a $10,000 bonus for the winner if he was previously victor in the Kentucky Derby, American Derby, Preakness or Belmont stakes. Gallant Fox is the only one eligible to win the extra $10,000.

A crowd of 50,000 or more persons is expected to view the classic. Gallant Fox was at 2 to 5 in the betting overnight. When he goes to the post at 5 o'clock this afternoon he may be at 1 to 3 or 1 to 10, according to indications.

Owner Woodward was modest in his comment on the Fox's chances, saying merely, "I hope he will run a good race."

Jockey Sande was more expressive. He grinned and asked, "Who can beat us?"

The entries, weights, jockeys and owners follow:
1—Flaming, 118, no boy, Wheatley Stable.
2—Ned O., 121, C. Quattlebaum, G. M. Foreman.
3—Alcibiades, 116, J. Smith, H. P. Headley.
4—High Foot, 121, R. Deperent, Valley Lake Stable.
6—Snowflake, 118, L. Schaefer, W. J. Salmon.
7—Dark Entry, 121, W. Fronk, H. P. Headley.
8—Gallant Knight, 123, H. Schutte, Audley Farm Stable.
9—Cesare, 121, no boy, W. R. Coe.
10—May A., 121, no boy, W. R. Coe.
11—Dustball, 116, R. Workman, H. P. Whitney.

DIAMOND PICKUPS

Small wonder Walter Johnson is sweet on Irving "Bump" Hadley of Lynn. The ace of the Senators' staff comes close to being the best pitcher in either league right now and gives promise of becoming another Johnson before many more seasons roll around.

He has as much speed as any hurler in the game and when he acquires a little more control and is able to use his "hard" one a little more often, he should be invincible.

Jimmy Shevlin and Gene Desautels of Holy Cross are seeing plenty of action with the Detroit Tigers these days. Desautels is taking his regular turn behind the plate and Shevlin relieves big Dale Alexander at first base quite frequently. It looks now as though both boys would be retained

Neither Shevlin nor Desautels received half the publicity while at Holy Cross as did such players as Ownie Carroll, Harry Nekola, Warren Cote, Walter Gautreau and "Chick Gagnon, all of whom had to go to the minors for more experience. In fact Desautels couldn't win the regular catching berth at Mount St. James until his senior year. Proving it's ability and not publicity that counts.

Dan Howley is beginning to get results with his Cincinnati Reds. Slowly, but surely, Weymouth's favorite son is discarding the deadwood, and his team gets better all the time. He won't get any place this season, but watch out for him next year.

Babe Herman, Lefty O'Doul and Ike Boone, three of the heaviest hitters in the National League this season, used to be members of the Red Sox. They would look sweet in the Fenway lineup today.

The rest of the magnates laughed at the suggestion of Judge Fuchs, Tribal boss, that the authority of umpires be curbed, when he offered it at the joint meeting last winter. They probably think better of it now, and the judge should present it again this year.

Boxing Board Warns Against Setups in Boston Rings

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

ORDERS CLUBS TO SUBMIT CARDS BEFORE MAKING ANY ANNOUNCEMENTS

By JACK CONWAY

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today issued an order to every boxing club in the state not to announce any ring match until contracts have been signed and the contest has been approved by the ring board. This action was taken as a result of the Boston Evening American's preliminary expose of conditions in the boxing game.

The boxing solons are much incensed over the recent bout between Victorio Campollo and Salvatore Ruggirello which was staged by the Boston Garden at Braves Field. Campollo won by a knockout in three rounds, after having been on the floor himself in the first round.

Jack Conway

This match was announced in the newspapers before the Commission knew it had been arranged.

It has been a practice with Massachusetts boxing clubs to arrange shows, announce them in the newspapers, and on the day before the contest is advertised to be held ask the Commission's approval of the bout.

By the time the bout is officially called to the attention of the Commission tickets have been sold and people have made arrangements to attend what may be only a setup affair.

The Commission has had a rule on its books for some time which required promoters to submit matches to them before they were announced. But until now it has never been enforced. This has made it easy for promoters to foist third and fourth rate attractions on the public.

RUGGIRELLO KAYOED

Ruggirello had never shown in a Boston ring before he was matched with Campollo. A few weeks previous he had been knocked out by Marty Gallagher in New York. Gallagher was never rated above the semi-final class in Boston.

It was natural to suppose that Campollo, considered one of the world's leading heavyweights, would not have any trouble stopping Ruggirello. The bout terminated as expected.

The Commission also says it will block any attempt on the part of Boston promoters to feature Primo Carnera, who was suspended in California and in New York following his bout with Bombo Chavelier. There have been numerous attempts made to bring the Italian heavyweight here for matches with third and fourth raters.

"The Massachusetts Boxing Commission will not permit Carnera to meet a "diver" in this city," said Commissioner Eugene Buckley today. "We are wise to the way the Italian's managers have been feeding him with setups.

"Two different boxing clubs have asked the Commission what our attitude would be in regard to allowing Carnera to box here. We have told them that Jim Maloney and Ernie Schaaf are the only men we shall consider as opponents for the big Italian.

"Carnera does not seem to care to fight either Maloney or Schaaf for some reason of his own. It was suggested that we allow Primo to meet Bud Gorman. The latter has been knocked out frequently, and is not the type of opponent who should be pitted against Carnera.

"The Commission intends to keep the fakers and stallers out of Massachusetts."

CALL BOXERS FAKERS

The New York Commission also recognized the evils pointed out by the Boston Evening American when James A. Farley, chairman of the board, declared that most fighters claiming foul are "fakers or quitters."

Meanwhile the boxing game has been wrecked in the same cities and towns of New England by matches of the setup variety.

Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester, Providence, Woonsocket, Portland, Lewiston, Manchester, Biddeford and other spots which once drew large crowds to ring contests have fallen under the boxing blight.

Star boxers have been permitted to take professional divers or setups into these spots and knock them over in two or three rounds.

Maine and Rhode Island were formerly under the control of New York boxing interests. They would often ship two boxers into some small city and town and collect from both ends of the match.

The desire of the fans in the small towns to see highly advertised ring men, paved the way for the promoters to use first-class men against professional divers who couldn't fight fast enough to keep themselves warm.

Professional divers are guaranteed to lose. They usually place a three-round limit on their efforts.

Star boxers also take the precaution to see that the diver is of such an inferior quality that he would be unable to win even if he attempted to do a little double-crossing.

DIVERS DO WELL

The divers ply their trade well. They take as few punches as possible, make a couple of wild swings and then pick up a soft spot on the canvas.

The fans who go to see the highly advertised boxer in a bout against a "leading challenger" leave the club in disgust. They become enemies of the boxing game. In a later article I will tell just how these "diving" matches are arranged.

Tiger Flowers and Young Stribling have been the leaders of these barnstorming tours. These men hit almost every tank town in the country. At times they have been opposed by men who at one time acted as their own sparring partners. But in all cases when they went on a tour through the sticks they were in there with men who didn't have a chance of licking them.

The only ones to take a licking were the fans who paid in good money at the box office to see a fight.

Jack Conway will have another article on "The Inside Story of the Boxing Racket" in Monday's Boston Evening American. It will reveal how Gene Tunney, retired undefeated world's heavyweight champion, agreed to give Boo Boo Hoff 20 per cent of his ring earnings the day before the first Dempsey-Tunney bout in Philadelphia.

Rosenbloom and Walker to Fight

New York, July 12 (INS)—Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker, wearer of the middle weight crown, will meet in the Civic Auditorium in Atlantic City on August 30, according to tentative arrangements announced today. Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, said actual signing of contracts was all that remained to make the anouncement official.

Kearns said Walker would receive 60 per cent of the gate and Rosenbloom would be guaranteed $60,000.

The Atlantic City arena seats 50,000.

HIGH AND LOW SPOTS IN COLORFUL CAREER OF JACK DEMPSEY

AT THE END OF HIS CAREER! Dempsey is depicted on one knee after being knocked to the canvas by Gene Tunney in the eighth round of their bout. In the previous session Dempsey knocked Tunney down for the famous long count. Gene then came back to win and hold his title.

M'COY IS PRISON FIRE CHIEF

San Quentin, Cal., July 12 (INS)—Norman Selby, better known as Kid McCoy, former world's boxing champion, today was the proudest convict in San Quentin prison.

Sitting jauntily at the wheel, McCoy, who is chief of the prison fire department, directed tests of a new $7000 fire pumping engine.

Several other convicts, including Matt Schmidt, life termer and bomber of the Los Angeles Times building, aided McCoy in "breaking in" the apparatus, which was purchased by the state prison board as a part of its new fire prevention program.

The fire engine was ordered immediately after the holocaust which swept the Columbus (O.) penitentiary recently.

"Ain't she a honey!" exclaimed McCoy, as he took the engine for a "spin" within the walls.

It is an unwritten law of the convict fire department that each of its members be serving a term for murder.

McCoy and his two chief assistants are on the job 24 hours a day, sleeping in the fire house instead of their cells. They are rated as "trusties."

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

At a point about half way back with the back swing, or possibly a little short of that, is one spot in your back swing which must be watched, since here you can very easily fall into swing faults. Just at this point is where your turning begins to pull against your left side. Now your body muscles, which doubtless are unaccustomed to twisting and turning as called for in the golf swing, will lazily resist it, and pivoting will be arrested at that point. Then he player will swing his arms directly upward, his body staying where it stopped turning, and he makes what appears to be a good swing, but which is nevertheless an ineffective one. Such an action will be choppy and will result in topping and half topping the ball. The club is chopped down too directly onto the ball. It must instead swing in from behind the ball. To avoid this, draw your hands across the right toe, keep the left wrist in its depressed position—"cocked"—and make the palm of your right hand be turned more away from you at the top of the back swing.

DRAW HANDS ACROSS RIGHT TOE HANDS AT TOP—

By long odds the most satisfying shot in golf is the drive, and many hold it to be the most useful shot. Chester Horton's new monograph almost guarantees you a good grasp. This fine instruction will be sent free. Address Chester Horton, care this newspaper, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Ask for the monograph, "Driving."

COURT FINAL IN R. I. TODAY

Providence, July 12—E. W. Feibleman of New York and Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore, top seeded players in the Rhode Island grass court tennis championships, will battle for the title today and for the honor of being the first to gain a leg on the new cup which is up for competition this year.

Feibleman defeated Phil Neer of San Francisco in a four-set semifinal match, and Jacobs was carried to a fight of the same length to down young Sidney B. Wood, Jr., lately of California and now of New York.

Wood came back to the courts after a heavy shower had fallen to pair with Harold Blauer of New York in a New England sectional doubles semifinal victory over Feibleman and J. Brooks Fenno, intercollegiate champions in 1922.

Malcolm T. Hill and Henry L. Johnson, first seeded team in the doubles, advanced to the final round by defeating Ted Burwell and Henry Culley, 7—5, 6—1, 7—5.

Amateur Fights at Somerville Tuesday

Next Tuesday evening, the Somerville City Employes' A. A., will stage another open air amateur boxing tournament, with competition in the 112, 135, 160 and heavyweight classes, and the 147 pounds class reserved for novices.

From all indications, the heavyweight class will provide the feature bouts of the evening. Al Dean, Boston; Homer Blemish, Dorchester and Chester Linaire, Medford, entered; should provide the fans with plenty of action.

The entry of Henry J. Surette, of Dorchester, has also been received.

Entries for this tournament should be forwarded to R. I. Merrick, 70 Craigie st., Somerville.

Pleon Yacht Club Holds Title Races

The Pleon Yacht Club sailed the first of a series of championship races at Marblehead yesterday with a fleet of 25 yachts starting in five classes.

The winner in the Herreshoff S class was George Uptons' Sandust, in the Triangle class, E. A. Onthank's Pronto, in the M. B. class, J. M. Hunnewell's Endeavor, and in the T class, Mary Haskell's Sinbad.

The three larger classes were given a seven and a half mile course with a windward leg to the inner southerly mark, and a spinnaker run home.

Notes of the Sandlots

Bill Clancy, who recently pitched a one to nothing game at St. Johns, N. B., while hurling for Dorchester, is now with Falmouth in the Cape Cod League. Bill will prove a valuable man to that team for he's a good sticker and can play the outfield.

Pete Herman, captain of the Boston College ball team last summer, is now managing the Chatham club and has assembled a good ball team.

In his infield he has Walter Kelson who was up with Pittsfield. Rip Conway, once of the Blackstone Valley League, and Arthur Gore, formerly with Jersey City. On his pitching staff Pete has Fred Lovely, formerly with Nashua in the N. E. League and Jim O'Conner, a teammate at Boston College.

Patsy Donovan, who used to be a large league manager, is in charge of the Orleans Club. Joe Concannon, of the famous Dorchester family of ball players, is one of Patsy's best. Red Rolfe and Lauri Myllyhangas of Dartmouth are also on his roster.

Semi-pro baseball fans of Lynn are in for a treat today when the re-organized Lynn Cornets renew warfare with the Dorchester team of the Twilight League. Lynn has missed its baseball since the N. E. League was forced to give in because the fans wouldn't come in.

Mayor Fred Manning will be on hand to toss out the first ball in the Cornet-Dorchester encounter and a real opening game, with other festivities, is planned.

Tilden in Dutch Net Semi-Finals

Amsterdam, July 12 (INS)—Big Bill Tilden, who staged his greatest comeback in tennis history by winning the Wimbledon men's single title last week, was ready today to annex the Dutch net title to his list of championships. He entered the semi-finals yesterday by defeating Van Der Feen of Holland.

NOTRE DAMES IN HUB TWI BILL

The Notre Dames of Roxbury have been admitted to the Hub Twi League and will open the second half race against Jamaica Plain Board of Trade at the Murphy field, Carolina ave., tomorrow afternoon. The Roxbury team is one of the most colorful semi-pro teams in Greater Boston and has five brothers, the Walshes, in its roster.

Since Revere knocked the Hopedales of Allston out of the race for first half honors, the big scrap between Newton Upper Falls and the Somerville City Club this afternoon will be the most important game of the half.

Hyde Park couldn't get its club together to meet Somerville last evening and had to forfeit the game, but Manager Nelson of the Hyde Park team will have a strong aggregation at Newton Upper Falls tomorrow afternoon.

Besides the Roxbury-Jamaica Plain game tomorrow and the Hyde Park clash at Newton, Somerville will take the trip to Curtis Park, Revere. Revere intends to handle Somerville the same way it did Allston and spoil the chances Manager Cosgrove's Somerville nine has of finishing at the top.

The game between Mt. Hope and Allston will be a charity game for First Baseman Cunniff of the Mt. Hope team who has had four of his children in the hospital and who recently received a bad spike wound which is keeping him out of the lineup.

Braves Open Home Stay

CHICAGO TEAM AFTER FIRST PLACE BERTH

By JOE CASHMAN

Joe McCarthy's champion Chicago Cubs reached first place in the National League race a year ago today and were never headed thereafter.

The Bruins, who open a four-game series with the Braves at the Wigwam this p. m., can't possibly reach the top today, but they can, and intend to, before leaving the Hub.

Joe Cashman

If you don't think so, listen to Pilot Joseph of the Buffalo McCarthys.

"It's time we went out in front to stay," declares Mac. "It's O. K. to trail during the first half of a season but it's best to set the pace during the second half rather than wait until the last minute to jump into the lead.

"I have told my boys to take the lead as soon as possible, and they have promised to do so.

"I am confident that they will succeed before leaving Boston, providing New York and Pittsburgh have any success against the league-leading Brooklyn Robins.

"They have beaten the Braves in eight out of ten games to date and though the Tribe is playing good ball right now, they should manage to gain the edge in the coming series.

"That won't put us on top, of course, unless Brooklyn loses a few and we may be forced to wait until we tackle the Robins.

McCarthy Sure Cubs Going to Top Soon

"Whatever happens, though, I feel certain that the Cubs will be leading the parade before seeing Wrigley Park again.

"There are no better teams in the circuit and our class is bound to tell eventually, if not almost immediately."

Mister McCarthy may sound rather boastful and over-confident, yet you can't blame him after looking over his lineup.

With such stars as Hack Wilson, Hazen Cuyler, Riggs Stephenson, Charlie Grimm, Gabby Hartnett, Woody English, Pat Malone, Charlie Root, Sheriff Blake and Guy Bush, among others, at his beck and call, a manager has every right to be as confident as he jolly well pleases.

The champions aren't as strong as last year. The loss of Rogers Hornsby, baseball's greatest hitter, and Hal Carlson, a winning pitcher, has robbed the team of far more strength than the return of Gabby Hartnett, crack catcher who was out all last year with a sore arm, has added to it.

Yet, on paper, at least, they are still the class of the league, and with McCarthy, one of the game's few really great pilots, leading them, it will be one of modern sport's greatest upsets, if they fail to win again with room to spare.

The Braves probably think so, too, but that doesn't mean that the natives expect to be slaughtered for the next four days.

On the contrary, they are determined to do no worse than split even with the invaders and even have hopes of gaining the edge.

"The Cubs have been very successful against us to date," said Manager Bill McKechnie today, "but that doesn't say that they are going to continue to beat us regularly.

"We have ambitions to get into the first division during our stay at the Wigwam and we don't intend to let the Cubs or any other rival stop us."

The Cubs are very silent regarding Rogers Hornsby.

It was reported in Chicago last week that he and Manager Joe McCarthy were at odds and that he would never again play for the team.

Club officials and Hornsby emphatically denied the report and the player added that he expected to be back in the lineup before long.

Neither rumors or denials mean much in baseball. This one may or not be true. It will be impossible to decide until late in the month, when Hornsby should be back at second base for the champions, if he is ever coming back.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

OVER THE PLATE

By JOE CASHMAN

The major leagues' ultimatum to the five non-draft minor circuits that the latter must accept the system has resulted in rumors of another baseball war.

It is hinted that the International, Pacific Coast, Western and Three I Leagues and the American Association will start a third "big time" circuit should the National and American Leagues go through with their threat to neither take players from nor send players to the quintet of "outlaw" organizations, unless they enter the draft fold.

Whatever the outcome of the argument, it can be set down that no war will start. That's out of the question.

All the minor leagues are having enough trouble keeping the wolf from the door as it is. It would be suicide for them to try to battle the majors at present. They know it and won't make the attempt.

The majors know it, too. That's probably why they decided to go after the "outlaws" at this time.

The opposing parties will, in all probability, arbitrate and reach an agreement, just as they have done annually for the past ten years.

If the majors refuse to back down on any of their demands, however, it is difficult to see how the minors can do anything but surrender, even though the terms may be unjust.

"OUTLAWS" ARE WEAK

None of the "outlaw" organizations can hope to survive, if the majors sever all business connections with them.

It may be true, as they are alleged to contend, that if the majors ignore them, several of the "outlaw" clubs might become as strong as the best of the big league teams, but that wouldn't enable them to pay players as much as they could get in fast company.

And said players would jump to the majors, if offered the dough, which they undoubtedly would be, and the minors would have to quit.

A few "angles," of course, such as made the Federal League possible, would enable the little fellows to worry the big league magnates for a while.

If the "outlaws" were prospering, they might get the backing for such a costly fight. They claim to be, but the fact that many of them are experimenting with night baseball proves that they are not, and, under the circumstances, it would be a miracle if they could dig up the money necessary to defy the majors.

They might suffer somewhat if they agreed to the majors' demands. Then again, they might be better off.

They feel that they would lose their chance to sell players for fancy prices should they accept the draft.

GOOD FEATURES TO DRAFT

They would lose a few thousand dollars in some cases, but the bidding for the outstanding stars would be just as active and high, draft or no draft.

And they would get more promising talent, if they adopted the draft.

College, school and sandlot players who have big league ambition and can't get a tryout in the big show these days usually tie up with a draft league.

They know that if they enter a non-draft circuit they can be kept in the bushes forever, so they steer clear of them.

Were these "outlaws" to accept the draft, they would have a chance to pick up for nothing many players as good if not better than they now have to buy and would probably have more players than they have at present to offer to the majors at high figures.

Anyway you look at it, they haven't much of a kick, considering their present strength, and they should consider themselves mighty fortunate if the majors surrender an inch.

40-MILE PACED CYCLE RACE ON TONIGHT

Franco Georgetti, Italy's greatest bike racer in years and the American motor-paced champion, will go out after his second victory of the year at the Revere Cycle Track tonight, when he rides in the 40-mile race behind the roaring motors.

Opposed to Georgetti will be Frankie Keenan, Revere boy who has twice won at the bike oval this season, George Chapman, seven times American champion, Vic Hopkins, another former champion, and Paul Brocardo, a French-Italian, who will be making his debut here.

Georgetti has been made a favorite to repeat his victory of last week, but it is expected that he will be pushed to the limit by Chappie, who is making a desperate try to displace the Italian. Forty miles is Chappie's best distance, for he doesn't get his second wind until 30 miles and then he flies.

Keenan is expected to get back into the running tonight after the hard luck he had in his last race at the seashore track. He received bad breaks and drew up in the rear of a fast field, but Frankie is in the midst of a comeback and will ride his heart out tonight.

Hopkins is well known here. Revere fans know of his fighting qualities. Brocardo, the newcomer, is an enigma, but if we take New York scribes' word for it, he is a coming champion.

He teamed up with Al Letournier in the New York six-day race and the team, known as the "Red Devels" ran off with the honors.

Al Keith, Anthony Bernard Peter Calise and Joe McGann will ride in a 10-mile amateur motor-paced race and there will be other events for both amateurs and pros.

THE PORT IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Were Boston fishermen correct in their "hunch" that the bottom of the ocean off Georges Banks had been shifted by the earthquakes last spring?

This question is being investigated scientifically by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, which has the Oceanographer in operation with fathometers. This echo sounding apparatus, incidentally, is a Boston product already placed on some 200 vessels.

Since June 1, the former Morgan pleasure yacht has cruised fully 1000 miles in a small area, steaming back and forth in ever widening parallel lines. The bottom is being thoroughly recorded, and many interesting points observed.

To date there is little to support the theory of a shifting bottom due to earthquakes, at least at the extreme east edge of Georges Banks. Some variations are noted, showing that the bottom is not all the same consistent depth in that region, but nothing as yet justifies the fishermen's reports.

MODERN MARINER'S DIARY

Says the Mariner:

"We hear that Dick O'Connell of the receiving department of the Luckenbach Steamship Line became a grandfather for the first time. On Thursday a fine boy was born to his son, George, and wife, and harbor people are congratulating the parents and the grandfather, who seems to be proudest of all."

LONGSHOREMEN'S NEWS

Recent additions to the Longshoremen's baseball team include Tommy Logan of South Boston and Steve Connelly of South Boston.

Plans are progressing for the annual outing of Local 805. Harold McGinn, chairman of the committee, urges all members to attend the meeting Sunday afternoon. At that time, President Joseph Smiddy will appoint the remainder of the committee to assist McGinn in his busy preparations.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is Charles F. Dutch, admiralty lawyer and Maritime Association official.

Chas. F. Dutch

Dutch is one of the charter members of the association. At present he is chairman of the committee on port facilities, and takes a keen interest in the harbor. He is well versed on port affairs, with special reference to labor disputes. Both sides pay tribute to his judicial impartiality.

This attorney ranks as one of the leading admiralty lawyers of New England. He was formerly counsel for the U. S. Shipping Board in Washington. Recently he left on a trip to Europe, sailing by way of the port of Boston.

AUGUST SAILINGS

Our publication of the Port Authority list of July sailings from Boston seemed to meet with popular response, and we have had suggestions that August be listed. This is because people usually plan ocean trips a month and a half ahead.

The August list includes:

August 2, Vulcania for Azores, Lisbon, Gibraltar and Naples; August 3, California, for Belfast and Glasgow; Cedric, for Cobh and Liverpool; August 10, Scythia, for Galway, Cobh and Liverpool; August 13, Nova Scotia, for Halifax, St. John's and Liverpool; November 17, Britannic, for Cobh and Liverpool; Cleveland, for Galway, Cherbourg and Hamburg; August 23, Edison, for Patras, Piraeus, Jaffa and Beyreut; Karlsruhe, for Galway and Bremen; August 24, Laconia, for Cobh and Liverpool; August 30, Newfoundland, for Halifax, St. John's and Liverpool; August 31, Cedric, for Cobb and Liverpool; California, for Londonderry and Glasgow.

SHIP ARRIVALS

The Danish steamer Dansborg, which was the first vessel to bring pulp wood from Soviet Russia to the U. S. A., was in port loading bunker oil. She is heading from Brewer, Me., to Archangel.

The North German Lloyd liner Karlsruhe is due here at noon today from Bremen and Galway. She has 40 immigrants from Galway, the first of the new 1930 quota from Ireland. She had many homesteaders who were debarked at Halifax, en route to homes in the Canadian Northwest.

WNAC HEARS GOLF FINALS AT 6 O'CLOCK

CBS Broadcasts Horse Race, Track Meet and Golf Match Today

Three sporting events of major interest will come over the CPBS wires today. The Princeton-Cornell-Oxford Cambridge track meet will be broadcast from Stamford Bridge, England, and will be relayed to WABC and associated stations. H. M. Abrahams, famous Olympic athlete, will announce the meet, which will be broadcast from 5:15 to 5:30 p. m. Following this event at 5:30 the Arlington Horse Race classic at Chicago will be broadcast from that city on the CBS chain with Edgar Horn of the National Turf Digest among the announcers.

The third and most dramatic sporting event of the day will be the broadcast of the finals of the U. S. Open Golf championship at Minneapolis, Minn. Ted Husing, who will follow the leaders around the course with a knapsack transmitter strapped to him, will broadcast this match, which will be heard through WNAC from 6 to 8 o'clock. The winner and the leaders are expected to speak over the air at this time.

CONCERNING RADIO

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

While music occupies the greater portion of the radio broadcasts, it is quite probable that the general public has little or no idea where it all comes from, how it is collected or made available for the musicians—this refers particularly to the "old time" pieces.

It is a natural thought, "why, music stores, of course," where else would it come from. Nevertheless that is not exactly correct; originally, yes, but it would be very difficult to get some specific song or orchestration at a moment's notice.

Let us quote an interesting bit of information which has just come to hand: "Out of the musty files of the last hundred years radio has retrieved thousands of old and forgotten American songs of every sort and placed them at the disposal of the radio listener. Approximately 50,000 popular tunes and folk songs are now available in the music files of the National Broadcasting Co., and several programs are being built exclusively of these old pieces which recall memories of pre-Civil War days, the Gay Nineties, the Bicycle Built for Two and other antiquated things of our grandparents' time."

This collection, under the supervision of William J. Glassmacker, who is an authority on old popular compositions includes pieces bearing 1840 copyright dates. Some copies are even older. Through these files one might trace the course of American love making, political campaigns, the advent of the early program for prohibition, the public spirit in times of war and the history of Tin Pan Alley.

In out of the way places, in old music shops and in the files of musicians the collector finds his music. Mountaineer ballads from Tennessee, cowboy "whoopee" songs from Texas, folk melodies from New England, and every other variety of song have been drawn into this strange library.

All of the popular and up-to-date music is included, of course; and its number is almost beyond count. But the beautiful old pieces of other days, the "request" numbers from the radio audience, those are what "organization" has been able to put on the air almost at a moment's notice. And to us who have reached the meridian of life, what a privilege and pleasure it is to be able to hear again some of those blessed old tunes which connect us with those days when the color of some young thing's eyes was of more importance than the now very attractive yellow and green of the good old United States currency.

Young Organist

ANN LEAF, who plays Midnight Melodies on the Paramount organ every night at 12:30, over the Columbia System.

Perhaps you haven't met Walter Haynes; although it's quite likely you've shaken the hand of numerous young men in just the same situation Walter has found himself, and smiled at their beaming faces. And that's as it should be.

Besides the responsibilities associated with his duties in the accounting department of the Shepard Stores Station WNAC, Mr. Haynes (the dignity of being a parent necessitates the addition of "Mister") will share with his wife the upbringing of a newly arrived, six and three-quarter pound little pilgrim who will answer to the name of Mary Chandler Haynes.

RADIOPINIONS

"THEY'RE OFF!" and other expressions of horse racing will be heard today at 5:15 over WBZA when the second Arlington horse race classic will be broadcast from Chicago. Clem McCarthy, turf expert will describe the featured fifth race, laying special stress on the progress of Gallant Fox, with Earl Sande up. Gallant Fox, winner of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes, is the favorite to win this $70,000 purse. Preceding the main event, Sen Kaney, NBC Chicago division announcer will paint a word picture of the crowds and of preparation in the paddock.

Paul Ash has the spotlight all to himself tonight on the Paramount Public Hour over WNAC at 10 o'clock. For the first time in many moons there will be no galaxy of guest artists but a centralization of entertainment with Paul Ash's orchestra featured. Incidental vocalizing will be provided by Paul Small and the Foresome Quartet.

Another half hour of rhythmic melody comes over WBZA tonight at 9 when the Gilbert and Barker Flexible Flame orchestra present a host of tuneful bits, symphonic arrangements of Victor Herbert's favorites, operettas, ballads and straight jazz. Soloist on the program is Frederick L. Wade, baritone. Maestro of this program, Leon G. Gerard has made a life study of music and holds the distinction of having been concert master for Victor Herbert.

When Arthur Pryor, famous band leader, directs the General Electric Band tonight at 9:30 over WEEI, he will give his interpretation of his own march "The Heart of America." This is one of the lesser known patriotic numbers but it has a beauty rarely equaled by marches. One of the most picturesque and realistic numbers ever written, Theodore Michaelis' "Forge in the Forest" will be played on this program. Try to detect the stillness of night broken by the song of the birds in the morning, and later, the sound of the blacksmith's blows on the forge when the band plays this selection.

MANY PROGRAMS have altered themselves for the summer and others have entirely abandoned the air, but Cities Service holds the fort as steady as the rock of Gibraltar. Perhaps it's because they don't concentrate on heavy music, but cater to the ear rather than to the heart or the mind. A clever presentation of a story in song was the feature last night. It told of an Irish girl in love with an Irish aviator and the music followed in even sequence. Jessica Dragonette as the Irish girl had a (we must use the word) cute Irish accent which bore a strange resemblance to French. We could forgive and even endorse her if she imitated Swedish with a Chinese accent. A much neglected instrument, the cello, was welcomed last night with Lucien Schmit the artist.

Ted Husing, last night, started with a technical description of the Interlachen golf course most of which was unnecessary since it was over the heads of most listeners. He quickly changed to the highlights of the match and disclosed some interesting information on the players. He spoke fast and said a lot most of which concerned Horton Smith, the youth who leads.

From the sad strains of "Auf Wiedersehen," to the carefree modern music, Countess Albani lends a clear, professional aspect to her bird-like singing. Her duet partner, Jack Parker, does not suffer by comparison. Nat Shilkret and the orchestra have the power to transpose you into the mood of their music. On this particular schedule last night gaiety was the expression and you certainly felt that way. "Piccolo Piccolo," "The Riding Club March" and "Minstrel Days," for proof.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

A DRUG store near the NBC studios has set the store clock 15 minutes ahead so that artist-patrons may not be late for rehearsal or performance . . . James Melton was the victim of his own heroism last week when at the seashore he attempted to save someone from drowning. He succeeded, but they had to drag James back to shore . . . William Daly is called "The Laundryman's Delight," because on a hot day he makes a stiff collar soft quicker than anyone else . . . CBS can have its Nit Wits, but NBC goes them one better by having its Half Wits . . . NBC opens a new modernistic studio in Chicago . . . Vincent Lopez just signed a five-year contract with the St. Regis Hotel amounting to a million . . . They say that Graham McNamee, Ted Husing and Bill Hays are the three highest paid announcers in their respective studios . . . Twelve years ago Mary Cahill and Vaughn de Leath were in a vaudeville act together and now they are once more reunited as NBC feature artists . . . Rose Marie has left radio for a vaudeville tour and eventually movies, after which she returns to the mike . . . Radio studio floors look like a detour road on account of the constant shuffling around of the pianos . . . Elocutionists and voice teachers are migrating to Washington, where Senators and Congressmen are receiving instruction on how to speak over the radio.

'Amos 'n' Andy' Not to Broadcast Tonight

For the first time since they began their exceedingly popular broadcast, "Amos 'n' Andy" will miss their regular scheduled appearance tonight. The reason is that these two inimitable characters are on their way to the West Coast from Chicago, where they are to start upon their first talking picture in Hollywood.

At their usual broadcast period over WBZ-WBZA, 7 to 7:15 o'clock, there has been arranged a surprise program, which will acquaint the radio audience perhaps with the details of the picture which they are to take a leading part in.

According to present plans, Monday evening the comedians will resume their nightly broadcasts from the NBC studios in Los Angeles at the regular hour.

HULTMAN ASKS PADLOCK ON TREMONT ST.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

One convoy of wounded after another is the lot of the women's ambulance corps of which Helen Smith is a member. Commandant whom Tosh has christened "Mrs. Itch," is a hard task-master. Strenuous work, little sleep and poor food show on the girls. When Smithy's mother writes giving her silly war views, "Smithy," picturing the war-ravaged men, revolts. But letters from her war-nurse sister, Trix, are treats. Deaths are numerous and heart-rending. "Mrs. Itch" questions the girls regarding Tosh's and Skinny's argument, which led to a fight. Skinny is sent home. Girls visit German prisoners and are shocked at their language.

CHAPTER 27

I do not care. I am flat. Old. I am 21 and as old as the hills. Emotion-dry. The war has drained me dry of feeling. Something has gone from me that will never return. I do not want to go home.

I am suddenly aware that I cannot bear mother's prattle-prattle of committees and recruiting meetings and the war baby of Jessie, the new maid; nor can I watch my gentle father gloating over the horrors I have seen, pumping me for good stories to retail at his club tomorrow—

I cannot go home to watch a procession of maimed men in my dainty, rose-walled bedroom. It is no place for a company of broken men to parade.

I cannot go home. In the morning, perhaps, but not to-night.

What has happened to me? I am in England and I do not care.

Spick and Span
Meets Boy Officer

I look up from the coffee I am drinking in the hotel lounge. He is a second lieutenant, very spick and span in his new Sam Browne and well-cut uniform—"Rather a nut" the B. F. would label him. He is so immaculate I feel dirty immediately despite my pre-dinner hot bath, my shampoo and hair cut, my manicure and my newly acquired powder puff.

He smiles disarmingly.

"Awful cheek my coming over, but I embark tomorrow. First time out. Frightful novice."

First time out. I avoid his laughing blue eyes. He is indeed a frightful novice—that is why his eyes are still laughing.

"Do let me talk to you," he begs, "I'm lonely and you seem lonely, too. I've been watching you all through dinner, wondering why you stayed in Folkestone instead of going straight through. Do talk to me. I'd love some tips first-hand from someone who's been out there——"

I agree to talk to him—but not of the war. Anything but the war. My voice hardens. He notices it and his eyes are suddenly grave—but I do not want them to be grave. Let them smile while they can still smile, they will be grave soon enough. I make a stupid joke—the blue eyes dance again. Blue eyes, dancing like the sea on a breezy summer's day.

There is a hop going in the ballroom—I hesitate, my uniform is almost in rags—he tells me it may be but I look top-hole and my short hair is the sort of hair a fellow would like to rumple his fingers through if he dared—he clasps his hands together in mock penitence——

Full of Life
Smithy in Dance

He is so gay, so audacious, this boy of my own age who is so young and brimming over with life. He invents a wild fandango and shouts with laughter at an old lady in the corner who stares disapprovingly through lorgnettes.

He is clean and young and straight and far removed from the shadow procession I watch night after night, the procession that came to me early this morning and wakened me shrieking in the presence of a compartmentful of shocked strangers. He is so gay, so full of life, this boy who is holding me closely in his arms—he could never join that ghostly parade——

Dance, dance, dance, go on dancing—press me against your breast—talk, talk, talk, go on talking—yes, daringly drop a kiss on top of my cropped head in full view of the shocked old lady with the lorgnettes—laugh, laugh, laugh, go on laughing—yes, I will drink more champagne with you, I will smile when you smile—I

BARRED FROM HOME; WED 37 YEARS

Arlington Woman Asks $20,000 in Alienation Suit Against Her Alleged Rival

Arlington was stirred today as a result of charges filed against George M. Vail, one of the most prominent citizens, by his wife, Mrs. Florence S. Vail, who alleged that the 61-year-old lumber man is "squandering large sums of money" on Mrs. Mildred S. Behnke, attractive widow and extensive holder of real estate at Onset.

Revealing a marital disagreement after 37 years of married life, Mrs. Vail has obtained a temporary order which restrains her husband from entering her home or interfering with her liberty. She also is suing for separate maintenance.

A concurrent development in the trials of the Vails came with the filing of a $20,000 alienation of affections suit started by Mrs. Vail against the "other woman" in Plymouth County.

BLOCKS STOCK TRANSFER

Vail also has been restrained from entering his wife's home, and cannot transfer any of the stock of his lumber company, the Vail Bros.-Mauger Corporation, and is furthermore being sued for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Vail charges in her bill in equity that her husband "is squandering large sums of money on and with a woman who has for a long period of time been his almost daily companion, taking her on extended automobile tours into other states and otherwise acting immorally."

The bill goes on "That there is great danger and probability that the respondent will waste the property and financial interests which your petitioner has aided in acquiring and that a continuation of such waste on the part of her husband will ultimately mean the depriving of your petitioner of such support as she is entitled to as his wife."

LOVE SUIT TRIAL SOON

Judge John C. Leggat has already granted temporary orders restraining Vail from transferring his stock in the lumber company, which place of business is at 366 Massachusetts ave., and barring him from his wife's home or interfering with her. In the separate maintenance action, he is restrained from interfering with her liberty. Both of the actions are returnable on August 21, at East Cambridge.

Mrs. Vail is at present at the Vail summer cottage at Falmouth, while Mrs. Behnke is but a few miles away at her daughter's home in North Water st., Onset, it is understood.

Vail, questioned about the suits, said:

"I haven't talked with my attorney about suits yet. Mrs. Vail has no grounds for such actions. She has always had everything, clothes, a summer cottage—all she wanted. I cannot understand it," he said.

The alienation suit of Mrs. Vail against Mrs. Behnke will be tried in Plymouth in September.

Vail has for years been in the lumber business with his brother, Frederick R. Vail, whose home at 40 Waltnut st., is next door to his. It is understood that he was in Florida during last winter.

ADELAIDE SMART

Miss Adelaide M. Smart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smart of 328 Geneva ave., Dorchester, left yesterday to enter the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament at Cornswell Heights, Pa.

She is a graduate of St. Agnes' school, South Boston, and the Fenway Notre Dame high school.

60 on Outing From Morgan Memorial

Sixty happy youngsters from the Morgan Memorial spent today at Salem Willows as guests of the Boston Industrial Home. The Industrial Home has a fund for these outings for underprivileged children and the Morgan Memorial selected today's group.

Seek 50 Men for Work on Subway

Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission, today forwarded to the Civil Service Commission a requisition for 50 laborers to begin work on the new Governor sq. subway extension. The men will be drawn from the civil service list and will begin work within a few days. It is expected that further requisition for additional men will follow within a short time.

CONRY HINTS AT LICENSE FEE TO PARK CARS

Traffic Head Will Consider a Suggestion in Letter From Attorney Rackemann

Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry has made public a letter received from Felix Rackemann suggesting that if cars are to be parked in the streets a license should be issued by the city for which each car owner would pay a substantial sum.

In his letter Mr. Rackemann says:

"A great many people drive their cars into Boston, put them into garages, and pay between $100 and $200 a year. A great many other people drive their cars into Boston, park them in the streets and pay nothing. A licensed car could be marked to show that it had the parking privilege, restricted to those streets in which parking might be permitted. It strikes me that such a program would have two immediate effects.

"First, it would bring to the city a substantial revenue.

"Second, it would automatically reduce the number of cars parked in the streets as a large number of those who park freely would be unwilling to pay the fee."

Mr. Conry said:

"Because of Mr. Rackemann's high standing as an attorney, as well as the fact that he served by appointment of Governor Allen on the taxi commission which reported to the previous Legislature, I view his opinion with the utmost respect.

"This matter is worthy of consideration in connection with the inevitable legislation concerning traffic, which must be secured next winter."

Missing Baby Was in Cellar for Snooze

While his parents and relatives stormed the police station and every police officer in Jamaica Plain station was searching for Cornelius O'Hanley, two, missing from his home on Merriman st. for several hours last night, the baby was found fast asleep in the cellar of a house on Brookside ave., a block away.

Stolen Jewelry Is Found in Pawnshop

Jewels valued at $1000, stolen on July 4 last from the home of Mrs. J. J. Palmer of 209 Pond ave., Brookline, were recovered in a Worcester pawnshop yesterday by Worcester police.

Claims Fame for Brains

Headwork, Not Foot, for This Kitty

Instead residents talk of culture and smartness in the southerly suburb and put forth the six-year-old Persian owned by Miss Charlotte Campbell of 301 Minot st.

"Boy," by name and sex, goes so far as to answer the telephone and purr sweet nothings whether it's a wrong number or not.

And if a male friend of his mistress calls, he knows enough to steal silently away—and wait. (This last is only a rumor.)

On account of his "royal" blood, the mere mention of fight racket is carefully avoided in the Campbell household.

Warm Weather Is Due Back in Hub

Boston's respite from the heat of the past several days will be of brief duration, according to the United States weather bureau.

The temperature, which dropped with the thunder showers which swept the coast last evening, is due to soar again tomorrow, according to the weather prognosticators. At 9 a. m. today the mercury was at 69 degrees. The forecast for Boston and vicinity is fair tonight and Sunday, and warmer Sunday, with moderate southwest winds.

$100 Weekly for News Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Every week $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best, first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best and $2 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

'400' O. K., But Police K. O. Nude Bathing in Frog Pond

None other than Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, society leader of Beacon Hill and Manchester-by-the-Sea, makes the decision.

But wait. She draws the line at any but little tots and makes it in response to two others who objected strongly to the practise in letters to newspapers.

The principal statement she objected to was to the effect that "Adam and Eve constitute no precedent for Boston because they had no such audience as Boston Common has."

From her summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea today she scored the views of the letter writers.

"Do they intend to imply that the audience on Boston Common is of higher caliber than the Lord God himself?" she asked.

"God walks every night in the Garden, if not on the Common.

"He must approve the spectacle of the ineffable, saintly innocence that the children present in the Frog Pond bathing.

"One woman wrote she was shocked when three little boys in the nude crossed her path on the Common.

"If she is so easily shocked she should not visit the Common or any other similar place," was her parting rejoinder.

Capt. Jeremiah Gallivan of the Lagrange st. station, who has police jurisdiction over the Common, stated he could not allow nude bathing, though he agreed with the views of Mrs. Putnam.

"A child's body is something to behold. I heartily agree with the views of Mrs. Putnam, but I must uphold the law as it stands on the books," he said.

"The park regulations order that children be not allowed to bathe there without proper garments, and that is the reason my officers must interfere if nude bathing takes place," he added.

MAIL VETERAN ENDS LONG HIKE

Having walked some 100,000 miles in 40 years continuous service on one Back Bay mail route, Cornelius J. Foran, 67, of 26 Harvard rd., Belmont, made his final trip today.

Mr. Foran chose retirement rather than extension. His fellow carriers gave him a testimonial and $50 in gold. James G. Farrell made the presentation.

Mr. Foran is a past president of the Mutual Benefit Association. He intends to live in Bourne.

WOULD SHUT UP HARMON AND BREEN BUILDING

Asserts Necessary Three Convictions Have Been Obtained on Property

Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman today started padlock proceedings against the building at 358 and 358A Tremont st. by seeking an order of notice in equity court against David J. Breen and James J. Harmon.

Orders also were sought against Laura Breen and Helen Harmon after a conference with Assistant Corporation Counsel Leo Schwartz.

The action follows Breen's and Harmon's plea for an injunction to restrain the police from raiding the premises, now pending before a master appointed by the Supreme Court.

Hultman announced that three convictions had been obtained against the premises as required by the padlock law.

The orders of notice called for a hearing July 22. The master's hearing is due to resume Monday.

MARY CORBET AND BURNS WEL

Miss Mary V. Corbett, music comedy star, and daughter of Mrs. James Corbett of 51 Walnut st., Somerville, was married in New York today to Vincent Anthony Burns, an attorney of that city.

The ceremony was performed in Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral, by the Rev. Henry F. Hammer, and was followed by a reception.

The couple sailed on a French liner for a 10 weeks honeymoon in Europe, and when they return will live in Brookline.

Miss Corbett's brother is State Rep. William P. Corbett of Somerville.

She was graduated from Emerson College and starred in several Broadway shows. Burns is a graduate of St. Mary's College, Kansas, and Harvard Law school.

Scott to Sponsor Marathon Dancers

Ambitious to retain their titles as champion Marathon dancers, won at the Madison Square Garden last season, Jean Andrews and Nick Winrich will enter the Marathon Dance Derby at Bournehurst-on-the-Canal under sponsorship of Scott Furriers.

At one minute after midnight Sunday they and 19 other couples will begin the endurance grind of 144 hours of dancing, finishing at midnight on July 19.

Find Man Dead by Hanging in So. End

Patrick Ryan, 46, was found hanging to a bedpost by his belt in a room in a Harrison ave., South End, lodging house today. Mrs. Elizabeth Macahle, the landlady, found his body when she failed to awaken him by knocking on the door.

STAGE NABS 'PA' TIME BY FORELOCK

By HARRIS MORGAN

MIDSUMMER HATH its unexpected pleasures no less than autumn, or winter, or spring. Variety being the spice of theater activity, two stage shows enhance the entertainment bill for these July days. Each is a premiere. To the Plymouth on Monday night comes "The Long Road," a drama of the World War; and on Tuesday night there will open at the Wilbur, "Tattle Tales," a revue.

Norma Shearer

THUS THEATER-GOERS may zestfully thumb their programs again, awaiting the rise of the curtain on the histrionic "flesh-and-blood." At the same time, the motion picture houses are offering good fare. This past week has been a good one for class of offerings. In the opinion of the writer, the best individual work was that of Norma Shearer in "Let Us Be Gay," at Loew's State. Not that she is a greater actress than Marie Dressler, who appears in the same cast; the latter is stellar. But for showing progress, and for delivering a superb performance, meeting the character demands, and the emotional as well, Miss Shearer is rapidly shown to be approaching the peak of the heights. This is her best talkie role; its quality is, we offer, beyond her best silent drama work, as the delightfully charming young actress turns in a well-nigh perfect job.

"Cabaret Week" Opens at Bowdoin Monday

At the Bowdoin Sq., Monday, "Cabaret Week" will open under the direction of Johnny Harrigan, who will act as master of ceremonies. Dancers and comedians, in costumes that are the height of stage style, and the elaborate scenic effects and colors will add lustre to this presentation. There will also be the usual talking picture bill.

Paragon Park

European dare-devil act of the air, "The Four Jacks," will be the feature outdoor attraction at Paragon Park beginning today. A large fireworks display is an additional feature on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

REAL RUBBER FOR FLOOR

Chester Morris

Someone at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio decided that a good prison riot should make the foundation for a fine talking film, and so Frances Marion was given the job of writing a story, the research department was ordered to study up on what makes prisons tick, and the art department switched from castle and country house construction to prison building. Decision was made to call the picture "The Big House." George Hill, whose last pictorial task was "The Flying Fleet," was made director, and a cast was chosen which includes Wallace Beery, Karl Dane, Robert Montgomery, Chester Morris, Lewis Stone, Leila Hyams, De Witt Jennings, Eddie Lambert, Eddie Foyer, George Marion, Fletcher Norton and Mikhail Vavitch.

While the studio prison is expected to look like the real thing from where the audience sits, and listens, it will have one or two improvements over its model. For instance, the floors will look like iron, but they'll be rubber. Otherwse, the noise of five or six hundred actor-convicts tramping over them might give the impression that it was a boiler factory, and not a prison.

Thelma Todd Added

Thelma Todd and Elsie Bartlett are among the latest additions to "The Hot Heiress," now being prepared at First National.

BABY COOS AT END OF LONG, LONG TRAIL

The inception of "The Long Road" goes back 10 years. What finally became the play which will have its premiere at the Plymouth on Monday, started in a dim, floating fog, its grayish vapors lighted with the crimson flashes of gunfire and echoing the hollow rumble of big guns.

Hugh Stange, of the 107th Infantry, 27th Division, grimy with mud, hungry, thirsty and a single unit of a hundred thousand men trying desperately to kill a hundred thousand others, lay in a trench at Bony Ridge piled high with the dead and wounded and saw battle in all its grim harshness. He saw his closest friend crumple up and die at the flash of a distant shell.

This was in September, 1918. A few months later Stange of the 107th came home. On the same ship with him was a friend who had come unscathed through many actions. He had left a young bride behind him when he went to war. He found her again on his return and in her arms was a child. He knew that he was not the child's father.

The son of a father who was a distinguished playwright, Stange knew drama when he saw it. For years there kept stirring in his inner mind the desire to put upon the stage some of the scenes photographed on his mind while bands blared in parades, men trudged through the mud as they moved towards battle, men died among the pyrotechnics of battle. Out of his recollections was eventually born the play which Herman Gantvoort is to present in Boston.

Noted Orchestra Held Over at Norumbega

Jan Garber, whose appearance tonight at the Totem Pole ballroom in Norumbega Park was scheduled to be the farewell one, is being held over for Monday and Tuesday of next week. Jimmy Joy and his Joymakers, scheduled for an opening at Totem Pole Monday, comes Wednesday instead.

The New Plays

PLYMOUTH—"The Long Road," a drama of the World War. Written by Hugh Stange and based on his own experiences at the front. In the cast are included Otto Kruger, Sue MacManamy, Caroly Clarke, Jeanette Fox-Lee, Julia Cobb, Claude Cooper, and Paul Kelly. Produced by Herman Gantvoort. Premiere performance.

NEAR, AND YET SO FAR

Basil Rathbone

That the talking picture brings the audience to the actor instead of the actor having to reach his audience is the statement of Basil Rathbone, famous English stage and screen actor. Rathbone adds that stage acting and talkie acting have absolutely nothing in common. He has made a success in both, and his latest film role is leading man for Dorothy Mackaill in "The Flirting Widow," now at the Keith-Albee.

Esplanade Concert

The program for the first of the Esplanade Concerts, tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock, with Arthur Fiedler conducting the orchestra, will be as follows:

Introduction to Act 3, "Lohengrin,"	Wagner
Overture to "William Tell"	Rossini
"Dream of Love"	Liszt-Herbert
Fantasia, "Aida"	Verdi
Rhapsody, "Espana"	Chabrier
Waltz, "By the Beautiful Blue Danube"	Strauss
Victor Herbert Favorites	Sanford
Marche Slave	Tchaikovsky

SPEED BOATS FOR REVERE

Speed boat races, with some of the fastest boats in the country providing the thrills, will be staged at Revere Beach as an added attraction every Saturday and Sunday afternoon for the balance of the season.

The amusement division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce has arranged this feature to be staged along the waterfront, just a short distance off shore and in plain view of the crowds which gather at this popular seashore resort.

Many new and novel attractions have been opened at Revere Beach during the past week. Four roller-coasters, three fun houses, side shows and numerous other amusements along the mile of fun combine to give Revere Beach its name as the Playground of New England.

"Sunny"

Clyde Cook has been assigned one of the chief comedy roles in First National's "Sunny."

YOUTH SURE TO HAVE FLING ON STAGE

Of late many debutantes have abandoned a social career to take up theatrical work and during the past season four New York attractions boasted of a number of debutantes in their casts. The latest deb to take up such a career is Priscilla Gurney, daughter of the millionaire president of the Gurney Elevator Co. She will be seen as one of the members of the cast of Alexander Leftwich's "Tattle Tales," which opens at the Wilbur next Tuesday.

In addition to Miss Gurney, there is also, as a member of the cast Jack Stillman, 20-year-old nephew of James Stillman, former president of the National City Bank in New York.

There is a rather good story connected with how these two scions of millionaires came to be in "Tattle Tales." Both are friends of Mrs. Alexander Leftwich. When Mr. Leftwich was planning "Tattle Tales," the two appealed to be put in the attraction. So Mr. Leftwich took them under his wing, gave them special dramatic instruction three days a week, sent them to Billy Pierce's school of dancing in New York, and within six months they were ready to make their professional appearance.

They were turned over to M. S. Bentham, an agent, who placed them in a vaudeville unit, where they played for three months, then put them in an act of their own and finally pronounced them ready for "Tattle Tales." They make their legitimate debut in "Tattle Tales" as principals.

LIGHTS TURN ON JUNGLE

The color and sound of the African jungle have been captured by Vitaphone for "Golden Dawn," at the Fenway and Modern. This operetta has been transferred to the screen in full color. The great advantages of the camera over the theater have been used to give additional dramatic force and spectacular grandeur to the stage production.

AS THE CROW FLIES, GOES THE LAUGH

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

MORAN & MACK can make most of their blackfaced compeers eat crow. In fundom they are pioneers; before Amos 'n' Andy came into being, they were. So with all the snap of the braw, brecht, moonlicht nicht the nicht that Harry Lauder sings about, plus a perfect riot of mirth, the Messrs. Moran and Mack put over their stuff in "Anybody's War," now at the Uptown and Washington Street Olympia. And how!

Harleigh Schultz

FANS WILL REMEMBER their class as laugh-provokers in "Why Bring That Up?" (Why indeed, save to emphasize their super-comic qualities in their latest picture). They are the show; they coin the situations, and they, so we begin to suspect, manufacture the lines. The gags just have to be of their own creating. True, Richard Wallace has done a good job at directing, taking in hand a shoddy story and making a movie out of it that fairly upsets the audience with merriment. That's what "Anybody's War" is—superb summer entertainment, something to stave off the blues and drive off all the worries of the workaday world. When one peeks beyond Messrs. Moran and Mack into the love thread, one is disappointed at the result: the romance is but minor matter. The fun is the thing, and we are glad that it is so.

THE STARS ARE cast as two Tennessee negroes who become engulfed in the World War. War would be worth while if it produced only such antics that the two comedians execute. The fun piles up fast. There's a dog that assists them—"Deep Stuff." He is good, too. There's a dice game—one of the blackfaced pair swallows his cubes when an officer suddenly heaves in sight; there are the many, many laughs as the two mimics find themselves under fire at the front. The mirth seldom lags; this is a good show for everybody. Even the children will enjoy it.

THE TWO STARS have the burden of carrying on. Neil Hamilton is the hero; he does pretty well. Joan Peers is the heroine, and she is about as good as the hero. Wisely, Director Wallace has played up to the twin stars; they turn the trick. It's a Moran & Mack picture. And the movie public may be glad this is so. For "Anybody's War" turns out to be everybody's chance for many good laughs.

MARIE DRESSLER AND POLLY MORAN IN NEW COMEDY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, July 12—All the millions of women who have suffered the agonies of trying to get rid of superfluous flesh will soon see themselves as others see them. As soon as Marie Dressler returns from her summer jaunt in Europe and Polly Moran gets back from her throat treatments in Michigan, these two will be co-starred in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy called "Reducing."

Louella O. Parsons

It's a laugh just to visualize Marie and Polly going through the routine of rubber garments, diets and massages. And an added laugh to know that Chuck Reisner, is the one to direct these two gals. He knows their type of comedy so I reckon it's safe in preparing for another "Caught Short."

MARY PICKFORD and Douglas Fairbanks have been week-ending in Catalina with Eric Von Stroheim. Laugh that one off. All the time Mary and Doug were supposed to be in New York consulting with Joseph Schenck on United Artists business and all the time they have been in Catalina on the Schenck yacht taking pictures with Von Stroheim. Although Mrs. Von Stroheim was with her husband it is the opinion of several who know their movies that it was not entirely a social visit. Von Stroheim, it is rumored, will do some work for Doug in a forthcoming picture.

ONA MUNSON and Eddie Buzzell, like all married folk, had a misunderstanding a few weeks ago. Eddie, who is very well known on the New York musical comedy stage, moved out of the house for a few days. Ona was busy at the First National studios and although there were telephone calls aplenty, the two didn't actually kiss and make up for a week. Meanwhile the town was rife with stories of their coming divorce. Then the storm cleared and now the two are happier than they have been in a long time. In Hollywood it's dangerous for married folk even to have an argument. News travels so fast.

"BOTH WERE YOUNG" is a title that might have been written with Grant Withers and Loretta Young in mind. At any rate, it has been purchased by Warner Brothers and will undoubtedly co-star this happy young married pair. Perhaps we ought to put happy in italics for never did any young couple start out in life with so many handicaps. First Loretta's mother threatened to have the marriage annuled. Then Grant's ex-wife sued him for back alimony and only the other day I saw a policeman giving them a tag for parking on the wrong side or some other minor traffic misdemeanor.

John Boles

THERE WAS a great reunion at the United Artists Studio when Leon Erroll met Evelyn Laye in Samuel Goldwyn's office. Several years ago when Miss Laye just started her career, Leon Erroll taught her how to hoof it and, believe it or not, it took her longer than the average chorus girl to master the intricate steps, but her beauty was such that she was given every chance. "Hello, funny legs," she said when she saw Leon. "Are you going to scold me again?" Miss Laye is certainly being handed a worth while cast. In addition to John Boles and Leon Erroll, Hughie Cameron has been signed as well as George Bickel. Both of them are well known on the New York stage.

AMONG THE subjects discussed in Hollywood are the plans of Triangle to remake David Wark Griffith's "Way Down East." Triangle is apparently planning to go right down the list of past successes and add sound. No wonder Natalie Moorehead continues to be one of the most expensively dressed women in Hollywood. She always seems to be working. She has just signed for a part in "The Gay Caballero" at Warners. Raquel Torres' sister, Renee, and Lupe Velez's sister, Josefina, are also in the cast. These Spanish speaking girls have everything their own way these days. James Creelman has parked his typewriter at the United Artist lot to write the adaptation of "The Dove."

SECOND ONLY to Helen Morgan in some people's opinion, not second to her, is Charles Butterworth in "Sweet Adeline." His name was on the lips of everybody who saw the play in New York and now he has come to Hollywood and is playing in a Warner Brothers picture. His first, "The Life of the Party," convinced all concerned that he should be kept right here for other comedies, so he has been signed on a long term contract by Warners. His first under the new contract is "Illicit" in which Barbara Stanwyck and Neil Hamilton have important parts. I wonder if "Illicit" is the new name for "Divorce Among Friends." These titles are slowly making my hair turn white.

Seena Owen

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Claire Luce, pretty blonde actress who has lately joined the Fox company, lunching at the Embassy. Mrs. Adolphe Menjou recovering from a nasty dog bite, lunching with her husband. Leon Erroll going fishing with a crowd of Santa Monica fishermen. Billie Dove enjoying a vacation at Catalina. Ronald Colman welcomed home on the United Artists' lot. June Collyer lunching at the Ambassador with her father and mother. Seena Owen in white at the same place. That's all today. See you Monday!

BLACK FACE FOR LEAD

Jack Wilson, black-face comedian, will head the stage show next Monday at the Scollay, in "A Nonsensical Revue," with Warner Gault, Adele Ardsley and Murray Wood. Six other excellent acts are billed, including Furman, Sharkey and Lorraine, Morton and Higgins, "The Scollayettes; a group of eight girls in dance divertissements that are different; Fiedler, Harriet & Co., the three Whoopee Girls and the Aerial DeGroffs.

Film Who's Who

Lila Lee

Lila Lee who plays opposite Lon Chaney in the latter's first talking picture, "The Unholy Three," feature at Loew's State the coming week, is a native of New York City. Lila began her theatrical career at the age of five, when she made her debut on the stage of Hammerstein's Theater in New York under the tutelage of Gus Edward's. Eight years later, Jesse L. Lasky saw her and arranged a screen test. The test successful, Lila was given the leading feminine role in "The Cruise of the Make Believe." Her performance so satisfied Famous Players officials that she was given a five-year contract. Her recent pictures include "Flight," "Queen of the Night Clubs," "Dark Streets," and "Drag."

FILM FOLK GO TO PLYMOUTH

The first annual outing of the Warner Bros., First National and Vitaphone Corporations is held today at Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth. Three motor busses, with State Police escort, were secured to take the picnickers to Plymouth. The afternoon will be devoted to sports of all kinds, ending with a baseball game between Warner Bros. and First National. Dinner will be served at 5 p. m., and there will be dancing from 7 to 11.

The athletic events for men are in charge of William Horan and E. M. Feltman, and those for girls are in charge of Mrs. E. V. Corbett and Mildred Goodwin.

LOVE GOES IN REVERSE

Bebe Daniels was forced to put the cart before the horse in "Lawful Larceny," whether she liked it or not. The all-talking society drama, adapted from a powerful stage play of the same name, is now at the New B. F. Keith's.

Often she was heard to remark to Lyon, a frequent visitor at the studio, that she was glad she was not superstitious.

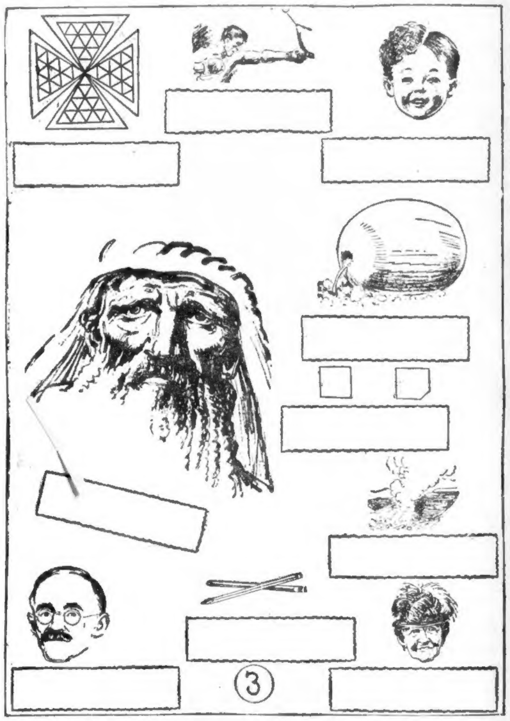
Ripley's NEW "WORD HUNT"

$2500.00 IN CASH!

Here is another opportunity for you to share in worthwhile cash awards

This is the third set of pictures in the NEW Ripley Word Hunt that started Thursday, July 10, in the Boston Evening American and will continue through August 8—daily in the Boston Evening American and Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. A total of $2500 in cash will be awarded the winners—99 cash prizes. Start today in this new Ripley Word Hunt, get everyone in the family interested.

"Believe It Or Not" By Ripley



FOLLOW THESE RULES

1. Everyone is eligible to participate in the "Word Hunt" except employes of the Boston Evening American, Boston Sunday Advertiser, and members of their families.

2. Every day from July 10 to August 8, ten Ripley "Believe It Or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Columns.

3. The "Word Hunt" consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear in a single unit in one place.

4. Hold all the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of ten each—300 pictures in all. Put your name and address on each set. Then send them in to Ripley's "Word Hunt" Editor, Box 185, Boston, Mass.

5. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, August 15. No entries will be returned to sender.

6. Two thousand five hundred dollars in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the "Word Hunt."

7. A committee of judges will be appointed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final.

8. It is not necessary to purchase the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to compete. This newspaper may be examined at its office or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

First Prize	$1000.00
2nd PRIZE . .	$500.00
3rd PRIZE . .	200.00
4th PRIZE . .	100.00
5th PRIZE . .	75.00
6th PRIZE . .	50.00
7th PRIZE . .	25.00
18 PRIZES at $10.00 Ea. Tot.	180.00
74 PRIZES at $ 5.00 Ea. Tot.	370.00
Total of 99 CASH PRIZES	$2500.00

9. In case there are no complete sets of correct picture descriptions, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct picture descriptions. In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tie participants will receive similar awards.

10. The Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting this project, and the decision of the Judges on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations made now or to be made. DO NOT SEND SETS OF PICTURES UNTIL ALL HAVE APPEARED.

Raquel Warns Alphonse He Must Be Careful or She'll Leave

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The erotic beauty of Raquel Rojos who left her home in a desert town in Arizona for New York—attracts the attention of Alphonse Courbet, noted fashion expert. He engaged her as his chief model and takes her and another model, Greta Toask, to Paris Raquel is fascinated by the strange sights as she sets foot on foreign soil, and wonders what Fate holds in store for her in Paris—her City of Beauty.

CHAPTER 39

Raquel's first impression of Paris was that of a long platform clogged with people who shouted and gesticulated, who laughed and cried with equal ease. And who ran wildly around in circles without seeming to go any place in particular.

Her next impression was of hundreds of horns shrieking their protests through a turmoil of traffic that looked as if it could not be disentangled, but that finally unsnarled itself and rolled away at a high rate of speed.

"Well, here we are," burbled Greta, when they had edged their way through the turmoil on the platform "I expected the Markeeza of Dubonnet to meet me, but maybe the Markeeza wouldn't let him"

"The Marquis of what?" asked Raquel She never knew when to take this mischievous Greta seriously

"Dubonnet, dearie, Dubonnet. You don't know him? I'm surprised. But you'll meet him He's all over the place, in letters as high as your best silk hat. Good egg on a party. Lively. Very, if you stick to him long enough."

Alphonse motioned them to follow him. A car had drawn up just ahead. A long, closed car the color of coffee with plenty of rich cream in it. A chauffeur in brown livery alighted and greeted Alphonse with a succession of quick bows that bent stiffly from the waist

His Best Car

Alphonse in Paris

"Look," whispered Greta. "Alphonse has trotted out the pride of his motor stable. That is a Spanish Sneezer. Some little wagon."

The interior of the car was deep and soft. Suede leather of a shade lighter than the body. Dull bronze fittings.

"Everything he has is perfect," Raquel thought, sinking back into the cushioned leather

"Hotels?" Raquel's heart skipped a beat

He was going to take Greta away. Separate them. There would be no Greta with her funny talk and her irrepressible spirit of fun and frolic to dull the edge of her loneliness

"I have decided it would be advisable to make a showing in two places," Alphonse went on glibly. "You will be much observed. Especially when it is known you represent the creations of Chez Alphonse. By placing you separately, we pique the interest in two places. You, Mademoiselle, will go to the Continental And for you, Miss Greta, I have chosen the Ritz."

To Raquel the names were so many words Yet they were more than words she knew, when she caught the look of surprise on Greta's face

"We first go past my atelier," he added. "I must stop there. You wait, for only a moment."

The "atelier" was in a fine stone building fronting on a broad street that flowed toward a great arch spanning it on the horizon

"Didn't I tell you?" Greta demanded, when they were alone in the car "The Continental! You won't grab off any Vanderbilt orders there. And little Greta draws the Ritz, no less."

"What is it like—this Continental?" Raquel asked, alarmed.

"Don't worry, dearie," Greta said. "It's respectable. Too darned respectable. Regular old homestead. Quiet as Main street after dark. But when it comes to the show-off—wonder what his idea is in parking you there?"

Safe Hotel

Girls Are Puzzled

"Perhaps he thinks it is safe. I'm a stranger, you know"

"It's safe, all right. Of course, he figures on getting you away from my bad influence. He wants to hide you, that's his game. He knows you won't stay put long in the Ritz."

"But why should he want to hide me, if I'm to show his models—"

Greta giggled. "Now I'll ask you an easy one," she said. "You're private stock. He's saving you for himself."

"If I thought that," Raquel flared, "I'd refuse to go to this—"

"Kone-tee-nen-tahl. The accent is on the last syllable, as in cash. Take it easy, old dear. Don't start a riot before the fun begins. Just you run along as if you were Witless Winnie in person. I'm just around the corner from you. And I've got good eyesight. I'll tip you off to the news. This frog can't pull any rubber checks on little Greta, nor you either, if you say so."

"I'd rather have it out now, tell him I'm going with you—"

"Nothing doing. Do you want to get me shipped back to Broadway, C. O. D? Keep your jewelry on, dearie. No one's held us up—yet. Sssh. Here he comes. Act natural now—yes, that's the Arc de Triumph. Neat little package. It was put there so's you'd know when you got into the Bois de Bologna, which is some grand little playground, believe me."

"We shall dine there tonight," said Alphonse resuming his place in the car He was in high good humor Evidently only the best of tidings awaited him in his atelier, which, Raquel learned from Greta, was the French equivalent of a studio. It was here that Alphonse exhibited his works done in the name of that fickle goddess, Dame Fashion

"Hurrah!" cried Greta gleefully. "Chateau Madrid. Won't Cinderella here go woozy over it? There was a geegalow there last summer—a geegalow is a hired man who dances for a dishonest living, dearie—"

"Then we shall dine at Amenonville," Alphonse said, curtly "There must be none of these sleek worms. It is not the American custom"

'Greta exploded: "My eye, it ain't. With every fat mama from Oshkosh to the Bronx tripping a mean fox-trot at so much per trot."

Alphonse Warned

After Showing Passion

"Huh. I like that. Why, geegalows are the most respectable amusement in Paris. Any girl who misses her grandmother goes right out to the Bois and drags grandma away from a boy friend who's teaching her a new step in the tango Honest"

Clever Greta She had successfully dissembled her just resentment in a trickle of irrepressible fun

The car glided to a stop in an open circle walled with a gray stone building A tall shaft centered the circle

"This is the Place Vendome," said Greta. "A as in oysters My, how good it is to be home! I hope Mr. and Mrs. Ritz have waited up for me"

Raquel was to remain in the car while Alphonse saw that Greta was properly cared for He was back almost immediately

"Now that you are here, ma cherie," he said to Raquel, "we shall hope to keep you for a long, long time." His voice was unsteady. There was passion in it he could not conceal.

"I want very much to stay, I find it—agreeable," Raquel said There was a warning in her words, in her air of aloofness.

"Then we must make it—agreeable." He had sensed the warning.

They were midway in a street giving off the open circle. Yes, Greta was just around the corner.

They walked under the arch leading into a court. The court was set with tables under gaily-striped umbrellas People sat at the tables sipping iced drinks A long covered gallery opened on the court, circled three sides of the enclosed rectangle. They turned to the right, mounted a short flight of steps, and were in a hotel office before an ingratiating clerk

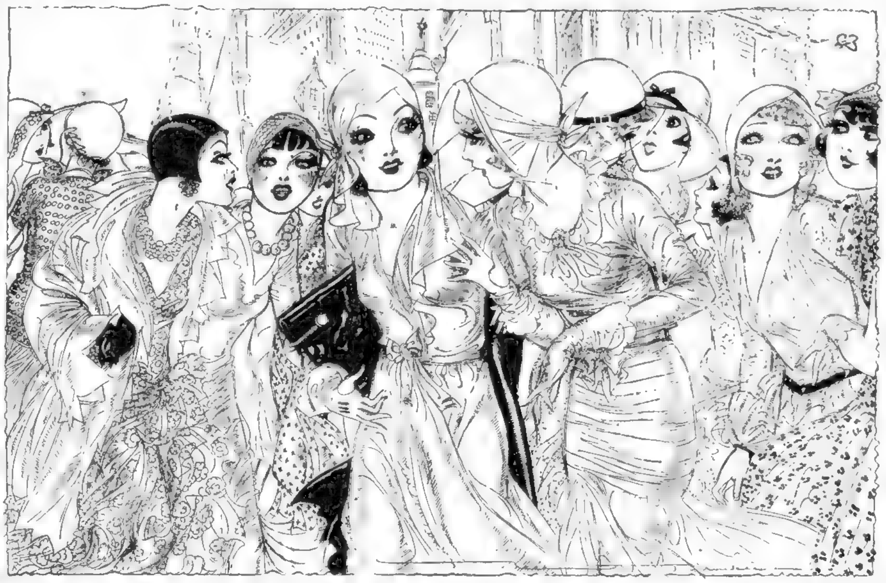
"An' I Said to HIM—and He Said to ME—" -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley



A GREAT, a distinguished and a kind man once helped me elbow my way through the massed streets of a convention town. Faces went by like the changing little bits of colored glass in a child's tin kaleidoscope. And bits of conversation streamed by, too, torn to shreds, only partly heard and then lost, impressions in snatches, like rags of chiffon veils, vari-colored

Much of the carnival look to the crowd was the gala visitor, from everywhere, but intermingled everywhere was the girl "who lived there," trooping home from offices, factories and shops. And the thoughtful man and I began to see that they went in twos, like twin peas, arm in arm, face to face, eager, unconscious eyes fixed brightly in each other's. Everywhere TWO girls, laughing. Laughing—no matter how flat the pocketbook or stingy the life Chic, too, somehow, no matter how flat the purse; the busy, gay little midinette of America. And then the two of us got sorry for some of them—we wished they might travel, see the big world, get to ride horseback every morning (do newspaper people ride horseback every morning before they are sixty or dead?), see all the good shows, see the spiritual world as well as the actual one; in plain words, I suppose, FIND A FORTUNE and get a nibble at luxury and ease!

And then we overtook two, pretty as posters, and were ironed flat against them by the mob for a moment And in that moment their eager little voices spoke straight into our stretched ears. And what they said was this "And I says to HIM, and HE says to ME——"

The great man looked at me when the stream carried us on, and smiled and said, "See how you've wasted your sympathy! As long as they can say, 'I said to HIM and HE said to ME,' as long as the all-absorbing simple love interest is in the world for everyone to share, the plainest-lived will be happy ALL of these girls are happy. They are young, and they can say 'HE said to ME and I said to HIM'"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Heart and Home -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Trying to Part Them

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I read your love column every night and thought of writing to you for advice. I am very much in love with a young fellow whom I have been going with for the past three years I am engaged to be married soon and know that he loves me. The reason I write to you is that a girl is trying to come between us. Do you think I should have him tell her that she is causing trouble? HOPING

Dear Hoping—Why tell her that she is causing trouble? She knows it and that's what she wants to do. Ignore her, be as generous and big-hearted as you can. Don't give him any excuse for running to her for sympathy. Your engagement is public announcement that he belongs to you, and while she may be irritating, as long as you keep your head there is little she can do.

He's Jealous

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 17 years old, and a High School pupil and am considered "cute", as my schoolmates call it I like fun, and like to 'kid along" the fellows I know. On the other hand, I have been going with a fellow who is my age, for almost a year. He has taken me to all the school affairs and dances, and we go out very often with his folks He has declared his love for me, and I am most certain I love him. He is terribly jealous and don't think I had ought to be so sociable with any other fellows, because I am going with him Can you advise me as to what I should do to break him of his jealousy? BETTY

Dear Betty—You can not break a man of jealousy. If you love him enough to give up all your other friends and receive attentions from no one but him, then I advise you to do so. However, if there is no formal engagement and he has not asked for one, you would be foolish to humor his moods. Better have a complete understanding with him.

Shall She Leave Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What shall I do? People tell me I have a wonderful husband and don't treat him right. I feed him on groceries he buys and mend, wash and take care of that end of life I do my part, as far as he let's me Yet I am criticized by his friends. I haven't any friends myself because I refuse to talk about people being buried alive and the symptoms of my last illness, and as I was never operated on, I can't talk about that. None of the people here care for shows. They like none but the cheapest. I am getting tired of living like this. I haven't even decent clothes to wear on the street. He makes $50 a week, and we spend only $20 for living expenses I can't even have flowers in my yard, he won't let me. I am only 18 and I want some fun. I am a good dancer and I can make my own living Should I leave him? WORRIED AND WAITING

Dear Worried and Waiting—Certainly you have a right to live your own life, and if you are capable of earning your own living there is no excuse for putting up with unreasonable treatment from any man. On $50 a week you and your husband should be able to live among the sort of people who value the niceties of life, if you can persuade your husband that these things are important. If you have children, think a long time before making a change, but if you have only yourself to think of you'd be justified in breaking loose

Ring Only Symbol

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you please tell me whether a wrist watch signifies an engagement to a girl, or is it a hope chest? AL

Dear Al—The only accepted form of engagement symbol is a ring A wrist watch or hope chest may be given by the fiance in addition as an engagement gift, but do not take the place of a ring.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer readers' questions regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.

Some Points on Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

The Lady Indicates Her Wish

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it improper for a man to extend his hand to a lady when being introduced? JOE.

The man waits for the woman to extend her hand first, to indicate that she wishes to shake hands

Inviting Groom's Parents

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are to be married by a justice of the peace I have never met my fiance's parents and would like to know if it would be proper to send his parents an announcement? If this isn't proper, will you please suggest what is? A READER.

Aren't you inviting your fiance's parents to be present at the ceremony? I do hope that you are, for it is not only bad form but cruel not to invite them. If it is impossible for them to come, and even if you do not know them, still they should be invited. To omit this sort of invitation shows a thoughtlessness that is most unattractive, profoundly bad form, and your fiance should not permit it. Please reconsider!

If you do invite them, and they cannot come, write them just before the wedding and tell them how sorry you are that they cannot come, and tell them something of your plans.

Married Woman's Signature

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me the proper way to sign a check? Also a charge account. I am married This has always been a great puzzle to me. ONE IN DOUBT.

The best form, and the one most often used by a married woman when she is signing her checks is the use of her maiden name before the last name of her married name:

MARY SMITH BROWNE.

She will always be correct if she signs her checks in this way However, if she wishes to omit the last name of her maiden name she may do this correctly, and sign her checks:

MARY BROWNE

Her charge accounts she registers in her formal name: MRS EDWARD ALAN BROWNE.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

THE BEAUTY BOX

Good news: high heels are going down. Which means that the girls won't be trot-trotting to the chiropodists' shop quite so often.

Beware of motoring in strong sunlight without dark glasses. The glare of roads makes the eyebrows pull together, and chummy eyebrows bring frown lines. Squinting is just as bad; it puts turkey tracks around the eyes

Walk with toes pointed straight ahead. Pointing toes outward weakens the ankles, throws the foot out of alignment, creates all manner of foot ills. The ankle is a hinge and it was intended the foot should lift straight up, never sidewise.

Maxims for the Making of Mayonnaise

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Home-Maker's Club of Over 37,000

TRUE MAYONNAISE dressing is uncooked and is made with egg yolks, oil, acid and seasoning. It's a heavy dressing, better suited for luncheon than for a dinner salad, unless it's going to act as a main dish on your dinner menu

Martha Lee

Mayonnaise is versatile, as it can be readily changed to suit many purposes. For instance, whipped cream is added with fruit juice to thin it down as a dressing for fruit salad, and finely minced vegetables may be added to the dressing to give it piquency.

In making your mayonnaise be sure that all the ingredients and utensils are thoroughly chilled Then add the oil slowly at first to prevent separating If, however your dressing should curdle in spite of you, break another egg yolk in an ice cold bowl and slowly beat in the curdled dressing. Add the dressing drop by drop at first beating constantly, and it will soon smooth out

FOUNDATION RECIPE FOR MAYONNAISE

- 1 cup salad oil
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. mustard
- ½ tsp powdered sugar
- 1 tbsp. vinegar
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice

All the utensils which you use, as well as your ingredients, should be cold. But the bowl should not be too cold, as this may cause the dressing to curdle However, while you are mixing the dressing, the bowl may be placed in a pan of crushed ice and water.

Mix and sift the salt, sugar, mustard and pepper into a bowl Add the lemon juice and stir well Add the egg yolk and beat until thoroughly blended, using a silver fork or Dover beater. Start adding the oil drop by drop, beating constantly until one tablespoon of oil has been added Then add one teaspoon of oil at a time, beating thoroughly. When the dressing becomes thick, slowly beat in the vinegar. Then beat in the remaining oil and finally beat in one tsp of boiling water as an added precaution to prevent separation It is the regular continuous beating that makes the perfect mayonnaise. It takes from 10 to 20 minutes to mix the dressing according to the amount you are making

For a delicious Russian dressing add 1 tbsp. of minced green pepper, 1 tbsp. of minced chives or grated onion and 6 tbsp. of chili sauce to 1 cup mayonnaise

For Thousand Island Dressing add 3 tbsp. of chili sauce, 4 tbsp. of oil, 1 tbsp. of Tarragon vinegar, 1 tbsp. of minced chives or onion, 1 tbsp of minced parsley and 2 tbsp. of minced sweet pickles to 1 cup of mayonnaise The oil is beaten into the dressing first, then the vinegar, and the remaining ingredients, and the mixture beaten enough to mix them thoroughly.

When cream is to be added for fruit dressing, omit the mustard and increase the sugar to one or two teaspoons. Add one-half cup of whipped cream to one cup of mayonnaise or more as your taste may dictate.

Speaking of salads, are there any special salad recipes that you'd like to have me send you? Perhaps some of the new jellied salads that are so particularly delicious these sultry days? Yours on request.

Our Canning Column

MRS. F. S. of Brighton sends the following recipe for watermelon preserve:

Cut the watermelon (white part) into small pieces, take off the rind and put into salted water for 2 days Then place them in fresh water for 2 days. Boil in water until tender and drain off the water. Make a rich sirup, a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit, adding two pieces of whole ginger, a stick or two of cinnamon, a lemon cut thin and an orange or two cut in quarters. Put all together and cook until quite thick. Put into jars and when cold cover and seal down.

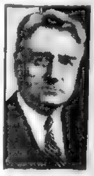
How to Keep Well

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

Hay Fever Lessened by Careful Diet and Rest

WARNINGS against hay fever are out. Every year we hear a great deal about the sufferings of humanity from this disease However, there is a bright side to the picture



Dr. Copeland

For example, the clinics in the 38 hospitals and other institutions in New York city are co-operating with the medical profession and public in giving to sufferers of hay fever inoculations by serums The list of clinics has been announced in the newspapers and thousands will take advantage of this preventive treatment

Hay fever is a catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membrane of the eyes, nose and throat. The exciting cause is the irritation of the pollen from plants and vegetables of various types

Fortunate is the victim of this ailment who can get away to the mountains Another method of escape is an ocean voyage, away from the vegetation that excited

Every sufferer from hay fever should be careful of his diet.

He should have plenty of sleep. It is a good thing to use an atomizer with an antiseptic solution, spraying the nose and throat every hour or two. The use of the atomizer should be begun early and continue as long as the disease lasts.

HEALTH QUERIES

M. W. Q.—What will take away the mucus in my throat?

A.—You are probably troubled with nasal catarrh, with dropping into the throat In its cure first attention must be given to correcting the underlying catarrhal condition.

E. H. H. Q. What causes deep circles under the eyes? My health is otherwise good.

A.—These blemishes may be due to lack of sleep, worry, intestinal upsets, etc. Try to find the underlying cause and the proper treatment will suggest itself

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

New York, July 12—Important shares generally closed at or near the day's tops in week-end trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Share prices again turned upward in today's brief session, causing a more cheerful attitude in speculative quarters, as the market closed the third week of relative stability.

Trading continued at an extremely modest pace, and commission house comment was still inclined to be uncertain, but, with the return for Europe of a prominent bull operator, somewhat sooner than had been expected, many shorts were inclined to close out their commitments and await developments.

OIL PRICE WAR ENDS

The week-end business news as a whole could hardly be interpreted bullishly, but as nothing very impressive can be expected at this period of summer lull, the fact that the downward curve of activity appeared to be flattening out was at least reassuring.

Large oil companies on the Pacific Coast announced cessation of the gasoline price cutting war, removing one source of unsettlement, and the monthly building statistics bore out optimistic forecasts. F. W. Dodge placed contracts let in June East of the Rockies at $600,573,400, compared with $529,891,100 in June, 1929.

A wide assortment of important industrials and utilities moved up about 2 to 5 points, but there were a few slight recessions from the day's best in final few minutes of trading, a normal Saturday development.

WELCOME TO MEEHAN

Radio Corp. was active and strong, rising 3 points to above 39, compared to a recent low of the year at 32½, and a peak during the bull movement which culminated in early March of 69⅞.

Bidding up of this issue was regarded in speculative quarters as in the nature of a greeting on the return to Europe of M. J. Meehan, specialist in the stock during its spectacular rise of the late big bull market.

Hershey Chocolate was also a favorite, rising over 5 points, in operations based on reports that it had stocked up with cocoa at recent low prices, and planned no cuts in the price of its products. Such issues as U. S. Steel, General Electric, American Water Works, Standard of N. J., National Biscuit, New York Central, Consolidated Gas and Loew's rose 2 to 5 points. Some stocks were inclined to sag in the early trading, but soon turned upward.

The close was strong.

Investigation into circumstances which led to suspension of Sutro & Co. from the Stock Exchange for dealing in Manhattan Electrical Supply will be conducted by federal authorities with view to criminal prosecution, if warranted, U. S. Atty. Tuttle announced.

Postal inspectors have been assigned to conduct an investigation, and appointments have been made with several complainants, who allege they lost money in dealings in the stock and the counsel for other parties interested have agreed to call on Mr. Tuttle.

LARGE HOLDERS KEEP STOCKS

There is no evidence that large holdings of important stocks have been liquidated, West & Co. declare in a discussion of the present market situation in their Fortnightly Financial Review. This is a point which is highly important as indicating views of the future held in high banking circles, they say:

"The United Corp., for instance, in their various reports show increased holdings of shares of the companies in which they are interested and the Lehman Corp., a $100,000,000 management trust reports as of June 30 government bonds held totaling $16,030,767.03; other bonds, $1,910,809.51; preferred stocks, $4,881,536.59, and common stocks of $72,511,556.40.

"These statements indicate we believe that confidence in the future of our large corporations is still unimpaired despite the extreme wave of pessimism that is sweeping the world," says the review.

Otis Elevator's Report Is Given

New York, July 12—Otis Elevator Co. reports for quarter ended June 30 net profit of $1,435,055 after depreciation and federal taxes, against $2,069,039 in the same quarter of 1929. For six months ended June 30 net profit was $3,194,498, against $3,761,555.

N. Y.—Net income of Otis Elevator Co. for six months ended June 30 is equal, after dividend requirements on 6 per cent preferred to $1.49 a share on the 2,000,000 shares of no par common, against $1.78 a share in the first half of 1929 computed on the same share basis.

Net income for the quarter ended June 30 equalled 68 cents a common share, against 88 cents a share on the same share basis in the June quarter of 1929.

For the three-months' period ended June 30, 1930, International Cement Corporation reports net earnings after all expenses, charges and taxes of $1,210,282, equal to $1.89 a share on the 631,356 shares outstanding, comparing with $1,149,788 in second quarter of 1929, equal to $1.86 a share on 619,031 shares then outstanding, and with net income of $841,480 or $1.34 a share in the first quarter of the current period.

For the first six months of 1930 net income of $2,051,763, or $3.25 a share, compares with $2,167,408 in the same period of 1929, equal to $3.50 a share upon the smaller number of shares outstanding.

Surplus of finished copper at refineries in North and South America at end of June totaled 316,761 tons, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Production of copper by United States mines amounted to 56,465 short tons (2000 pounds) in June against 60,238 tons in May and 82,354 tons in June, 1929.

In June, Pond Creek Pocahontas mined 104,013 tons of coal, exceeding by over 18,000 the May production of 85,708 tons, previously the record month. The company's new property is contributing about a third of the total tonnage and much the greater part of the profits. The new property did not start until February and did not come into material production until May.

In view of the exceedingly low prices that have prevailed so far this year, statement for the half year will show earnings about equal to those of last year, which were $15,180 after interest, depreciation, depletion and federal taxes. Hayden, Stone & Co., bankers for the company, state that earning power from the new property alone should be very substantial without counting anything from the old property, which has shown earnings of $1.50 to $3 per share before depreciation and depletion in recent years.

Holdings of Steel investors June 30 were 6,971,042 shares or 81.43 per cent of total, against 6,677,215 shares or 78 per cent March 31 and 6,000,767 shares or 74.73 per cent on July 31, 1929. The holdings of brokers in New York State on June 30 were 1,507,941 shares or 17.61 per cent, against 1,778,111 shares or 20.77 per cent on March 31 and 1,942,211 shares or 24.18 per cent July 31, 1929.

Investors' holdings in the State June 30 were 2,258,340 shares or 26.38 per cent, against 2,137,297 shares or 24.96 per cent and 1,862,897 or 23.19 per cent respectively. Foreign holdings of Steel common at the end of June were 170,503 shares or 1.99 per cent, against 171,947 shares or 2 per cent March 31 and 183,396 shares or 2.28 per cent on July 31, 1929.

Presence in the portfolio of the United Founders group on May 31 last of 70,000 American Telephone rights indicates that these trusts are planning a substantial increase in their holdings of American Telephone stock. On the date mentioned they had 6000 shares and rights on hand were sufficient to subscribe to 11,666 additional shares.

Eastern Steamship Lines has reported for five months to May 31 deficit of $58,014 compared with a deficit for the same period of last year of $67,358, a reduction of less than $10,000 in the face of a shrinkage in gross income during the first five months of $384,831. June, 1929, was an extraordinarily good month, with a surplus of $330,963. It is not expected that June of this year will quite come up to last, but with such an excellent control over expenses as the company has exhibited, the statement for the first half year should be not far behind that of last year, which showed a net income of $263,605.

Cash holdings of Eastern Steamship, which on Dec. 31 last aggregated $1,853,161, mostly in a replacement fund for the construction of new floating equipment, had increased to upwards of $2,800,000 at the end of May this year.

Wool Stock Men to Gather on July 25

A trade practice conference of the wool stock industry, with Commissioner Hunt presiding, will be called by the Federal Trade Commission in New York city on Friday, July 25, according to an announcement issued by the Wool Stock Council, Inc.

Wool stock traders from this city have been invited by the Federal Trade Commission to attend the conference, which will draw up a code of business practices for the industry.

The woolen rag industry is reported to do an annual business of fifty million dollars. Fifield-Yoffe-Krasnow, Inc., of Chelsea, Burmon and Bolonsky, Inc., J. Hausman & Sons and Sherwin-Sheppard Co. of this city are members of the Wool Stock Council, Inc., a national organization of representative wool stock graders.

Bituminous Coal Exports Increase

Exports of bituminous coal from the United States during the first five months of the current year registered an increase over the same period of 1929, according to the Coal Section, Department of Commerce. The total for this year's period is 4,890,320 long tons as compared with 4,843,835 long tons in 1929.

One railroad has reduced its rate on coal for export through certain Gulf ports, but this action is believed to have had no bearing on the general export coal trade, inasmuch as only a very small tonnage moves through the ports affected.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Clark, Childs & Co.—We continue of the opinion that individuals who have been postponing purchases in anticipation of a more favorable buying opportunity around the first of August are going to be disappointed.

Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co.—We view the immediate future of the stock market as subject to continued irregularities, but do not believe that recent low levels will be reached during periods when reactionary tendencies prevail.

Otis & Co.—We feel that the only conservative policy is to continue on the sidelines until the situation becomes more clearly defined.

Hornblower & Weeks—As we have already said, we do not expect trading markets, taken by themselves, to have any particular significance over the next several weeks, since we feel securities generally will be backing and filling in a way that will have little meaning for those interested in the long range viewpoint.

We repeat our suggestion, made yesterday morning to those primarily interested in the nearby fluctuations of the market, that they hold off making further commitments until the market itself supplies its own trading clue, just as it did last Tuesday and again in the opening hour Thursday morning.

Gurnett & Co.—The security market gave a much better account of itself in the last week, demonstrating rallying ability in several sessions. Sentiment appears more encouraging, although there is very little in the way of tangible evidence as yet of improved business conditions.

It is our opinion that the present time should be devoted to readjusting security holdings in view of the many opportunities available for advantageous exchanges.

Langdon Ordered to Colombia Post

Washington, July 12—Chauncey T. Langdon, of Providence, R. I., has been appointed assistant trade commissioner to Bogota, Colombia, according to an announcement today by W. L. Cooper, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Before entering the service of the Department of Commerce, Mr. Langdon was connected with a large general commission house of Providence.

Mr. Langdon's preliminary education was begun in the public schools of Providence, and he later studied for a year in the preparatory school at the Chateau de Prangins, Switzerland. He completed his academic studies at Phillips Andover Academy and at Brown University, being graduated from the latter institution with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1918. He speaks French, Spanish and Italian.

EXPORT TRADE BEGUN WITH CLAPBOARDS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Wilson Compton, secretary of th National Lumber Manufacturer Assn., gives a radio address thi evening over the Columbia chai in which he will tell of "Lumbe the Pioneer Industry." An advanc copy of the address is sent us, enabling us to say Mr. Compton of fers an interesting picture of earl lumbering in Massachusetts an the culling of Maine forests tw centuries ago to provide masts an spars for the King's navy.

Mr. Compton does not mentio the interesting fact that the firs export cargo sent out of the Unite States consisted of clapboards, shipped from Plymouth a few months after the Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Orra L. Stone

We are indebted to Orra L. Stone, general manager of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, for this historical fact.

We find no one in State st., wh sees anything in the I. C. C. appro val of the Chesapeake & Ohio pla that indicates any change in th commission's past policies.

"Belief is expressed that the mission for C. & O. to split its stock opens the way for similar recapitalization by New York Central, Atchison and other roads with stocks selling above a popular price range."

The real market help for the rail will appear when better earning statments, due in the last half o the year, are given to the buyin public.

Stanley W. Prenosil, former Associated Press financial editor states:

"The recent advance in bond prices is one of the few encouraging developments of the current situation. After periods of depression in the past, a recovery in bond prices invariably has preceded a recovery in stocks. Strength of the bond market is therefore regarded by many as a good omen. From a trading standpoint, we still adhere to the policy of selling stocks on all sharp rallies and confining purchases to high grade stocks of demonstrated earning power in periods of weakness."

Training city boys for farm work is the method now being tried out by the German government to compensate for the large number of farm hands which have been attracted to the cities, according to a report from Consul E. Talbot Smith at Hamburg, made public by the Department of Commerce.

A school, consisting of a 300-acre farm capable of accommodating 100 young men with sleeping quarters, day halls, dining room and lecture halls, has been established in Schleswig-Holstein, the report states. The pupils are separated into groups with an instructor, and are obliged to take in all work necessary on a farm, being assigned to particular duties every few days. In addition to the regular instruction in farming and the care of live stock special courses are given in the operation and upkeep of farm machinery.

Combined with the practical experience of operating the farm, the students are given lectures and theoretical training in the breeding of animals, knowledge of farm machinery, and the principles of soil cultivation, the entire course being supervised by farm experts with many years of practical experience.

* * *

The students are watched very carefully and if the instructors believe they will not prove to be efficient farmers, they are sent back, while those who successfully complete the training are assigned to farmers who have applied for help.

DIVIDENDS COVERED.

Miss E. H., Boston—I am a business woman and want to buy stock. How about Associated Gas & Electric "A"?

Ans.—Earnings of $3.64 a share in 1929; $4.31 in 1928, and $5.75 in 1927 cover the 30 cents a share quarterly dividend maintained on Associated Gas & Electric Class "A" stock since May, 1925. In lieu of cash, stockholders can take 1-40th share Class "A." The stock has equal participating rights with the common after payment of the Class "A." The stock has equal participating rights with the common after payment on the Class "A" and common stocks of quarterly dividends equal to the aggregate quarterly priority dividend on Class "A" February 1, 1930, stockholders received 40 cents extra, or 2-125th shares Class "A." The company controls a large public utility system with properties in various sections of the country. To judge what you should buy, however, we need facts as to your circumstances.

UNDER BANK INTEREST

J. F., Lynn—You have advised me well on former occasions. Do you consider American Can a good purchase at current levels?

Ans.—Were you to buy American Can now you would get 8½ per cent, which is less than savings banks pay. However, the company is a large manufacturer of tin containers. Net income in 1929 was the equivalent of $8.62 a share, compared with $6.86 in 1928 and $4.11 in 1927. Dividends have been paid from 1923. The annual rate now is $4 a share. Extras of $1 each were paid January 2 and December 2, 1929. How much capital have you? What income do you need?

WOULD TAKE LOSS

M. W., Fitchburg—I own some Westinghouse Electric at 170. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans.—Were you to sell now you would take a loss. Westinghouse Electric is the country's second largest manufacturer of electrical equipment. Annual dividends of $4 a share were paid from 1920. Since January, 1930, the rate has been $5. Net for 1929 was $10.15 a share constrasted with $8.78 in 1928; in the first quarter of current year, $1.70 a share compared with $2.11 for similar period of 1928. If you bought for income you can afford to ignore fluctuations. If your interest in the stock is speculation, however, we could [illegible]

Carnegie Steel's Schedule Keeps Up

Sharon, Pa., July 12—For first time in two weeks, operating schedules at various Shenango Valley mills have been about normal. Past week Sharon Steel Hoop Co. plant, down last week while inventory was being taken, was operating at 75 per cent.

Carnegie Steel Co. continued, with its same schedule with two blast furnaces of three and skelp mill still down. Plant is on five-day week operation.

Farrell and Mercer Works of American Sheet Tin Plate Co. and American Steel & Wire Co. have not changed schedules.

Less Cottonseed Crushed to Date

Washington, July 12—Cottonseed crushed in the 11 months from August 1 to June 30 was announced today by the Census Bureau as 4,952,314 tons. This compares with 5,006,893 for the same period a year ago. Cottonseed on hand at mills June 30 was 77,295 tons, comparing with 65,091 a year ago.

CURB MARKET CLOSES WEEK WITH RALLY

New York, July 12 — The Curb Market ended the week on a rally that lifted a fair-sized list of representative shares 1 to 3 points.

Until the last half hour trading was dull and prices lagged, but a brisk demand for oil shares in the late dealings tended the improvement to other groups.

Electric Bond & Share crossed 80 for a 2 point net gain, but other utilities were unable to follow the pace of the leaders, and most of them were satisfied with fractional advances.

Vacuum led the oils with a 3 point rise, closely followed by Cosden, Humble and Gulf, which were up around two teach. Cities Service and Missouri Kansas Pipe were firm.

Several of the industrials were strong. American Tobacco "B" rallied a couple of points while Driver Harris extended yesterday's advance.

Transamerica's response to the announcement of a proposed dividend reduction was a maximum break of about 5 points, although the stock recovered a point or two from the bottom, closing just under 22, another new low.

The annual report for 1929 showed earnings of around $3 a share. The present quarterly dividend of 40 cents is to be reduced to 25 cents for the October payment.

BANK DEPOSITS AID TRADE

It is rarely that bank customers increase their deposits and reduce their borrowings at the same time. Usually a customer borrows money and deposits the proceeds; in consequence loans and deposits move upward together. He pays his loan by checking on deposits built up for that purpose; consequently loans and deposits fall together.

When customers can reduce their loans and deposits at the same time a fundamental improvement in credit structure is clearly indicated. Savings are being accumulated. A sound foundation is being laid.

So it is of interest and significance that since December 4 of last year deposits in leading banks have been increased $779,000,000. This indicates a total increase of approximately $2,000,000,000, since leading banks represent only about 40 per cent of all banks in the matter of deposits.

During this same period there has been a moderate decrease in outstanding credits. True, it only amounts to $43,000,000 for leading banks, or say $100,000,000 for all banks, but even that is quite an accomplishment.

Due to declining commodity prices it seems probable that the present movement may continue for some time, subject to occasional reverses. Business is likely to require less credit, relatively, even though activity increases. Savings on the contrary, may continue to increase in form of deposits.

With deposits built up to a high point business men will be able to carry on expansion and improvement programs by simply checking on their deposits—less borrowing will be required.

Those who have these large deposits will eventually begin to make use of them. They are held back right now,—partly through fear. There is fear to use funds for productive purposes; fear to invest. But some day these deposits will be used. Right now they represent a stored up stimulant says the Boston News Bureau. All history teaches this lesson.

MOTOR GROUP LEADS RISE

By E. W. DIEFENDORF,
Irving Fisher Service.

New Haven, July 12—In this week's general rise of the stock market, the motors group was most active, closing Friday with a gain of 4.6 per cent from last week's high at closing.

Auto accessories also rose by 4.6 per cent, closing yesterday 1.3 per cent above last week's high of this group. Rails have moved steadily upward after their loss of less than 1 per cent on Monday. They closed Friday up 2.6 per cent from last week's close, and 2.2 per cent above their high of July 2.

Household products, oils, machinery and railroad equipment, foods, stores, electrical equipment and chemicals have each gained more than 1.5 per cent this week.

The groups that have receded are building supplies, chemicals, coppers, electrical, farm machinery, office equipment, radio, tobaccos, utilities and miscellaneous stocks, with losses at the close of from 0.4 per cent in tobaccos to 3.2 per cent in farm machinery.

NEW ENGLAND STORES CHAIN PROSPERS

In pleasant contrast to the falling off in sales currently reported by such representative chain store concerns as Woolworth and Kroger Grocery, leaders among publicly owned companies in their fields, is the continued growth of business by the New England grocery unit, First National Stores, Inc. For the five weeks ended June 28 the sales increase is 10.1 per cent, and for the first 13 weeks of the new fiscal year the gain is a trifle larger, at 10.7 per cent.

In view of the great reduction in prices of staple food-stuffs the gain in unit sales has been, of course, much greater and is estimated to run close to 20 per cent. While First National Stores during the past year acquired important companies in Connecticut and Rhode Island, the new stores have been contributing only half of the gain in dollar and cents volume, old stores accounting for fully as much of the addition.

First National divides its territory, New England, into 22 zones, each with its own specific expense ratio and by this method actual trend of each section and exact earning power of every store can be determined at any time.

With a sales volume running at the rate of approximately $120,000,000, First National Stores is New England's largest enterprise. In number of stores it is outranked only by Great Atlantic & Pacific and Kroger Grocery. That size has not detracted from efficiency is the conclusion of the second of a series of none too optimistic articles on chain stores in Printers' Ink, in which the 1929 results are termed "the best record made by any chain store concern in the past year."

That record was the increase of 65 per cent in profits with attendant advance in per share common balance from $4.24 to $5.34. Current earnings are understood to be running at about the same rate as for the March 31 quarter or at the rate of a trifle over $5 a share annually.

Following tabulation of profits and earnings per share of First National Stores, Inc., by quarters for two years shows how consistent has been its progress:

Pete Frazer Certainly Wined and Dined His Face His Fortune—Not Handsome "No-One-at-Home" Sign Attracts Robbers One Out of 30 Insured Residences Robbed

By A. Wilbur Nelson

I see by the Hartford papers that Pete Frazer is still being wined and dined, this time at the Hartford end where he has taken up his duties as vice-president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company.

A. Wilbur Nelson

Just before he left New York city a testimonial dinner was given in his honor. It was a huge success and after the serious part of paying tribute to Mr. Frazer, a wrestling bout was staged between "Kid Herman, from the mines of Pennsylvania" and another young chap.

You are all familiar with the fierce physiognomies of Bull Montana and Louis Wolheim. Well, when I first saw Kid Herman I decided that his face also might be his fortune.

Sure enough, a couple of days later, when Charles Freeman, advertising manager of the "America Fore" companies showed me one of their burglary insurance ads, there (if I am not mistaken) was "The Kid" in the role of a burglar, climbing through the window to plunder someone's home and make them sorry they carried no burglary insurance.

But so it goes, whether you are at home or abroad, there is always danger from thieves as proven by the story told me by Leonard Rich, president of Leonard L. Rich, Inc., insurance brokers. It is one of the best arguments in favor of burglary insurance I have ever read, and is particularly appropriate now.

* * *

The individual who makes his living by annexing the personal property of others finds in the vacation months his season of greatest opportunity.

Even stay-at-homes do not remain there any more than they have to in the summer.

* * *

People who spend their vacations by touring the country, visiting at the seaside or at any of the thousand and one resorts situated in the cooler climes, as well as those who prefer shorter trips of the week-end variety, usually leave their dwellings or apartments in just the condition most conducive to a visit by the prowler.

* * *

And since ocean-going travel has become so common place, many homes are closed the major part of the summer, while other families having the distinction of two homes, close one of them for almost the entire vacation season.

* * *

The vacation activities of so many millions of persons, covering as they do varying periods of time, would cause the student of the "vacation curve" to say that the number of prospects on the lists of burglars, robbers and thieves must run into the millions.

From the number of prisoners now committed in State penal institutions of the country on account of such acts as burglary, robbery, theft or larceny—more than half—it would seem that most of the criminally-inclined do not overlook any opportunity to increase the amount of their "income" by failure to take advantage of a dwelling having all the earmarks of being closed or one which provides easy access even during occupancy.

* * *

The present frequency of bank robberies may have taken some of the public's attention away from the dangers of residence burglaries, but the development of so-called more profitable criminal fields has not caused any noticeable reduction in residence burglaries.

The records of one insurance company indicate that for the country as a whole a loss is paid for about each 30 residences insured against burglary. The enormous amount of residence burglary losses occurring throughout the country is also indicated by the approximately two million dollars which have been paid out in claims under residence burglary, robbery and theft policies by only one company during the last five years.

* * *

Burglars and robbers do not by any means limit their activities to the larger cities. They have been able, with the aid of automobiles, to get into the so-called thinly settled sections, including smaller cities and towns.

* * *

No matter how attractive jewelry, silverware and furs are to burglars, the amounts paid out for losses on household property other than that mentioned have been increasing. Last year one company reports that its residence burglary losses on the property ordinarily left at home when the family is away amounted to 45 per cent of the total claims paid.

MARKET VIEWS OF BULL GIVEN TO FORBES

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

New York, July 12—How refreshing it was yesterday to meet a 100 per cent Wall Street bull. Let me give you his reading of what's what—remember, it is his, not mine.

"The United States government never, in its whole history, was so active in trying to bring about a better stock market than it is today. More is going on in this direction than the public knows anything about. President Hoover himself is eager to see the starting up of more cheerful conditions in the security markets.

"The Federal Reserve Board is prepared to go to any lengths to make money cheap and plentiful. It was the Reserve Board's constant attack upon the money market that brought about the terrible collapse in stocks last fall. It took the board some time to get its own way. The board is even more eager now to see stocks advance than it was last year to see them decline. It has been working to bring about favorable money conditions for nine months, and you can bet that it will win out. Cheap money will be as effective in raising stock prices this year as dear money was in knocking them on the head last year.

"The short interest in the stock market today," he continued, "is the largest ever known. Not only that, but brokers are carrying extremely few stocks for their customers. Some of the biggest Stock Exchange firms have reduced their loans to the lowest totals in a blue moon. Every Tom, Dick and Harry has felt safe in selling stocks short this year. It used to be that only professional traders and others thoroughly familiar with stock speculation sold short. But apparently a great many fellows feel that they now know a lot about the stock market and how to beat it. So they have been having a wonderful time going short.

"But they are soon going to learn that it can be just as dangerous to be a bear as it proved to be a bull last fall. Developments are under way which, if they go through as planned, will give the bears a terrible shock.

"The biggest bull pool ever attempted in Wall Street is now being formed. I feel sure that it will be successfully organized. It isn't only a pool of a few stock market operators, but is to include far stronger banking cooperation than any other pool Wall Street has ever known.

"Tests are being made now to find out just what the actual condition of the market is. It is being discovered that it takes only orders for a few thousand shares to send up a stock. This means that the market has not only been sold to a standstill but that it has been oversold tremendously.

"Already," he went on, "there has begun quite a little quiet accumulating of stocks by important people. One trouble is that it hasn't yet been possible to accumulate enough. The big fellows want to get much larger lines of cheap stocks before they start the fireworks. Maybe they will engineer an attack with a view to bringing out a lot of stock before the real upward move is launched.

"Anyway, the stage is being set for big things on the upside. Here you have the government, the Federal Reserve Board, the country's largest employers, the banks, investment trusts, wealthy individual investors, everybody, in favor of putting an end to pessimism and falling prices. Add to this the present 1½ to 2½ per cent money in Wall Street, and you have a combination that can't be licked."

There you have one view not hedged about by ifs, ands and buts. Use your own judgment as to how sound the view may be.

One stock exchange house has issued this statement:

"We know of excellent buying. It has been going on for several days, and while it has not stimulated prices it will have a steadying effect that will be cumulative. London has been a persistent buyer since early in May, as our records and those of other houses doing European business show. They have been pretty accurate over there in their estimates of conditions here. Don't forget that London began selling our stocks two months before the October break in New York. It may be that their reversal of attitude now is worthy of consideration."

* * *

Admittedly, only pessimists and bears are thus far able to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again." The rest of us will sooner or later have our inning.

BOND MARKET LED UPWARD BY CARRIERS

New York, July 12 (AP)—Despite the usual Saturday dullness, railroad issues were buoyant as they continued under accumulation and the standard issues maintained a firm trend.

Rail issues legal for savings banks showed strength. Atchison 4s sold at their year's peak price with a ½ point gain, while Union Pacific 4s, another popular issue, was moderately active at yesterday's closing price. Great Northern 7s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s '95 B and Southern Pacific 4s were other issues which showed rising tendencies.

American Telephone 5s were in demand. Western Union 5s were strong with a gain of about 1 point, industrials were steady and received little attention from buyers. Among convertibles, activity centered in carrier issues and narrow fluctuations were the rule as stocks rose.

LONG BATTLE OVER STEEL

Youngstown, O., July 12—With trial of the "billion-dollar lawsuit" over the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation placed in cold storage for the week-end adjournment, predictions were freely circulated here today that whatever the outcome of the present case, the battle over the merger will wage on and on, ad infinitum.

There appears to be no doubt that, no matter what decision Judge David G. Jenkins, who is hearing the spectacular case in common pleas court here, hands down, it will be appealed and the fight will be carried to the bitter end.

Testimony, when it is resumed, is expected to center about the unsecured loan of $800,000 by Bethlehem Steel Corporation to Pickands, Mather & Co. for the purchase of Sheet & Tube stock to be voted in favor of the merger.

The loan was revealed Friday in testimony of Henry Dalton, partner of Pickands, Mather & Co.

Anti-merger attorneys are attempting to show violation of the federal anti-trust laws through proof of their contention that Bethlehem money was used in putting across the merger with Sheet & Tube.

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, will be called to the witness stand to explain details of the loan transaction, anti-merger attorneys have announced. Elton Hoyt II., who is reported to have had a part in the negotiation, will also be examined.

Other witnesses, whom the anti-merger attorneys have declared they will call to the witness stand, include Frank Purnell, president of Sheet & Tube, and W. J. Morris, financial vice-president of the Youngstown concern.

Austrian Loan to Come Out July 16

London, July 12—Austrian government loan of $60,000,000 will be issued in participating markets July 16. Contracts will be signed in London July 14. Amount allotted to New York is $25,000,000, to London 3,000,000 pounds, balance to Sweden, Holland, Austria, Italy and Switzerland. Paris will not participate. Terms will be announced Monday.

BOMB WRECKS SOCIAL CLUB IN NEW YORK

New York, July 12 (AP)—With a roar that was heard half a mile and with sufficient force to shatter scores of windows in the neighborhood, a bomb was exploded early today on a window ledge of the Simplon Social Club, occupying a five-story building in West 53rd st., between 5th and 6th aves.

Two cleaners and a caretaker were the only persons in the building. The club had closed at 3 a. m., an hour and a half before the explosion. No one was injured.

Windows in front of the club were shattered and the ledge on which the bomb had been placed was blown away. The explosion was heard as far north as 59th st. and south to 47th st. Fragments of the bomb shattered several windows in buildings opposite.

The Simplon Club was chartered in 1929 and is conducted by two brothers, Nicholas and John Prunis, and is managed by Patrick Kyne. Several hours after the explosion the police were still trying to get in touch with the proprietors or manager in an effot to learn the possible reason for the bombing.

TWO NEW SHIPS FOR HUB LINE

Construction will begin in a few months on two passenger and cargo liners for the Eastern Steamship Co. of Boston, which has been granted a loan of $4,661,220 by the United States Shipping Board.

This long-term loan will make possible increased service between Boston, New York and ports in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The announcement was made last night in Washington by the board, before whom Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell appeared yesterday.

Bids were recently opened in Boston for the new ships. The lowest bidder was Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., which probably will receive the contract for the work.

Shipping circles had hoped that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. of Fall River, or the Bath Shipbuilding Co. in Bath, Me., might win the award so that work could be provided for New Englanders.

The new steamers will be built from designs by Naval Architect T. A. Ferris of New York. Accommodations will be made for 600 passengers. The usual speed of 20 knots is stipulated.

CHURCHES

Reconciled

Justice of the Supreme Court Louis D. Brandeis has come again into the Zionist movement as an outstanding leader. There is much rejoicing among a large following.

Editor Jas. J. Walsh Back From Carthage

Editor Walsh, in summing up his impressions of the great Eucharist Congress in Carthage, writes the following:

"The supreme note of the congress was the number of men of widely different nationalities encountered among the crowd, many of them in the picturesque garbs of their peoples. Chesterton, in the first sentence of his introduction to the life of the Cure d'Ars, said: 'The Catholic Church is much too universal to be called international for she is older than the nations.' Perhaps never was that expression better exemplified than in this Thirtieth International Eucharistic Congress at Carthage. The wisdom of Pope Piu XI in selecting the African city for this congress was eminently justified by the event. It is a thing of the past, but it will be remembered forever by those who had part in it."

Last Sermon of Season for Dr. Lovett

Tomorrow Mr. Lovett will preach for the last time until September at Mount Vernon Church, Beacon st. and Massachusetts ave. The service in the evening at 8 o'clock will be in the Church Garden and there will be special music by Walter Hopkins, cornetist. Mr. Lovett will preach, "God's Happy Warrior."

The associate minister of Mount Vernon Church, Rev. Andrew Burns Chalmers, and his wife are expected back the end of this week from a three months' visit to West Africa, where they represented the church and the American Board of Foreign Missions at the West Africa Golden Jubilee. Mr. Chalmers will take over the preaching and parochial duties at the church, beginning next week. All through the summer morning worship will be held as usual at 11 o'clock and during July and August the evening service in the Church Garden will be maintained, weather permitting.

Prominent Boston Clergyman to Marry

The Rev. Walter E. Woodbury, who for six years was pastor of the Baptist church in Melrose, and last year resigned to go to California, is soon to be married to Miss Gladys Rockwell, who was his assistant for two and a half years. She has been the diretor of religious education. Mr. Woodbury is now in charge of missionary work in southern California.

The couple are both graduates of Newton Theological Seminary, Miss Roberts in the class of 1927 and Mr. Woodbury in the class of 1911. He is a graduate of Brown University, 1906, and Miss Roberts graduated from Boston University in 1925. They will make their permanent home near Los Angeles.

Unitarian Laymen Gather at Shoals

Church School Institute of the Unitarian Laymen's League will be in session at Star Island July 12 to 19. There will be co-operation with the department of religious education. Waitstill Sharp is dean of the institute. The faculty will include besides Mr. Sharp, Professor William Ernest Hocking, Mrs. Sophia Lyon Fahs, Dr. Abraham Myerson, the Rev. Chester A. Drummond, James G. McDonald, the Rev. Norman Fletcher, Miss Francis Wood, Miss D. Louise Henderson, Miss Marion Drew Bassett, Carl B. Wetherell.

Miss Virginia Frederick will be in charge of supervised play for delegates' children.

Union Service in Belmont Church

Prof. S. Ralph Harlow, of Smith College, will preach at a Union service in the Payson Park Church of Belmont, Sunday morning at 9:45. The Belmont St. Baptist Church and the Belmont M. E. Church will unite with the Payson Park Church in this service.

Prof. Harlow is one of the most popular teachers in Smith. He is widely sought for as a leader among young people. He has many friends in greater Boston who will be glad of this opportunity to hear him.

CHURCH GAIN CONTINUES NORMAL

A study of church membership and number of churches in the United States shows no alarming decrease. Figures show that between 1916 and 1926—the years studied, that of every 100 persons over 13 years of age 55 per cent were church members. The ratio remained the same in 1916 and also in 1926.

An analysis showed that membership is increasing slightly in the rural districts and losing about equally in the cities.

The number of churches is on the decrease. This is accounted for by the fact that many communities are uniting under one community church, and in other localities denominations are co-operating and often going under a single roof. There was in 1926 212 separate denominations, and 232 churches. The studies have been made by Dr. C. Luther Fry, for the Institute of Social and Religious Research.

900 Children at Safety Meeting

Nine hundred children from the eight playgrounds in Charlestown, yesterday attended a safety meeting held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Safety Council in the Hollywood Theater, Chelsea st., Charlestown.

The children were addressed by Major Lewis E. MacBrayne, manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council, and Patrolman Wiswall W. Randolph.

Pictures were shown depicting the dangers to children in stealing rides on vehicles and running into the streets. Manager Stone, who donated the theater, also displayed several Western comedies.

King's Chaplain Again at St. Paul's

Rev. Charles E. Raven, canon of Liverpool Cathedral and chaplain to King George V., will close his present visit to Boston tomorrow with two final addresses at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, at 11 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m., and also an additional address at a service arranged to make it possible, at Christ Church, Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. This latter service has been the result of interest in Canon Raven on the part of the newly installed rector, Rev. Leslie Glenn, and in answer to a desire on the part of Cambridge people to hear him.

First Baby Flier Lands at Airport

The youngest air passenger ever to arrive at Boston Airport, Janet Dodge, 14 months old, arrived with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dodge, both physicians, in a New England & Western Air Transport Ford trimotored air liner, from Albany, late yesterday.

The young lady enjoyed her air ride from start to finish, and exclaimed loudly when the big plane was landed at Springfield, Mass., for the change to the Boston air liner. The parents declared at Boston Airport that their daughter was certain to become an air traveller when she grew up.

Boston Common Preaching Service

John Daboll, Church of the New Jerusalem, Brookline; the Rev. John R. Dallinger, Grace Episcopal church, Newton, and the Rev. Guy N. Wayne, Copley Methodist church, Boston. Mr. Daboll will act as chairman and Mr. William Morgan will play the cornet for hymn singing.

Federation Gives WBZA Radio Service

The mid-week broadcasted religious service over WBZA at 9:45 next Wednesday will have as speaker on July 16, the Rev. William J. Rutledge, pastor of the Baptist church East Boston.

To Be Married

The Rev. Walter E. Woodbury, for six years pastor of the Melrose Baptist Church, and a member of several committees of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, will be married to his assistant, Miss Gladys Rockwell.

President

Dorothy Tilden Spoerl of Orono, Me., has presided this past week over the annual convention of the Young People's Christian Union of the Universalist Church, holding sessions in the Church of the Redemption on Ipswich st. She is the second girl to be president of the Y P. C. U. The meetings, which began July 9, will close tomorrow.

Churches of Christ, Scientist, Tomorrow

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 13.

The Golden text is: "Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth in me shall never thirst." (John 6:35.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life:" (John 6:63.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "As the individual ideal of truth, Christ Jesus came to rebuke rabbinical error and all sin, sickness, and death, to point out the way of Truth and Life . . . Jesus taught the way of Life by demonstration, that we may understand how this divine principle heals the sick, casts out error, and triumphs over death" (pp. 30, 25).

The Sunday service of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is held at 10:45 a. m.

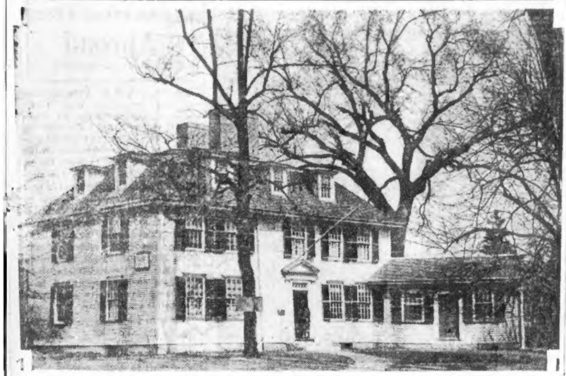
BUCKMAN TAVERN, LEXINGTON



MANY WERE THE ORDINARIES and inns of early days, but the Buckman Tavern was an aristocrat among them. Overlooking the Green at Lexington, it has stood since 1690, having passed unscathed through trying times.

The General Court of Massachusetts at an early date recognized the importance of public houses. Keeping without license "a common victualling house" was punished by a fine of 20 shillings per week.

The increasing need of taverns caused the granting of licenses to be transferred to the county courts. Providing for the welfare of the traveler and regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors were important items to the magistrates of that period.

TAVERN BY LAW

They decided to enforce a law by which each community must keep at least one public house, as the General Court in 1656 made the towns pay a fine for not having an ordinary. Concord was one of those who had not conformed at that date.

This edifice was used as a tavern from 1693 to 1812-15. In the possession of the Merriam family from 1794 to 1913, it was used as a postoffice, Rufus Merriam being postmaster. It was the first postoffice in the community, and the old desk which he used in sorting the mail coming in by stage is still in the tavern.

During the battle of Lexington, the tavern was headquarters for the Minute Men. Paul Revere returned there after his release by the British to secure a box-like trunk left by John Hancock when he was notified of the British approach.

The interior of the inn is interesting, for it has been restored to its picturesque setting. As one enters the front door, a peculiar stairway greets the sight. It turns at sharp angle upon itself about the height of one's head, having no under supports for its second section.

GREAT FIREPLACE

To the right is the tap-room with the largest fireplace to be seen in New England, if not in this country. Around its hearth is scattered curious implements and utensils, handwrought and showing much service.

On the other side of the front hall is the reception room of the tavern. Special wall paper has been designed to reproduce the quaint figures and landscape of the original covering. Large and spacious, the room could hold many guests. Upstairs the bedrooms have been furnished with the antique furniture of the period, many of the original furnishings of the inn having been preserved.

Monday—Joseph Perkins House, Malden.

World Leaders Come Here for Celebration

As distinguished a list of dignitaries as ever gathered in Massachusetts have accepted invitations to be guests of the Commonwealth at the International Tercentenary Day observance on Boston Common, Tuesday morning.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS

Included on the list are ambassadors and ministers from foreign countries, headed by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, and Mrs. Lindsay, the ministers of Hungary, Greece, China and Panama, the Turkish ambassador, and consuls from a score or more of foreign lands.

Stepdaughters of War

will press your hand when you press mine under the table—yes, I will dance with you again till I forget I have seen you at the end of the ghostly procession that has crossed the Channel with me.

He asks me to call him Robin. I tell him my name is Nell. I wish it were something more charming.

But it is charming, as charming as its owner. Oh, yes, yes, yes—if I shake my head again he'll kiss me in the middle of the ballroom and the disapproving old girl with the lorgnettes will pass out completely—he loves to see me smile—not unhappy as I was at dinner now, am I?

The last dance comes. The last chord crashes. He pulls me to him so roughly that I am left breathless for a second. "The King" is played. He stands rigidly to attention, his eyes clouded for a moment. "The King" finishes. I make a quick joke about Paris leave, he throws his head back and laughs. Easily and swiftly he laughs, this Robin who is straight and clean and whole.

We walk into the lounge slowly—bed now, he supposes, with a side glance at me—hardly worth while undressing, embarking at five—filthy, unearthly hour to get a fellow out of bed——

We get in the lift without speaking—our rooms are on the same floor——

At my door he kisses me, at first gently—"a goodnight kiss"—then more ardently—how strong and beautiful he is, this Robin who has not been out to hell yet—Dear Nell—he kisses he again—Dear Robin——

Must he say good-night?—can't he come in and talk to me after I am in bed?—I don't think him an awful rotter for suggesting it, do I—how ingenuous he is, this Robin who kisses me so ardently, whose eyes are blue and sane—he'll be good, honestly, well, just as good as I want him to be—he kisses me again—poor Robin, poor Robin——

"I shall always treasure this, Nell—you're the first girl I've loved, decently—there have been others but——" he stammers boyishly, embarrassed—"When I come on leave we'll dance again, won't we?—we'll have such fun, Nell——"

I kiss him despairingly, the hot tears choking me—we will not dance again, this Robin and I, it is so pitiful, he is 20 and I am 21, but he is so young——

Poor Robin, poor baby, poor baby.
